FOLKS and THINGS About Town

by Ben

CECIL Murrah, who has been with the Lambert Motor Company for the past 12 years is going to Birmingham February 1st, where he will be Service Manager for the O. Z. Hall Motor Company. L. A. Lambert, owner, has not stated who will take the place of Cecil, but to fill his shoes on that job will take a good man. We wish for him complete happiness and success in his new position.

AND speaking of new positions, L. A. Lambert and bride, the former Mrs. Doshie E. Smith, have returned from a wedding trip to Florida. Taht puts Lambert in a new position and we're speaking from experience, too. We do wish for them happiness though, and all the good things that go with wedded bliss—and none of the bad.

ED EDWARDS says that his New Resolution for this year will be to speak kindly of everyone and to watch his money more closely.

HUSBAND: "I saw Tom Tooley down town today, and he didn't even speak to me. He thinks I'm not his equal, I guess". Wife: "Why that stupid, brainless, conceited, good-for-nothing moron! You certainly are his equal!"

MRS. Don McQueen Smith, the former Lenoir Oglesby of Clanton, gave birth to a son at St. Margaret Hospital at Montgomery Tuesday, December 31st. They have named the young fellow Howard McQueen Smith and we hear that mother and son are doing fine. Lenoir was quite a favorite here during her school days and we are sure many, many friends will be glad to learn of the good news.

"WHAT'S wrong", yelled the pedestrian, "are you blind?" "Blind?" shouted the driver, "I hit you didn't I?"

THE mothers of Chilton County have fouled us up! Last week we were prepared to devote an entire page in Chilton County News welcoming the first baby born in the County. Well, at presstime there hadn't been a baby born in the County this year. That left us up in the air—but being no stork we couldn't help the situation any. Therefore you'll have to wait until next week to see who the first citizen of Chilton County will be for 1958. Happy New Year!

Student Night Observed At Mulberry

Student night was observed at Mulberry Sunday night with Glenn Jones as narrator. The theme of the program was "We Believe. . . And So We Speak". A poem was read by Audrey Baker. All college students were recognized. A solo was rendered by Randall Veazey and Mary Nell Veazey gave a poem.

George White, J. C. Cummings, Glenn Jones and the pastor brought inspiring talks.

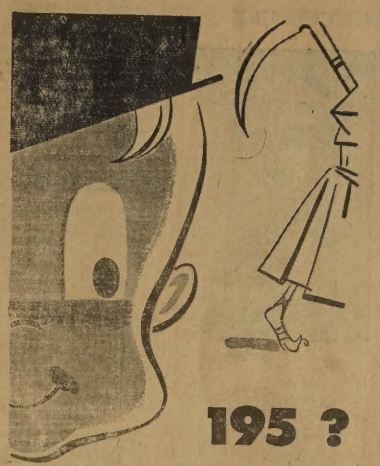
STUCK WITH STORK--
--BUT NO BUNDLE OF JOY



WELL NOW, little Miss or Mr. Chilton County of 1958 has left us in much the same situation as the two gentlemen pctured here! For some unexplained reason, we're all caught in the middle. The old vear can't officially "pass on" unless a "New Year" is born to take his place.

The old vear is having a bad time of it, but vou should see the stork. It's the first time in his long historv that he's been unable to produce the goods, and he's understandably overwrought with anxiety.

We sincerely hope that the reluctance of the New Year to "take over" is no indication of the overall trend of 1958.

Watch next week's News for the "First, Late New Year" in historv.

And desnite his (or her) uncanny ability to foul us up we're still gonna present "the little rascal" with the 5-vear subscription to Chilton Countv News. We think bv that time, it will be more than earned!

OVER HOLIDAYS--

Clanton P.O. Handles Largest Mail Volume In History-On Time

THE CLANTON Post Office did 8.1% more business this Christmas season than it did in 1956, officials of the Post Office disclosed this week.

This increase, it was stated, was for the period from Dec. 1st through Dec. 31st and represents revenue, not pieces of mail handled.

Post office employees handled approximately 184,000 pieces of outgoing mail during this period.

The largest volume of outgoing mails for a single day was recorded on Tuesday, Dec. 17, when 14,734 letters and cards were dispatched.

The largest day of stamp sales was recorded on December 23, when sales of stamps was $680.60.

The largest day's sales of 2c stamps was recorded December 14, when 15,600 stamps were sold.

All Christmas mail was delivered December 23 and it is considered that this Post Office operated 24 hours ahead of last year's schedule.

The cooperation of the public in mailing early was of great assistance to the Post Office force in handling the heaviest volume of Christmas mails in the history of the Clanton Post Office.

The Hanging Church

The Church of the Holy Virgin Mary, called al-Moallaka or the Hanging Church, was built in Cairo about 349 A.D. It was erected between two bastions of a Roman fort called the Fort of Babylon, and in one of these bastions is the baptismal font and chapel.

This church is one of the best examples of Coptic architecture in Egypt, and is famed for the intricate carving and decoration of its screens of cedar, ivory, ebony, and mother-of-pearl. On these screens are hung icons depicting the Saints of the Christian church.

The large, massive stone pulpit is raised above the heads of the congregation, symbolic of Christ's preaching on the Mount. The pulpit is placed to the left of the altar. The altar is placed in the Eastern wall of the church in order to call to the mind of the worshipper that the beginning of man was in the East, and the Redemption of man at the Crucifixion was also in the East. The baptismal font, of solid marble incised with an ancient Egyptian hieroglyph for water, is placed near the door of the church.

The artistry within the church shows a decided Egyptian origin. All of the wall surface is covered with intricate geometrical design and many details of beautiful workmanship. There are inscriptions in Greek, Arabic and Koofic script used as part of this decoration. Some of the portraits of Saints, used as icons, seem to have been influenced directly by the almond eyes and stylized posture of the wall paintings of Ancient Egypt.

TB Crusade Falling Well Behind Quota

RECEIPTS from the 1957 Christmas Seal Sale are still coming in, according to Mrs. R. C. Williams, County Christmas Seal chairman.

"We are behind last year," Mrs. Williams said. "Every letter returned is certainly appreciated. As of December 31st however, we have received $921. Our quota is $1440."

"I hope that during the next few days or so we may hear from all persons who contributed in the past, but for some reason have not yet replied to this year's Christmas Seal letter.

"Over 2,127 new cases of TB were reported in Alabama in 1956 with 11 of those cases right here in Chilton County, making a total of 81 cases in the County.

This year, more than ever, we need Christmas Seal dollars to promote a more forceful TB contol program here in Chilton County.

We must remember that no home is safe as long as there is one case of TB among us."

RESOLVE THIS New Year to do without some of the things you don't like anyway, and then you won't break all of your New Year's resolutions.

USUALLY the man who is afraid to take a chance ends up losing on a sure thing.

SINCE the world began, people have been in search of peace, and the year 1958 will be no exception.

IF WE could see ourselves as others see us—we just couldn't believe our eyes.

WE KNOW a lot of people who ask questions they don't really want answered.

OUR FIREWORKS SITUATION----

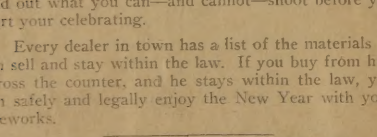
THERE SEEMS TO BE some misunderstanding about the law and City ordinance governing the fireworks situation in our City.

The local City Council adopted the state law governing the shooting according to Mayor Hollis Jackson, and that limits the shooting of fireworks to the lighter displays. This includes roman candles, sparklers, etc.

The heavier displays, such as fire crackers and "bombs" of any kind is forbidden and anyone who attempts to celebrate the New Year with such, may find themselves in court with the penalty, if guilty, a heavy fine to pay.

Several cases were made over the Christmas holidays against offenders and to keep clear of the law, find out what you can—and cannot—shoot before you start your celebrating.

Every dealer in town has a list of the materials he can sell and stay within the law. If you buy from him across the counter, and he stays within the law, you can safely and legally enjoy the New Year with your fireworks.



ABUNDANT LIFE
BY ORAL ROBERTS

HOW TO DEFEAT AN INFERIORITY COMPLEX

According to an old legend a certain Greek city lay under the heel of a cruel king. But the old men of the city kept up the hopes of the people by telling them the story of the face of a man that was cut out in the rock mountain that looked down on the city. "Some day a conqueror will rise up among our people. He will look like the man in the mountain. He will deliver us."

A little boy believed this story. Each night he would pray to God to make him look like that man in the mountain. One day when he was a grown young man, it came in his heart to deliver these people. The people gathered to hear him speak of the coming liberation. While he spoke the old men cried out, "Look! He looks like the man in the mountain." They followed him to victory.

If you will tell me what you are thinking about most, I will tell you what you are and what you are increasingly becoming. You think about what you believe and in believing there is creative power. That creativeness is dedicated toward bettering or worsening the affairs of life.

Many people suffer from an inferiority complex. That is because they believe they are inferior. They have a sense of inadequacy, of not being able to compete, or be on a par with others. Others feel that their physical ugliness cannot be remedied. But beauty and charm have an intangible quality. They come from inner resources.

Mrs. J. D. said that for years she had felt "quite plain" around her sisters. They were so charming and she felt unattractive.

But one day a friend said, "You are not ugly. And if you will pray for God's help, you can really become the attractive person that you want to be."

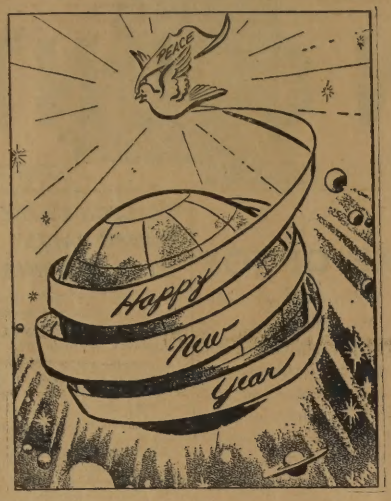
And so this young lady began to think and believe positively. She tried to be friendly and thoughtful of others. Right thinking and radiant living was a continuous ambition of her life.

She painted a mental picture of her hopes and continued to affirm them over and over, believing that these would come into being. And, of course, in her prayers she asked God to help her.

These things happened as she wished them. Today she is married, happy and very popular.

Something wonderful can also happen to you. You may be sick, crippled, ugly, afraid or badly worried. But get a faith-image in your heart of what you want to be. Continue to visualize this and tell yourself over and over that through God's help the things you need and desire will happen to you.

Then believe them. If you can't believe too forcibly at first, believe as much as you can. Your faith will grow. And as you keep the image in your heart, that reality will begin to take place in your life. Jesus said, "According to your faith, so be it unto you."



THE NEW YEAR AND THE COUNTRY WEEKLY----

AS AN ORGAN OF the public I make the following resolves for this New Year of 1958:

I RESOLVE to print, thru my pages, anything desired by the public as long as it is in good taste.

I RESOLVE to uphold our Democracy; to stand for right and to do my best to promote harmony and good will.

I RESOLVE to print ALL the news to the best of my ability without exception due to personal feelings or political belief.

I RESOLVE to uphold any public undertaking for the good of the community, and will, through the only methods I have, strive to promote all good endeavors in the best public interest.

FURTHER, I RESOLVE to support church and charity through my printed pages.

I RESOLVE, to strive to print nothing that will undermine a citizen's character or besmudge a single reputation.

I Will Do my utmost to do these things in the coming year and in return I request the following of my readers and supporters:

READ me thoroughly each week for I am the ONLY facility that represents YOU personally, 52 weeks of the year. Through my pages you not only read about yourself and your neighbors—your progress, your failures, but you may also use my printed page to speak your mind on any matter you see fit to comment upon. Exercise your rights more.

GIVE me the support that I need to continue representing you, a citizen of Chilton County, throughout the coming year. For me to speak my mind is not enough; I must have your support and your opinions.

DO NOT take me for granted. Consider the fact that I am yours—a part of you—to use or abuse, as you see, or fail to see fit. If you choose to abuse my abilities, then I will not—cannot—serve you and your needs.

I CAN give you my freedom—Of The Press—and you, in return, can show the world that you appreciate the other freedoms that you now have.

DON'T TAKE me lightly. For though I am small, united with my fellow organs, I am a vital force in the progress of America. I am the voice of the people and the people are my lifeblood.

TAKE AWAY the interest of my supporters and my printers ink is worthless. Give me your strength and your open minds and I will tell the world of our truth, our faith, our honesty and our way of life.

ABOVE ALL—don't ignore me! I am not self-supporting. Once I am dead, you no longer have a voice in what happens to you. One phase of my existence may not interest you; but there is at least one thing in my pages each week that WILL interest you—though someone else will think it unnecessary. Your support is my existence. Without your good will and influence I will cease to exist—and then where will you be? You can live without me but you need my voice to retain your freedom!

WE NEED each other!

Don't resolve to do anything in 1958 except your level best. Should you strive to this end—we will have the best year in our history and you will have been a vital influence in making it so.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

SOIL BANK MAKING SOME RENTAL CHANGES

OPERATION of the acreage reserve program of the Soil Bank has caused some far-reaching changes in Alabama agriculture.

The practice of renting cotton land is nearly obsolete, now that Soil Bank payments to the landowner with a cotton allotment exceed what he could get by renting the land. Too, the tenant who works a cotton crop for the landowner on shares may be left out altogether if the latter decides to put his allotment in the acreage reserve instead of planting it.

"Where written rental agreements made be ore the Soil Bank was put into operation are still in force, there may be no difficulty," said APl Extension Economist Economist Foy Helms this week, discussing the problem in relation to the coming crop year. "But in most cases farm rentals are on an annual basis, with new agreements made early each year."

A clear understanding of what owners' and renters' obligations under the Soil Bank Program are, may help to avoid injustices and dissatisfaction on the parts of both. Cotton land already leased may be put in the soil Bank with both owner and tenant sharing in the payments according to the terms of their agreement.

"Any landowner may decide to put land not already contracted in the acreage reserve rather than rent it or have it farmed on shares."

"Where participation in the Soil Bank would mean that any tenant would be completely dispossessed, the county ASC committee may see that the tenant shares in the government payments."

"MAN OF YEAR" IN SERVICE TO ALA. AGRICULTURE

E. P. GARRETT

E. P. GARRETT, manager of Tennessee Valley Cooperatives, Inc., Decatur, is named "Man of the Year" in service to Alabama agriculture by The Progressive Farmer magazine in its January issue.

In 1940, twenty years after he began farming in the Tennessee Valley, he was named a Master Farmer by The Progressive Farmer and the Alabama Extension Service. Recognized as one of Alabama's top farmers, he has a Southwide reputation as a leader who knows how to get farmers to work together.

Mr. Garrett really got into cooperative work in the 1930's. In 1934, he became an incorporator and director of the Huntsville Production Credit association. And he was one of the organizers of a fertilizer mixing cooperative at Decatur. But it was at a meeting of stockholders of the Bank of Cooperatives in Birmingham that he became fully convinced of the benefits of cooperatives.

He helped organize a cooperative gin among his neighbors at Little Mina, long serving as its president. He started his present work in 1937.

Mr. Garrett has been re-appointed director of Tay Farm Credit Banks of New Orleans each term since 1942. He was instrumental in organizing the South Limestone Alfalfa Co-op., was president of the Limestone Farmers Cooperative at Athens, and for 14 years was president of the Associated Cooperatives of Sheffield, Ala.

Income Tax Fax

(This is Part III of a series of six articles on Income Tax for the coming year. Part IV will appear in next week's CCN.)

MEDICAL expenses present great opportunities for switching expense from one year to another.

As you no doubt know, medical expenses are deductible to the extent they exceed 3% of your adjusted gross income, but not more than $2,500 per personal exemption and not more than $5,000 on a separate return or more than $10,000 on a joint or head of household return. Exemptions for old age and blindness do not count. If you or your spouse are over 65 years old the 3% provision does not apply to you.

Now suppose that you have large unpaid medical expenses this year and will have even more in 1958. Well, you do not pay any of these this year. Wait until 1958 and pay them all in that year. This way you will have the advantage of the full deduction instead of losing 3% of your income this year as well as 3% of your income for 1958. This works the other way too.

Suppose you paid medical expense of over 3% of your adjusted gross income and will have a deduction and you still owe medical bills which you plan to pay in 1958. If you pay those bills before the end of the year they will be a deduction this year. You won't have to use them to make up 3% of your adjusted gross income for 1958 before you can start deducting again. If you do not have funds readily available it might be wise to borrow the money.

Let's see how that would work. Suppose you borrow $500 from a bank and repay in twelve monthly installments. Your cost for such a loan would be about $35. Now suppose you take this $500 and pay deductible bills with it. If you are paying taxes at the lowest rate, you will save $100. Your net profit on the transaction will be about $65.

Remember too, that any interest paid on borrowed money will become a deduction next year.

POST-CHRISTMAS ACTIVITY AT THORSBY IS LIGHT

by Mrs. Estelle Hayes

LOCAL MR. WED TO BIRMINGHAM MISS, 21ST

The marriage of Miss Peggy Ann Adcock of Birmingham and David R. Maddox of Thorsby was solemnized at 4 p.m. Saturday, December 21, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Maddox, parents of the bridegroom.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Adcock of Cleveland, who were unable to be present because of illness.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. N. A. Long, pastor of the Congregational Church of Thorsby, before an improvised altar of southern smilax and mistletoe on a background of white, topped by an arch of candles and flanked by standard baskets of white gladioli and snapdragons.

Miss Betty Sullivan of Birmingham presented a program of nuptial music and played the traditional wedding marches.

Candles were lighted by Miss Louise Higgins. She wore a ballerina-length dress of blue taffeta.

Miss Martha DeHart attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a ballerina-length dress of pink taffeta with matching headdress. She carried a cascade bouquet of white feathered carnations.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, the Rev. J. L. Adcock. Her waltz-length dress of Chantilly lace, tulle and satin, was designed with scalloped neckline and long sleeves. The bouffant skirt was paneled of lace and tulle. The full circular fingertip veil of English illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a lace-covered Bible topped by a colonial bouquet of white carnations and stephanotis centered with an orchid.

Mr. Maddox served his son as best man.

The bridegroom's mother wore a blue embossed faille dress with white accessories and corsage of rosebuds.

A reception followed the ceremony. A pink and white motif was carried out in decorations and refreshments. The bride's table, covered with white satin overlaid with an imported lace cloth, was centered with the three-tiered wedding cake embossed in pink and white roses topped by a miniature bride and groom under an arch of white flowers.

Silver candelabra banked with mistletoe held white tapers. Coffee was served from a similarly appointed table. Pink and white rosette mints and nuts were served in silver trays from the buffet, which was centered with an arrangement of pink and white snapdragons. Assisting were Mrs. J. H. Boockholdt, Mrs. E. H. Higgins, Mrs. J. T. Gill and Miss Tommie Davis. Their corsages were of pink and white carnations. Miss Rose Ann Dabney registered the guests.

For going away the bride wore a black faille suit with white accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid.

FROM JEMISON—

MRS. NAISH SAYS "HAPPY NEW YEAR" TO ALL

Again we come to the close of another year, with its joys and sorrows; and many blessings. Another years is before us! An opportunity to improve our conditions, to help others along the way of life; to enjoy our friends and families more.

There are three grand essentials to success and happiness in life: Have something to do, to love, and to hope for. There is plenty for all to do; certainly there is love for all mankind and to hope for world peace when all can go on their way rejoicing.

With the passing of the old year, there is no need to look back, unless we desire profit by our mistakes.

The jewelry of an Iraqi maiden may include earrings of silver and gold, some set with turquoise stones; heavy antique silver bracelets, several inches wide; silver and bead amulets alternating with coral beads and Ottoman gold coins to form an ornate necklace; and many other examples of the Iraqi craftsman's skill. Their skill and craftsmanship is the same that characterized the jewelry worn by the Queens of Ur 4500 years ago.

Traditional patterns of jewelry design include lace-like silver ornamentation and big solid silver bracelets. The Iraqi woman may wear many such bracelets on one arm and occasionally use an antique child's bracelet as a decorative clasp for long hair.

Today small children often wear the silver anklet hung with small bells and decorated with turquoise or with Karbala clay, glazed and painted blue. These are not only pretty, but the bells help the mother keep watch over the child at play.

Pendant earrings of three crescents graded in size, each hung with rows of tiny leaves are another design of the Iraqi craftsmen. Pearls and corals imported from the Persian Gulf are suspended from gold bracelets with slender chains. Other gold bracelets are formed of intricate links with the name of the owner engraved on the clasp. This jewelry of Iraq has an exotic charm and a fabled beauty like something, naturally, out of the Tales of the Arabian Nights.

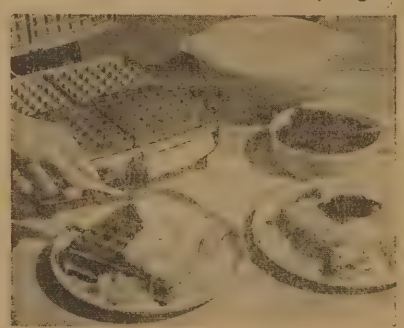
Chicken Fricassee for Saturday Night



IT'S a Southern custom that when fried chicken is served . . . either in a restaurant or at home, it's often accompanied by waffles.

For all the young marrieds, who have invitations to return, we recommend a quick version . . . using canned boned chicken fricassee . . . in a waffle sandwich.

The waffle iron, which arrived as a wedding or Christmas gift, can now be put to good use. Stir up a bowl of batter using a buttermilk pancake and waffle mix; add some orange rind for flavor. Heat two cans of chicken-y good boned chicken fricassee and use it as filling and topping for the waffles. Garnish the sandwich with a mound of ruby red cranberry sauce.

This is an ideal Saturday night dish after an outdoor session of ice skating or tobogganing. And it's one in which the men can help . . . making the waffles. So don the aprons, gather the ingredients and on with the recipe:

Chicken Waffle-ettes

[illegible] melted shortening
[illegible] cup grated orange rind
[illegible] cups buttermilk pancake and waffle mix
[illegible] eggs, beaten
[illegible] cans (5½ ounces each) boned chicken fricassee

Beat eggs in medium-size bowl. Stir in milk, shortening, orange rind. Add waffle mix; beat with rotary beater until smooth. Pour batter onto hot waffle iron. Bake until brown. (Makes 3 large square waffles.) While waffles are baking, empty chicken fricassee into a saucepan; heat; stir occasionally. Break each waffle into 4 (making 12 squares). Spoon half of fricassee onto 6 squares; top with remaining squares and spoon rest of fricassee over top. Garnish with cranberry sauce. Makes 6 servings.

If your friends are really hungry, you can "make the rounds" again . . . in a matter of minutes. For with canned boned chicken fricassee and a waffle mix, seconds are no problem. FNS

"Better Late Than Never" Burnett Arrives On Scene

AT EXACTLY 3:42 A. M. on the 2nd day of January, 1958 Rickie L. Burnett arrived at the local hospital to officially become Mr. New Year around these parts.

Rick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Burnett of Rt 2, Montevallo, and Mr. Stork weighed in at 9 lbs 4 ozs; quite a bundle of joy!

As planned, the Chilton County News proudly presents Rick with his 5-year subscription and wishes him all the best things in life—few of the bad.

A note to Mom, however: Since little Rick's timing is so bad; maybe it would be well if you taught him—first thing—the virtues of being "on time". Congratulations!

COTTON is grown on about 900,000 farms in the southern part of the U. S. says the U. S Department of Agriculture. The average national crop is about 15 million bales of cotton lint, each weighing about 500 pounds.

LETTER TO. REP. SELDEN; PEACH INSURANCE

WE are quoting below contents of letter from F. N. McCartney, Manager, USDA Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, to Hon. Armistead I. Selden, Jr., relative to peach insurance program for Chilton County.

"DEAR Congressman Selden:

In your letter of December 20 you inquired if our experimental peach insurance program had reached the stage whereby we could consider offering peach insurance in Chilton County, Alabama. Since our letter to you of March 28, 1957, we have completed our first year of experience in the one South Carolina county and are at the present time having peach insurance in this county for the 1958 crop year, which will be our second year of operation.

Our experience for the 1957 crop year was favorable, showing an excess of premiums over indemnities of approximately $15,000. Our limited experience does indicate that certain changes may be necessary in the program for the 1959 crop year, but we have not had sufficient experience as yet to draw any definite conclusions.

We will, no doubt, need several years of experience to determine whether a sound and practical insurance program can be developed for peaches. We do not feel that we should expand this experimept to additional counties until such time as this determinations can be made.

You may be assured that every consideration will be given to Chilton County, Alabama, as soon as any expansion in our peach insurance program is made. We greatly apreciate your continued interest in the crop insurance program and will be glad to furnish you any further information you might desire".

ONLY CIVIL WAR PENSIONER IN COUNTY

WORD received [illegible] the Chilton County Department of Pensions and Security informs us that Mrs. Willie P. Teel, who is a widow, is the only surviving Confederate Pensioner in the County of Chilton.

Mrs. Teel, who is 71, resides at 14, 3rd Ave., South in Clanton.

In an exclusive interview with Mrs. Teel this week your Chilton County News uncovered some very interesting facts about the Teels and enjoyed an interesting talk with the charming Mrs. Teel. 71 years young this coming February 1st, Mrs. Teel is still very cheerful, very cooperative.

When asked about her husband she readily answered questions and discussed her marriage to the Civil War Veteran.

Her husband, the late Mr. Teel, was born in Chambers County in the year 1846. He came to Chilton County as a farmer and married Mrs. Teel on March 7, 1915. They were married by the then Judge E. B. Deason.

Mr. Teel died on February 8, 1937 at the age of 90. Mrs. Teel now lives alone at her residence, but she has many, many years to recall and doubtless has many interesting incidents in her life which continue to occupy her thoughts.

Chapman stated that last year's policy of asking taxpayers to do as much of their own work as possible would be continued. He pointed out that the program was well received throughout the nation, enabling the service to devote thousands of additional man-days to enforcement activities.

The Internal Revenue Service suggests that taxpayers start the preparation of their returns at home and call Montgomery if they need answers to questions. Most questions can be answered quickly by telephone, saving the taxpayer a trip to our office", Chapman explained.

He emphasized that taxpayers who cannot solve their problems by telephone should go to the office on a taxpayer assistance day. He promised that qualified employees will be available to advise them in completing the returns on those days.

Tax Reform Held Vital for Our Ability to Defend Ourselves

A WARNING that in the stress of the missile-satellite problem the nation must not be misled ino ignoring pressing domestic issues, particularly taxation reform, is sounded by Wm. J. Grede, chairman of the taxation committee of the National Association of Maunfacturers.

MR. Grede, president of Grede Foundries, Incorporated, Milwaukee holds that American liberties are more endangered by socialistic tax process than by Russian technological achievements—which, he said recently, the United States is capable of meeting, adding:

"We may have let the Soviets get a six-year start on us, but this does not add up to a crisis in public spending. The funds budgeted for missiles in the current federal fiscal year are less than three percent of the total ruthority has projected a figure for next year much higher than four percent of the budget.

Economies Essential

"Economies in civilian activities, and in obsolete and wasteful military activites, could more than make up for any and all increases in the

Mr. Grede urged that taxpayers make themselves heard in the House Ways and Means Committee public hearings on the proposed Sadlak-Herlong and other tax reform bills. He called the Sadlak-Herlong bill "the first thoroughgoing legislative reform of the income tax rate structure since the rates started their upward movement 25 years ago," and emphasized:

The Real Danger

"The danger confronting the nation is not Soviet missiles or Sputniks—it is the danger that we will allow spectacular Russian shows to postpone urgently needed tax reform.

"Tax reform—moderation of the excessive and discriminatory income tax rates—is essential to the maintenance, and the improvement and expansion, of American industry, and vital to our ability to defend ourselves.

"Russia does not so much fear our ability to produce Sputniks and missiles, but rather the dynamic power of a free industrial society. This contest is not over Sputniks — if the launching of the Sputnik causes us to destroy our free economy the Russians have accomplished their mission."

SOME men would never rise in the world if their wives didn't blow them up.

USUALLY the faster a man travels the easier it is for trouble to overtake him.

GENERALLY the man who claims to be self-made, usually had a wife who superintended the job.

HUMAN beings are cheerful givers when it comes to handing out advice.

THE only one who can deny us another chance is the one who occupies our shoes.

THE greater the obsticle the more glory it brings the person who overcomes it.

CHILTON HIGHWAY PATROL----

Members of the State Highway Patrol station in Chilton County should be very proud of their record for service and dependability for the highway fatality record for 1957.

Even though traffic has been greater, and at times conditions much worse, the local members of the Highway Patrol have maintained an excellent record on our highways throughout the past year. The death rate in automobile accidents dropped more than 100 percent, and the total amount in damages to vehicles showed a marked decline.

Total number of injuried in highway accidents dropped from 101 to 71, a decrease of approximately one-third.

R. W. Head, J. B. Pemberton, Jr., and Byron D. Prescott are the local members of the State Highway Patrol stationed here now and the Chilton County News congratulates them all on their marked service to the county and state and the driving public as a whole.

No Place For Flimsy Or Whimsy----

A considerable amount of controversy is being aired about school-building costs. The Reader's Digest published a story that compared a number of schools and drew the conclusion that many cost too much. Henry Luce's magazine, Architectural Forum, replied with a rebuttal that said mistaken complaints about costliness are giving taxpayers the "synthetic jitters".

We certainly don't intend to add to the confusion, but it seems a good time to cite some facts that have come out of the argument. We're going to need many new schools to meet the educational challenge that Russia has flung at us. To get them, we need some common sense definitions of what we mean by costliness.

We believe that school-building is one area in which we should stop trying to cut corners, just so long as we know we're paying for honest educational facilities. A science classroom isn't a "frill", and, judging by the military physical fitness reports on our youth, neither is a gymnasium. We think it's a frill to build old-fashioned parapets or otherwise ape the monumental design of the past. It's also a frill to put up with more recent fakeries like oversized expanses of glass that have to be covered with draperies and blinds.

There's no doubt that money can be saved by sound design. Even more can be saved by long-range planning and use of proven materials and work methods. By planning ahead, sites can be bought more cheaply, jobs can be bid accurately, and contracts aren't dumped together on a saturated building market. By building soundly with sturdy brick and stone, using local contractors and the community labor force, buildings can be put up that cost no more than so-called "portable" structures and a lot of money can be saved in long-term maintenance and fire safety.

Building schools is a lot like being married. You get out of it just what you put into it, and it isn't the initial investment, but the annual cost that counts.

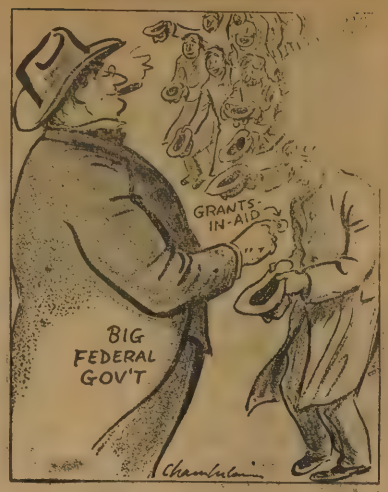
THE "SOVEREIGN" STATES?



Hat In Hand They Stand---

Through use of the grants-in-aid device, the Federal government has extended its authority all the way to Main Street.

When an essential community or state program becomes necessary, our governors are usually forced to go to Washington, hat in hand, to beg for a portion of the tax money their constitutents have been forced to pay. The states must put up plenty of money, too, and every dollar is subject to Federal control.

There should be a reassment of governmental responsibilities and the return to state and local units of many of the functions which have been assumed by the Federal government in recent decades.

The first step should be the termination of federal grant-in-aid with all practical promptness.

THINGS WE

And HEAR BY "TUCK"

WE were in bad need of a lift the other day when "Mr. Diet" strolled by with that pleasant countenance of his. We'll never know how much he brightened our spirit with just that one friendly gesture. We think we'll resolve this year, to be as pleasant as he usually is. We have proof positive that it works.

WE KNOW now what it means to be "treated like a dog". Other day we had occasion to visit the local vet with our "best friend" (as a matter of fact our two best friends) and the four-legged one that got the treatment" sure thought this "man's best friend" bit was a losing battle. He wasn't asked—he was told. Works with animals O. K., but it sure won't work with folks. Guess that's one advantage the vet has over Mr. M. D. With him, the customer is not necessarily always right. At least he doesn't have to listen to a lot of guff about who is and who ain't.

WE WISH Lee Gore and Herrman Vinson lots of luck in their new veature down Montgomery way. They are still in the "Fill 'er up" business and will do well we're sure. A couple of Chilton County boys like that get down in the big city and those dudes will watch their P's and Q's. Their competition will become much keener. We certainly hate to lose them, but the one consolation is that our loss is their gain, so let's be big about it. Good luck fellas!

ONE very outstanding thing you can say about a school teacher that everybody seems to have a grievance against. . she usually teaches you something. Something we might add, that you never forget. You schoolers might keep that in mind the next time you see fit to condemn, be little and chastize in general, that little old school teacher.

SOMETHING else too: perhaps even more important. A few years after you have escaped the "clutches" of this "mean" old teacher, you'll find that you really have a lot more respect for her than one who let you off the hook time and again, just to make it easier for you or so you'd like them better. Think of the courage it takes to deliberately make youngsters hold you distasteful just so what you do teach them will be there when they need it. It's much easier to be liked sometime—it might pay some of us to bear that in mind.

SAFETY is fine. But is it safe for these "figures" to be left standing out in the middle of the road well after school is out and the sun was gone down. After dark, especially on a rainy or misty night, no driver in the world expects anything on the highway that does not give, or at least reflect some sort of light. If we may suggest, we think some of the safety patrol (if it is still an organization) or some apointed group of older boys should be given charge of these safety figures. We thoroughly agree that they are an assistance when school is in session, taking in, or letting out. But, they become a decided hazard on a dark road at night and some motorist, unfamiliar with our unorthodox ways is going to smear one of them safety figures all over the highway. That won't look so safe, now will it?

OH, BY the way! One resolve we made this year was not to get long-winded, so in lieu of this. . . we'll sieu you next week!

State Education On Alcoholism Swings Into Action

The newly established State Agency for education with respect to alcoholism is now swinging into action.

Nimrod T. Frazer, young Montgomery Korean veteran, has been named Administrator. His appointment was announced by Charles Abercrombie, Executive Secretary of the Alabama Commission on Education with Respect to Alcoholism.

The State Legislature, during its 1957 session, appropriated $150,000 a year for this purpose and for the establishment of out-patient clinic facilities and contracting with certain hospitals for treatment of acute cases of alcoholism.

Frazer received his A. B. degree at Huntingdon College, Montgomery before going to Columbia University and the Harvard University School of Business Administration where he received his Master's degree. He was twice decorated in Korea.

ORIGIN OF THE BIBLE

EDITOR'S NOTE—Beginning in this issue of the News is a series of articles furnished us by Dr. J. L. Bennett and the Clanton Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses. The articles deal with explanations of the origin of every chapter in the Bible and is enlightening reading—no matter who you are. These articles will appear each week under the title "Origin of the Bible". A new subject will be presented each week.

"EQUIPPED FOR EVERY GOOD WORK"

REFERENCE:
II Timothy 3:16, 17, Weymouth.

MANY religionists of the English speaking realm are inclined to think that the Bible as a book originated in a manner purely miraculous. They have a hazy notion that it was written in heaven, in English, of course, divided there into chapters and verses, with cross references and marginal notes, and then sent by an angel to the earth. They think of the Bible shy away from the American Standard Version and other modern translations of the Bible, claiming that their religiously venerated King James Version Bible is the only true Bible.

They fail to realize that the King James Version is a comparative youngster, being in 1946 only 335 years old, whereas the first writing of scripture occurred as far back as 3,488 years ago.

An English language did not even exist then.

The Bible started to be put in writing back there in the wilderness by the man Moses, and in the Hebrew tongue. The bulk of what is today misnamed the "Old Testament" was written in the Hebrew tongue, and is properly referred to as the "Hebrew Scriptures".

But the Hebrew Scriptures are not written entirely in Hebrew. Ezra 4:8-6:18 and 7:12-26, Jeremiah 10:11, and Daniel 2:4-7:28 were originally recorded in Aramaic. The original language of the misnamed "New Testament" is Greek; hence this section of the Bible is often-times spoken of as the "Greek Scriptures".

All of the books of the Bible, 66 in number, have a common origin. The Bible is of single authorship, yet of composite writership. This makes it outstanding among all other books of the world. The Bible is Jehovah's revelation of himself and his purposes. At the beginning of Bible writing He contributed personally to the Scripture canon by recording on two stone tablets the Decalogue, or Ten Commandments. (Ex. 24:12; 31:18). Human creatures took over the actual work of writing, but they all wrote under God's guidance and dictation, being moved by His spirit. Some were judges and kings. Some were learned, others were lowly laborers, herdsmen, fishermen, etc. They wrote over a long stretch of years. Moses started the Pentateuch, the first five books of the Bible, about 1513 B. C. The Apostle John closed the Bible canon sixteen centuries later.

Nevertheless this diverse group of more than thirty men widely separated in the stream of time produced a perfectly harmonious literary masterpiece. Not by the abilities of the writers, but by the infinite wisdom and might of the Bible's Originator was it accomplished. The writers themselves are quick to acknowledge this. David said: "The spirit of the Lord spake to me, and His word was in my tongue." Luke declared: "He spake by the mouth of his holy prophets." Peter added to the testimony: "No prophecy ever came by the will of man: but men spake from God, being moved by the holy spirit." (Am. Stan. Ver.) Paul left no room for further doubt or exceptions when he sweepingly said "All scripture is given by inspiration of God." Certainly Jehovah God alone is the Bible's Originator. II Sam. 23:2; Acts 1:16; Luke 1:70; II Pet. 1:21; Pet. 1:10, 11; II Tim. 3:16, 17.

The Bible was not originally one book, but, as its canon grew, it became a small library of books and booklets. The general idea of the Bible as one book is rather modern, even though it was assembled in codex form during the second century after Christ. In the fourth century of the Christian era the Bible was still designated in Latin as Bibliotheca Divina, that is "The Divine Library." "Bible" is from the Greek word biblia, meaning papyrus scrolls, volumes or books; literally, booklets. The early Greek Christians called the Scripture Ta Biblia, that is "The Books," meaning thereby THE preeminent or paramount books.

In the Authorized or King James Version there are 39 books in the Hebrew Scriptures and 27 in the Greek Scriptures. The Hebrew and Jewish Bibles list only 24 Hebrew books because I and II Samuel, I and II Kings, and I and II Chronicles, Ezra and Nehemiah, and the twelve books of the so-called "Minor Prophets" together, are each counted as one. The seven main and Scriptural groupings of the Bible books are: (1) the Law; (2) the prophets; (3) the Hagiographa (holy writings, including the Psalms); (4) the Gospels; (5) the Acts; (6) the epistles; and (7) The Revelation.

But there is one division yet to be mentioned which serves, not a good purpose, but a very wicked one: the splitting asunder of God's Word into so-called "Old Testament" and "New Testament." Such a division was not authorized by the Bible's Originator. That it is grossly wrong is evidenced by the Devil's seizure of it to nullify and delate from God's Word nearly three-fourths of its inspired contents. (Deut 4:2; Rev. 22:19) Nowhere in the Bible are the Hebrew Scriptures called "Old Testaments". Neither were the Hebrew Scriptures referring to the Greek Scriptures when they foretold a new testament or covenant. The Hebrew Scriptures deal with more than one testament or covenant, and the same is true of the Christian Greek Scriptures. It is a devilish wrestling of Scripture for anyone to claim that when Paul, at Hebrews 8:13, spoke of the typical old law covenant as having become old and ready to vanish away he referred to the Hebrew Scriptures, falsely termed "Old Testament", and that they had been fulfilled and hence all that was therefore necessary for Christians was the so-called "New Testaments", the Greek Scriptures. The very writing of Paul belie such a false claim. — Rom. 15:4; 1 Cor. 10:11; 2 Tim. 3:16, 17.

Those citations from Paul's inspired epistles show that when the all-wise God gave commands to Moses and others after him to write He had in mind our perplexing days when making so sorely needs true guidance and a sound hope. The Creator knew man's frame and feebleness of memory, and knew too the Devil's aim to destroy the divine record and pervert and bury out of men's minds. Hence God caused a faithful record to be written. Since this was expressly for those in need of vital information at the worst crisis of the nations in the end of the world, Almighty God would safeguard the Scripture despite efforts to destroy them. What Isaiah said more than 2,600 years ago, and which inspired Peter seconded 1,900 years ago, is still true today: "The word of our God shall stand for ever." Isa. 40:8.

Preservation of the Bible to follow.

POULTRY PRICES EXPECTED TO RISE THIS YEAR

ANBURN, ALA—U. S. Department of Agriculture specialists are predicting a good year for poultry industry in 1958.

Egg producers are likely to find this year's prices more profitable than last year's. Egg prices will be higher, feed costs lower, and sales only slightly under the 1956 and '51 volume. Total egg output will probably be around the record 61 billion produced during these years.

About six per cent of total egg supply will come from the "barnyard flock." However, the number of producers involved is greater than for the other 94 per cent.

"Broiler production will probably rise slightly above the record 1957 volume," continued the specialist. "And prices received for broilers are likely to average close to those currently estimated for 1957. Prices will be above the year's average during summer and lower during the final quarter."

Alabama produced over 100 million birds last year—almost a 2 percent increase over the 1956 production. And with favorable feed prices ahead, he looks for another expansion this year.

National cut of from five to ten per cent is expected in turkey production this year. Storage supplies will likely keep prices down the first half of the year—but prices may advance some this fall.

Alabama Hails '57 As Year of Record Advances, Progress

THE year 1957 will be remembered in history as a prosperous and progressive one for the State of Alabama.

After reviewing the end-of-the year facts and figures, Gov. Folsom said: "This again proves that Alabama has a good climate for industrial development and our State's record for 1957 is one of which all Alabamians can be justly proud. Important and progressive advances have been made."

The State Planning and Industrial Development Board reported that $13,960,000 in capital investment of new industries had located in Alabama during the past 12 months. In addition, it was noted, 1957 had seen some $91,149,000 worth of industrial expansion of existing plants develop in the State. In a further breakdown, State Planning and Industrial Development Board Director Press Looney pointed out that utilities such as power and gas companies, ect. and warehouse facilities had inverted or committed themselves to another $68,433,000 in the State during the past year.

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board's annual report showed an all-time record net profit of $16 million last year, to the benefit of the general fund of the State, and the treasuries of all 67 counties and 39 incorporated cities, as well as pensions and security programs, among others, ABC Board Chairman Harrell Hammonds pointed out.

Alabama's State Docks Department likewise reported a bonanza year and the U. S. Corps of Engineers noted that the Mobile Docks had handled an all-time record of 17,516,991 tons according to their latest, 1956, figures, quoted by Docks Director Knox McRae.

The State Highway Department can "point with pride" to another 1,965 miles of paving laid down in the State during the past fiscal year, which makes 3,975 miles of new paved roads in the State during the past two financial years. In addition, multi-million major bridges were under construction, and nearing completion, over the Tennessee River at Stevenson, across the Tombigbee River at Coffeeville, and in the Lay Dam area near Verbena. As the calendar year ended, State Highway Derector Herman Nelson accepted bids for the start of construction on another nine-and-a-quarter million dollar bridge near Gulf Shores, which will span Alabama to Florida and open up the State's magnificent coastal resort area.

According to official estimates, Alabama's tourist industry earnings [illegible] in 1957 [illegible] billion in 1956.

Despite a down-turn [illegible] reported last month, many other areas of the nation, Alabama ended the year with State Revenue Commissioner W. LaRue Horn still able to report that Alabama's Tax collections were still going ahead, even if—here and there—the pace of increase had slightly diminished.

THE TALKINGEST PEOPLE ON EARTH

Alaskians have displaced Hawaiians as the talkingest people on the globe—as far as the telephone is concerned.

Alaska averaged 630 conversations per person last year to lead the talking list, acording to "The World's Telephones," an annual survey released today by J. M. Commander, manager for the Southern Bell Telephone Company.

Hawaii, which had been first the year before, came second this time with an average of 531 conversations per inhabitant. Canada reported 481, Sweden 455, and the United States 426. The world average was 51.

The new edition of the telephone facts-and-figures also shows:

Throughout the world more telephones were added during 1956 than ever before. The gain of 7½ million telephones brought the total number in use at the start of 1957 to 110 million.

New York had more telephones than any other city. Only three countries (the United Kingdom, Canada and west Germany) other [illegible] the U. S. had more than New [illegible] 4,077,600.

The outlook for 1958, in the opinion of Ralph W. Burger, president of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, is for continued high production, continued increase in the development and use of convenience foods and further improvements in stores and service, but with increased emphasis on price.

From the consumer's point of view, government reports indicate that production of pork and chicken should increase slightly in 1958; small reductions are in prospect for beef and veal; and other major groups should remain about the same, he said.

"We may expect the trend toward increased consumption of prepackaged meats and produce, frozen foods of all varieties, baking mixes and soluble coffee to continue," he added. "The demand for canned foods also will remain strong because of their uniform quality, [illegible]

WONDERFUL GIFTS—I met a lady the other day who had received a color telephone for Christmas. She said it was one of the most original gifts she'd ever had and was so pleased with it she wanted to order several for coming birthdays. Together we made the selections for her friends, and she also decided to order another for herself (the first is in her bedroom; the second is for the kitchen). How about you? Got any birthdays or anniversaries coming up? Why not give extension telephones in color—they're original, practical and so beautiful! Easy to give, too. Just call our Business Office and we'll handle all the details.

WHO'S NANCY? Nancy is a girl we all know. Lives right here in our community. She's pretty, popular, and very grown-up. Often she's wrapped up in a world of her own. But just let the phone ring, and watch her snap to attention. That ring may mean a date, a party, big news or just anything. But no matter what, it's IMPORTANT . . . and she just couldn't be without a phone. In case you've guessed, Nancy is not really one girl but a composite of our local teenage misses, who are just finding out what we older folks have known all along. The telephone is important because it keeps us in touch, lets us do so many things quickly and easily.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

The once-sedate U. S. State Dept. is now panhandling with a tin cup American business firms to help underwrite the American participation next year in the Brussels World Fair in Belgium.

C. W. Harder

At the last session of Congress the State Dept., which now has a world fair department set up, wheedled Congress out of $12,345,000, although it had requested $15,000,000 to participate in this Belgian event.

And, as usual, whenever public money is wanted for any purpose, no matter how sound, the argument advanced was that this was a step in winning the cold war with Russia. Somehow, it was felt, that by the U. S. showing its vast technological superiority over Russia, the free peoples would be encouraged to stand up straight, those on the fence would be influenced to favor the American way.

Of course, Sputnik and Muttnick kind of exploded this line of reasoning, but Howard Cullman, U. S. Commissioner to the fair, is still using this line of reasoning as he approaches American business enterprises with the tin cup for donations.

But most interesting of all is the reason why more money than what Congress appropriated is necessary.

Out of the over $12,000,000 voted by Congress, the Belgium government took half of it for taxes and insurance. This was done despite the fact that U. S. funds to the tune of over $5 million were expended to build a pavilion, a theatre and landscape the grounds around the American exhibit. Undoubtedly, the lion's share of this money found its way into pockets of Belgium workers and thence into coffers of Belgium businessmen.

Thus, once again, the State Dept. has made a patsy out of the American taxpayer.

Now, woefully short of funds to pay staff salaries, performers, guides and ushers, the State Dept. is asking private companies to pony up for the deficit.

In exchange, State Dept. promises to give firms wide publicity.

Needless to say, few companies can afford such a heavy expense, and those that can will naturally take a tax deduction on contributions. So, once more, average U. S. taxpayer will be found making up difference.

Thus, there is witnessed one more muddle well muddled by your State Dept. in action. It is small wonder members of Congress are getting restless with the constant bumbling in this branch of the government. Perhaps in a recent letter to his constituents, Sen. Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania expressed a majority sentiment of Congress.

Sen. Clark said, "We should make major changes in our State Dept., including the resignation of the present Secretary of State; Foreign Service appointments should be on the basis of capability and experience instead of political contributions . . . and there should be an immediate review of our intelligence evaluation set-up."

In other words, the Senator is merely highlighting a remark often heard in Washington.

This comment is "operation of both the State Dept. and the American intelligence service is getting duller and duller."

Watermelons Being Produced Bigger, Better Than Ever

IMPROVED STANDARDS BY DEPT. OF AG.

AUBURN, Ala. — Two improved varieties of watermelons have been developed by U. S. Department of Agriculture plant breeders.

Produced at Charleston, S. C., the newcomers—Blackstone and Gar... to fill a par... termelon in...

Here this week, API Extension Horticulturist John Bagby pointed out several advantages of the new varieties that should appeal to growers, shippers, retailers, and consumers.

Blackstone is a round, dark-green, disease-resistant melon, said the specialist. It matures early and has a hard rind—similar to the rind of the Black Diamond variety.

While Blackstone doesn't produce melons quite as large as those of older varieties, it yields an abundance of fruit ranging from 28 to 35 pounds—the size most popular with consumers. And it ... resistant to anthracnose—a serious disease that attacks leaves, stems, and fruit of watermelons.

"Garrisonian is similar to the Garrison variety in size, shape, color, flesh, and eating quality" Bagby continued. "But this new variety has a hard rind and is resistant to many diseases to which Garrison is susceptible.

"The Garrisonian often weighs from 40 to 60 pounds—making up somewhat for the smaller number of fruit produced per vine. This variety is particularly recommended for growers who want to market large melons of superior quality."

According to Bagby, these varieties have not been fully tested in Alabama and should be planted on a trial basis only.

A FEW drops of tabasco sauce, onion juice, and soy sauce added to Welsh rarebit gives it an excellent flavor.

WHEN roasting pork, make slits in the fat part with a knife point and insert a few tiny strips of garlic.

INCOME TAX FAX...

DO YOU wan to make a sale now, but hesitate to do so because of the additional tax you would have to pay this year? Then consider selling now and reporting the profit on the installment basis. You can make the sale now, elect to report your profit on the installment basis and pay the tax on your profit as you collect the installments. If you make no collections in 1957, then you will have no tax to pay. In other words, don't pass up an opportunity to sell now at a profit. Make the sale and be sure that you collect 30% or less this year. Then make your collections in later years and report and pay the tax on the profit as you collect it.

You can elect to report your profit on an installment sale in installments as you are paid if—

1. It was a sale of real estate and the total amount collected in 1957 was not more than 30% of the selling price.

2. It was a sale of personal property where—

A. The total amount you collected in 1957 was not more than 30% of the selling price;

B. It was personal property not of a kind you would include in your inventory at December 31, 1957 if you till had it; ...

C. The selling price was more than $1,000.

The total collected in 1957 cannot exceed 30% of the total selling price. This includes the down payment and all later payments collected in 1957.

If all the requirements under 1 or 2 above are met, then you can report your profit each year as you collect it.

This is how it works.

Assume that you sold your home in 1957. This home cost you $10,000 in 1940. The selling price is $15,000. Your profit is $5,000. Under the long term capital gain rates you are taxed only 50% of this profit, that is, $2,500.

Assume that you collect down payment of 10%, $1,500; Your profit on this house is—Selling price, 100% $15,000; Less your cost, 66⅔% $10,000; Profit, 33.3%, $5,000.

Then you would report as your long term capital gain for 1957 $1,500 received; 33.3% profit—$500. This would be taxed at the long term capital gains rate, so that 50% or $250 would be taxed. If you made no collection in 1957 nothing would be taxed.

If you use this system be sure to pick up and report your profit on your collections each year as you collect them.

AGED EXPRESS GRATITUDE FOR PENSION CHECKS

WRITE TO STATE DEPARTMENT

The extent of human need among old age pensioners has been dramatically emphasized in the Christmas Greetings many of them have sent to the State Department of Pensions and Security, Commissioner, J. S. Snoddy said today. "We couldn't get along without our checks," they said again and again, at the same time expressing regret that payments had to be reduced.

"We appreciate not only the holiday greetings, but also the deeper insight these messages give us into the needs of people," Snoddy commented. He said the December checks were mailed before Christmas in advance of the regular date.

Citing an example of one of the messages received, Snoddy quoted the following: "Thanks for sending my check earlier. I am so in need of it—it means very much to me. I will be 84 in the Spring."

Another said he couldn't manage without his pension as he couldn't work any longer.

Snoddy said that all persons who receive old age pensions are in need according to agency standards, are 65 years old (through the average is more than 74), and must meet other requirements, such as residence, etc. In November old are payments numbered 104,802 with the average amount per case being $38.15.

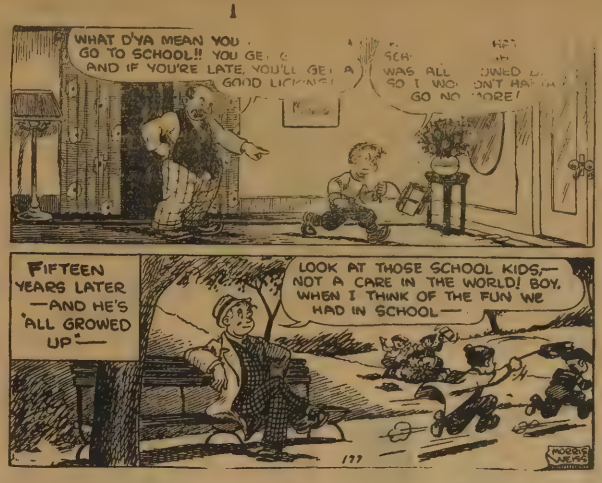
Prepare Your Buildings For Spring Storms

FARM buildings should be prepared now to withstand wind damage during spring storms.

According to Engineer construction measures can be taken to help protect buildings located on the fringe areas of tornadoes. But it isn't practical to make the safeguards strong enough to resist the full force of a storm.

Knee braces should be used to reinforce and strengthen frame buildings. Foundations of new buildings should be heavy and deep enough to resist lifting and overturning, and it's best to locate buildings on a site protected from winds by hills or other windbreaks. Specialists advise using steel straps at the plates and other key points.

TO remove chewing gum from clothing, rub the garment with a piece of ice and scrape off the gum. If the stain remains, sponge the material with carbon tetrachloride or some other solvent.



STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS from the Bible

God's free gift is the Life of the Ages, bestowed upon us in Christ Jesus our Lord.—(Acts 6, 23.)

As He promised in the days when He walked among men, Christ Jesus is with us today when we open our hearts to Him in faith and devotion, when we love Him as He loved us, sacrificing our self-will and self-indulgence as tiny tokens of the sacrifice He made for us on the Cross.

GOOD NEWS FOR MILK LOVERS

PRICES TO STAY AT PRESENT LEVEL

ANBURN, ALA. — Milk prices this year will probably remain about the same—or only slightly higher than those in 1957.

However, more milk will be available. The trend during the past two years for a higher rate of production per [illegible] continue.

Another trend is toward fewer but larger dairy herds. Although labor costs will probably be higher this year, increased efficiency on the picture, large feed supplies will probably help out the dairyman

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS
The Bible

If for all your evil you know how to give your children what is good, how much more will your Father give the Holy Spirit from Heaven to those who ask Him?—(St. Luke 11, 13.)

First we ask our Father, Almighty and Eternal God, for the gift of His love, in true and humble devotion. Then, knowing in faith that it is ours, we begin to live a new life that is joyous and useful in His service, in love and brotherhood.

Grand Jury Praises Jail; Condemns Courthouse

by Ben

THE present Mayor and members of the City Council will have an administration of which to be proud if they do nothing but complete the disposal plant now under construction. We made a trip out there the other afternoon with councilman L. E. Diefenderfer. It is a much larger undertaking than we supposed and covers about six acres of ground. If completed it will be ready for use in April and according to those in the know, it will be ready unless bad weather prevents. It is the realization of a project long dreamed of and we owe it's existance to the present City Fathers who went after it and accomplished their mission.

THE local Highway Patrolmen are shooting at a new low record for traffic accidents and deaths for the year 1958 according to R. W. Head. As you noticed in last weeks Chilton County News the total for 1957 had been cut more than half. Well, it is the desire of our three loc.. Highway Patrolmen that we continue to lower the number of deaths on our highways in 1958. They are depending on you to help them, and the best way to do your part is to drive carefully at all times. Do more that that—watch out for the other fellow too.

WE like Harold Lawrence's new built-in automobile service wash and grease rack. It not only is more convenient to his assistants but it greatly improves the looks of his Standard Service Station. We been intending to say something about this new addition to Harold's business but Christmas got in the way.

THE snow and ice of last week emphasized the fact that the peach growers of this community are getting their needed "dormant hours" on their peach orchards. With the weather continuing as it has been for the past few weeks and no killing frost in the spring Chilton County will have a real peach crop again. Most of the peach growers are ready for a bumper crop, they have waited and suffered financial difficulties severail years in a row now—one good crop will do a lot to set them back on their feet again.

THINGS are so high at the stores these days that a burglar could break in any store in town and escape with hundreds of dollars worth of merchandise or groceries on a bicycle.

CAROLYN, our daughter, has gone to Maine to be with her sister, June, and family. She wrote this week that snow was 14 inches deep Wednesda ymorning. Haven't received any communications since but the next letter we suppose will come out by dog-sled.

WAS there ever a politician and candidate for office who didn't win his college degree by 'hopping' tables, or firing the furnace at his alma mater?

"WHY did you give your roomer notice to move." "Well, I am not one to suspect and do not distrust them, but when a man always hangs his hat over the key hole, there is something mysterious going on."

RUBY Penton is now with Avoline Beauty Shop after having completed an advanced course with Sue Seale at Selma and Montgomery. Goodness knows we haven't had a cold wave in years and they specialize in those things plus machine and machineless permanents, manicuring, etc., etc., etc. Their phone number is 89 and of course they can't deliver you a permanent or anything but they can sure set you up for an appointment. Call Ruby at Avoline's.

Reprimands Detrimental Hospital Policy

CHILTON COUNTY.

In The Circuit Court Of Chilton County, Alabama

January Term, 1958

TO THE HONORABLE OAKLEY W. MELTON, JUDGE OF SAID COURT:

AFTER having been impaneled and receiving your Honor's instructions, we, the Grand Jury, proceeded to investigate all matters that came before us and herewith submit the following report:

During our deliberations we interrogated 76 witnesses in the investigation of 32 cases and are herewith returning 17 true bills.

After having made a personal inspection of the Couse [illegible] are pleased to report that we found it to be clean, neat and orderly The building appears to have been recently repainted and the area adjacent to the building was also clean. At the time of our inspection the building was well heated and the plumbing appeared to be in good working order It was noted that one or two locks within the jail were not working, but other than this deficiency the jail house building is in the best condition that it has been in several years.

Upon an inspection of the Chilton County Courthouse it was found to be still in need of repairs with inadequate sanitary facilities. This Grand Jury desires to go on record as adopting the recommendations of previous Grand Juries that ed a new Courthouse building be erected for Chilton County. Due to the fact that certain members of the governing body of Chilton County are committed to take no [illegible] upon the matter without a vote of the people is hereby recommended that the officials charged with this responsibility place the issue of the erection of a new Courthouse building to a vote of the citizens of Chilton County. It is further recommended that this election be held in connection with the primaries this spring or the general election this fall in order to save expense of a special election on this matter.

O'Neal Elected Head County Cattlemen

AT a meeting of the Chilton County Cattlemen's Association held Friday, January 10th; Earl ton, elected Vice President; and farmer and cattleman was elected as the 1958 head of this organization.

Also elected by the members of the Association were: J. N. Dennis, long time cattle leader of Clanton, elected Cice President; and Charles L Patterson, Clanton, Secretary and Treasurer.

Newly elected directors are: Jack A. Roberts of Montevallo, Rt. 2; E. P. Bean, Clanton; and Wallace Fox, Clanton, Rt. 3.

In formulating plans for operation of beef herd improvement program, the Association voted to secure a set of portable scales. Portable scales are to be used in recording cattle and calf weights in cooperative herds and in assisting 4-H Club members in fitting beef project animals for show and sale. Securing this important piece of cattle equipment will probably be the joint effort of the Cattlemen and other groups.

PATTERSON CALVES SETTING RECORD

Calloway, Coosa Nugget Win In Alapoco Contest

RECENTLY the judges for the 1957 Alabama Power Company Fishing Contest decided the winners and a winner from Clanton was among the Smallmouth Bass Division winners. He was Joe Ben Calloway and his "whopper" weighed in at 5 lbs. 10 ozs. This bass, which he caught on August 25, 1957 won him third place in that division and placed a trophy in his hands.

Also in the Contest which covers all Chilton County lakes on the Coosa River, was a winner in the White Lake Bass Division. It was none other than Dr. J. L. Bennett's "Coosa Nugget", locally manufactured bait. Morrell Ingram of Tallassee won first place in the division on this Chilton County product, with a little of his own fishing ability and ingenuity thrown in, no doubt.

It is interesting to note that all the "spooks", "wrigglers" and what have you still don't replace "old Dr. Worm" even though the artificial bait does catch the biggest "whoppers".

One of the judges in the contest was also a local product. He is Rep. Francis W. Speaks, local lawyer and sportsman and Representative from Chilton County to the State Legislature.

CARD OF THANKS

WE wish to express our thanks to our many friends for the kindness shown us during the illness and death of our mother, Mrs. Cora McGraw. For the beautiful flowers and for the comforting words spoken by Bro Glover and Bro Cook. May God bless each of you is our prayer.—The McGraw Children.

JANUARY 24TH—

Local FTA Making Tentative Plans For State Meet

SINCE the thirteenth annual state convention of Alabama's Future Teachers will convene on January 24 at Alabama College, Montevallo, local members of the organization are making tentative plans, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Sarah Mullins, to send representatives to this all important meeting.

The local chapter of FTA is active in their quest for higher education and learning. In an interview Monday with Mrs. Mullins, your reporter learned that the Future Teachers are learning practical methods of teaching not only through "book learning" but also through movies seen on various subjects pertinent to their future profession.

Most recently the group enjoyed a movie on "Skippy And The Three R's". It was an enlightening revelation on the methods of a first grade teacher and her interest in her pupils at home as well as at school and how the two atmospheres so intermingled.

FTA is growing in Chilton County. Watch for further developments.

WE heard someone say the other day that if your conscience has good brakes your character will not skid.

WHEN some men air their knowledge they seem to think they are raising a minature cyclone.

THE world is full of people who never feel the least bit comfortable unless they are making someone else uncomfortable.

SOME people we know are so disagreeable the only way to get along with them is to get along without them.

IT'S TOO bad that the fellow who is carried away with his cleverness isn't.

THE man who succeeds must work hard, but not half so hard as the man who fails.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE---

PRESIDENT Eisenhower's vigorous message, a strongly-worded report on the state of the Union has given our lawmakers the first comprehensive picture of their top priority jobs for the months ahead.

The President pointed out that in view of the Soviets' "total cold war" he would restrict himself to "an outline of action designed to focus our resources upon the two tasks of security and peace".

If this is accomplished it will be the first forward step taken by the Republican administration even though, to all, it was obvious that a strong leadership was long needed for the past several years.

Eight items were involved in the President's address. "I [illegible] desirable, they are imperative", he said.

At the head of the list, the President placed reorganization of the military on which he promised specific recommendations which his own conclusions were "final-ized". This, he said would be "soon". "I am not attempting today, he said, "to pass judgment on the charge of harmful service rivalries. But one things is, sure, whatever they are, America wants them stopped".

Accelerated defense effort included improved warning equipment, more base facilities and standby crews, stepped-up missile program "and, for some years, more advanced aircraft". Also, in this category the President listed atomic submarines and cruisers, missile ships, anti-submarine weapons.

Next came the need for increased military and economic aid. He cited the phrase "give away program" as a "catchword" that has been a "great obstacle", and said: "We cannot afford to have one of our most essential security programs shot down with a slogan!"

The President urged a five year extension of the Trade Agreemnt Act with broadened Excutive Authority to stimulate mutual trade. He asked laws to permit exchange of scientific and technical information with friendly countries; a billon dollar four-year program for expanding EDUCATION AND RESEARCH. WE WOULD NEED, HE SAID, AND ADDITION OF $1.3 billion for defense in the current fiscal year, and an increase of $4 billion next year. Congress would have the task of cutting or postponing other programs to keep spending within income.

No one expects that the Congress will quail at the military demands. But the solons may be expected to question further destruction of tariff protection, and whether the failure to increase foreign aid would be "reckless folly"- as the President said - or whether such an increase would be compounding an earlier folly. Are our economic assets "more than equal to the task"?

"The world is waiting," the President said, "to see how wisely and decisively a free representative Government will act".

It is indeed.

And HEAR BY "TUCK"

CHIEF of Police C. E. Tucker has faults like the rest of us and has the disposition of a police chief, but, by golly, we admire him for what he is. He has something that few of us have and fewer are able to hang onto and that's the ability to admit he's wrong when he feel's he truly is. We received a note from him this week with reference to the Safety Figures at the school zones and he agreed with us. Only one thing left to do Chief, and that's to offer our services in any way we're capable. One thing we won't do however, and that's replace one of those statues

YOU Can't say Chilton County News is not well read. We now have supporting proof on the matter. Mr. W. A. Jones of Verbena, Rt 2, when he came in to renew his subscription last week related to us the path which just one copy of the paper covers. Is seems when Mr. Jones finishes with the News he passes it on to a friend at Spigener, Mr. Joe Nation, and Mr. Nation in turn sends it to a brother in Wetumpka, Mr. Jim Nation, to enjoy. The News, it would seem, is not only well read it's also "well traveled" too.

AND here on the subject of travel: reminds us that our youngest Sis is, after traveling to the state of Maine, enjoying her trip tremendously. She has seen Washington, D. C., N ewYork and many other sites which she never thought could. She is with our other Sis (she frowns on being called "elder") and her family and will be there for a spell. Our brother-in-law gave us an enlighting bit of news about the people of Maine which would indicate that they have a sense of humor second only to Alabamaians. It seems that for the lack of a bitter term they call themselves "Maimiacs". We hope the local Chamber of Commerce up there knows about this. If not, we may find that their sense of humor is not what "maine" cracked it up to be. After all, they are (if you'll pardon the protrusion) "Yankees".

PUBLIC Apathy is a disease of the body alright, but the old-fashioned term for it is "laziness".

IT IS our sincerest hope that our Congressmen go back to Washington with a renewed spirit for this all important Session of this great body. All are men of integrity. Some however, are men the people of proper leadership. We know for a fact that our Alabama Senators and Representatives are of the highest calibre and have only the best interests of Alabamians in mind and heart. If the other states can say the same about their elected legislators, we will see action, in the very broadest sense during the next few months. We are taught to fight for what we believe. Men of integrity fight with reasoning, brains an dtheir undying faith in the Almight. Thus the action we pick of will be of the noblest and we might all the most effective. The eyes of Alabama are upon you gentlemen. Live up to our expectations and faith in your abilities to lead us in the rigth direction.

BIGGEST disadvantage in trying to be a Christian is that there are so many ideas and opinions about what constitutes one.

ALABAMA HIGHWAY PATROL MAKES ANNUAL REPORT

THE Alabama Highway Patrol investigated 11,100 rural traffic accidents during the year, 1957, which was 1,163 less than 1956.

During the year, 1957, there were 535 fatal accidents reported compared to 632 for 1956. (A fatal accident is a traffic accident which results in the death of one or more persons.) There were 97 less fatal accidents reported for 1957 than for 1956.

As o. January 6, 1958, 898 traffic deaths had been reported for the year 1957. 708 rural traffic deaths and 190 urban traffic deaths, which occurred in the municipalities of the State. The traffic fatalities for 1956 were 976—780 rural traffic deaths and 196 urban traffic deaths. We had 78 less traffic deaths in the State during 1957 than we had in 1956, which was a reduction of 8 per cent in our State traffic deaths last year as compareg to 1956.

The reported personal injuries were down 1,013 in 1957, as compared to 1956. In 1956, we had 5,896 personal injuries reported as compare! to 4,883 for 1957.

Thirty-one per cent of the fatal accidents reported in 1957 were multiple death accidents. Accidents in which two or more persons were killed. During the year, 1957, there were 66 accidents where two persons were killed, 13 accidents where 3 persons were killed, 4 accidents in which 4 persons were killed, 6 accidents where 5 persons were killed, and 1 in which 7 persons were killed.

Many of these were head-on collisions and high speed accidents. Most of these accidents resulted from improper driver attitude, poor judgment, and violations of traffic laws and safety rules. The driver attitude and the human element was the principal factor in the traffic accidents, which occurred during the year, 1957.

Based on the estimated loss of $110,000 per traffic death, the economic loss to Alabama in 1957, was $98,670,000.00. The actual estimated property damage in the traffic accidents which occurred in Alabama during 1957 was $5,213,015.00

Colonel Bill Lyerly, Director of Public Safety stated that with the 1957 record better than that of 1956, we cannot afford to relax. As long as people are being injured and killed on our streets and highways, we must continue to "Back the Attack Against Traffic Accidents."

He said, "The cooperation of the people of this State made this record possible." He also stated, "With the continued support of the press, radio, television, and the citizens of Alabama, we can make 1958 our safest year on the streets and highways of our State."

ACROSS THE EDITOR'S DESK

FOR PRESIDENT OF AEA DISTRICT V

Drew Collier

BLOUNT County Teachers are presenting Drew Collier, principal of Cleveland High School, as candidate for President of District V of the Alabama Education Association for the coming year.

In asking for the vote of other teachers in District ...o. V for their candidate Blount County Teachers call their attention to these facts.

Mr. Collier, has proved himself a careful and responsible worker and leader at Cleveland High School for the past 17 years as teacher, coach, and presently as principal.

In 1937 Mr Collier married Lois Lawrence of Steele, Alabama and they have one child, who is in the first grade at Cleveland.

He has held various positions in the County Teachers Association and is now president of the Principal's group and chairman of the active Legislative Committee.

In community life Mr. Collier is a Deacon in his church, a Sunday School Teacher, a member of the Civitan Club in Oneonta, and serves on the Executive Committee of the Alumni of Jacksonville State College.

Blount County Teachers feel that the cause of education will be strengthened by the election of more leaders from the rural counties and smaller school systems. These systems should be encourged to present their qualified leaders believing that teachers in the larger systems will recognize the extra power to be gained by electing leaders from many parts of the state. Please vote for Blount County's Drew Collier for president of District V of the AEA and help broaden the leadership if the State Educational Forces. By: Sudie C. Hicks, Remlan, Alabama, President of Blount County Department of Classroom Teachers.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

WITH the prospect of a long and difficult session ahead, the 85th Congress reconvened on Tuesday of last week under continued Democratic leadership.

In the House, the Democrats number 232 while the Republican Party is represented by 199 members. There are four vacancies that are expected to be filled in special elections by three Democrats and one Republican.

"The margin of control in the Senate, where no vacancies exist, is considerably smaller with 50 Democrats and 46 Republicans making up the membership.

ISSUES AHEAD

Predictions are already being made that the Second Session of the 85th Congress will be unable to complete its business before Labor Day. With many important issues confronting Congress, these predictions may well prove correct.

Increased defense spending, with particular emphasis on an accelerated missile program, will undoubtedly receive top priority. In addition, there may be an early attempt to reorganize the defense set-up in an effort to bring an end to inter-service bickering.

Other issues that will probably be debated during the current session include an expanded civil defense program; scholarships for science students; increased postal rates; a strengthened foreign aid program; extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act; anti - racketeering legislation; further extension of corporate income and excise taxes; technical changes in other tax laws to eliminate existing inequities; proposed changes in the immigration laws; extension of the Small Business Administration; Alaska - Hawaii statehood; pay increases for military personnel, postal workers, and other government employees; and legislation dealing with agriculture, housing, and the regulation of natural gas rates.

STATE OF THE UNION

A number of these issues were emphasized by President Eisenhower in his annual State of the Union message which he delivered personally to a joint session of Congress last Thursday.

The President's message was well received by most of the members of Congress although his recommendations were more general in nature than some had expected. He indicated, however, that he would spell out his legislative requests more specifically in his subsequent budget and economic messages.

ORIGIN OF THE BIBLE

Preservation of The Book

THE Originator of the Bible is likewise its Preserver. He it is that caused to be recorded the statement: "The word of the Lord endureth for ever." (I Pet. 1:25; Isa. 40:8) How do we know that this proclamation stands true to our lay, when there is not in existence a single original or autographed Bible manuscript, either of the Hebrew Scriptures or of the Greek Scriptures? No existing complete manuscript or handwritten copy of the Hebrew Scriptures is earlier than A. D. 1008 (now preserved in Leningrad), and none of the complete or nearly complete Greek manuscripts of the Christian Scriptures are earlier than the fourth century after Christ.

Although every original manuscript is lost, has vanished or apparently perished, there are a great many ancient copies of the entire Bible, and even more ancient manuscripts of parts of the Bible extant. The number of extant ancient manuscripts of the Hebrew Scriptures is about 1,700. Then there are scattered through the earth about 4,000 ancient manuscripts of the Greek Scriptures in the original language, and about 9,000 copies of early versions of translations of the Greek Scriptures.

Until the destruction of the first "book of the law, was kept preserved by the side of the ark of temple by the Babylonians, the the law, and put it in the side of the ark covenant of the LORD the covenant. "Take this book of your God, that it may be there for a witness against thee." (Deut. 31:26) Joshua again at the end of the book of the law of God." (Josh. 24:26) Samuel did the same: "Then Samuel told the people the manner of the kingdom, and wrote it in a book, and laid it up before the LORD." (1 Sam. 10:25) These passages testify to the preservation of the Bible canon.

An important incident be speaking the preservation of the Scriptures is the discovery of the lost and forgotten "book of the law" in the temple in the eighteenth year of Josiah in 641 B. C., when after a period of religious idolatry the true worship of Jehoviah was restored. (2 Ki. 22:1-10; 2 chron. 34:14-18) During the captivity in Babylon the Scriptures were preserved. Daniel writes (9:2): "In the first year of his (Darius') reign I, Daniel understand by books the number of the years, whereof the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah the prophet, that he would accomplish seventy years in the desolations of Jerusalem." After the return from the exile in Babylon Ezra is found reading the law to the people resettled in the Holy Land. - - Neh. 8:1-18.

Not all of the Jewish exiles who in 537 B. C. returned from Babylonian captivity spoke or understood the Biblical Hebrew. The younger generation spoke Aramaic or Syriac, a Semitic language related to Hebrew. When the Levites read the law to them they had to 'read distinctly and give the sense', as recordede at Nehemiah 8:8; that is, they paraphrased the Hebrew text or translated it ferely into Aramaic. These peraphrases were called "Targums", which means "interpretations" or "paraphrases". For centuries these Targums were handed down orally from generation to generation. The Jews were averse to translating the Hebrew Scriptures into another language, because they held them so sacred. But several centuries later those peraphrases were gradually committed to writing. Extant today are various written Targums of all the Hebrew Scriptures except Daniel, Ezra and Nehemiah.

Further evidence of God's preserving his Word during the five centuries from Ezra to Christ are versions or translations into other languages. The oldest of these is the Samaritan Pentateuch. It was produced by mixed population of religious hybrids that was settled in Samaria by the Assyrians, after they had led away captive the ten tribes of Israel, in 740 B. C. That copy was made about 450 years before Christ (the extant manuscript, however, is of a far later date.) Strictly speaking, it is not a translation of the original Hebrew. It is a transliterated Hebrew text of the Penatateuch written in Samaritan characters and interspread with some Samaritan idoms. Hence the Samaritan Pentateuch reaches back further for its origin than any other except the Hebrew itself. This copy substantially agrees with the texts of the Jews, with the exception of a number of minor variations.

About 280 B. C. the Hebrew Scriptures began to be translated in Egypt into the Greek language. This Greek version is called Septuagint. A great number of copies of that translation were made and distributed throughout the ancient world. It played its part in the preservation of God's Word by becoming the basis for translations into other languages.

As to the Christian Greek Scriptures, their genuine text has been preserved not only in the Sinaitic and Vatican 1209 MSS., but in about 4,000 more Greek-language MSS., in addition to nearly 9,000 other-language MSS. of ancient versions. From the years of their writing, the Greek Scriptures were the subject of much discussion, and so many Scripture texts are quoted in an immense literature of the post-apostolic period that almost the entire text of the Greek Scriptures could be compiled from these quotations.

No other book in the world has ever received such a reverent and fastidiously careful treatment throughout centuries as has the Bible. It has been copied by scribes who regarded mistakes with holy terror. In order to make the Word of God known its copyists and translators often added to their painstaking labor the sacrifice of their lives. The ancient Greek copyists, for the purpose of a checkup, recorded the number of words written. The professional Hebrew scribes carefully counted not only the words but the letters also. The written Hebrew consisted until centuries after Christ only of consonants, and the omission or addition of a single letter would often have changed a word into another. If they detected the slightest error, the miswritting of a single letter, that entire section of the roll was rejected as unfit for synagogue use. Thereupon that section was cut out and replaced by a new and faultless one. They read aloud each word before writing; to write even a single word from memory was regarded as gross sin. It is said that religious scribes prayerfully wiped their pen before writing the word Elohim (God) or Adonay (Lord), and that they religiously washed their whole body before writing the sacred name "Jehovah". The accuracy of those professional Hebrew scribes was passed on to a good degree to the non-professional copyist of the Christian Greek Scriptures.

But notwithstanding all the painstaking accuracy of the copyist and all the scholarship of the proofheaders, quite a number of mere acribal errors got into the text bespeaking the imperfection of humans. These errors would be repeated by the man that afterward copied from this, who would also sometimes add other slight errors of his own. It is evident, therefore, as copies multiplied, that the errors would be likely to increase with them. For this reason the earlier the manuscript the more likely it is to be correct.

The preservation of the Holy Scriptures is divine miracle; not only their preservation as a book (since no other book and its students, copyists, translators and publishers have been so relentlessly persecuted with prison, fire and sword), but also the preservation of the textual integrity in spite of human shortcomings. The numerous scribal errors are, on the whole, of little importance. They bearing upon the integrity of the Bible is negligible. The remarkable thing is not that fallible scribes made errors, but that they made so few that are of any consequence. Those errors have been detected and corrected by careful and scholastic comparison and collection of the multitude of extant manuscripts and versions. The result of such careful, critical revisions is the reliable Bible texts.

During the dark ages attempts were made to keep the Bible hidden from the people but by a miracle of the Almighty God it was preserved down to our present time.

Authenticity of the Bible will follow soon.

ABUNDANT LIFE

MEDICAL DOCTOR RELATES MIRACLE

A miracle can not be proven to anyone not willing to believe. On the other hand no proof is needed for those believing in God and having fellowship with Him. Henry Drummond, the great French philosopher, once said "The heart hath its reasons whereof the reason (the mind) knows not." Yet for the benefit of those with open but uncertain minds and hearts, any claims to a healing, presented as authentic, must bear the stamp of definite proof before I approve it as evidence of a genuine miracle.

But let me remind you who wish to believe in God's mighty power to help us that it takes only one miracle to prove the existence of such—not a series, not even two.

Certainly miracles occur! HERE IS A MIRACLE:

Dr. Rebecca Beard, B.S., M.D., practiced medicine and surgery in Kansas City and St. Louis before giving up her practice to engage in the ministry of healing solely through love, faith and prayer. She was visited by Mrs. Alice Newton who said, "I am in great need." Her abdomen was larger than that of a woman at full pregnancy. She had the dreaded cachexia. Together they mapped out a program of Bible reading, hymn singing and prayer. One night the miracle happened.

During that night, Dr Beard said, Mrs. Newton had a vision of the crucifixion. As the cross was being lowered into its socket, she thought of how the jar would hurt her Master. She cried out, "Oh, my Jesus" as she put her hand up to steady His body. Her hand dropped to her abdomen She awoke. Turning on the light she realized her abdomen was perfectly flat The huge accumulation was gone!

The doctor was called When he arrived he was momentarily speechless. Rushing around the bed he knelt at her side His prayer came short and fast "What passed? What came away? Was there water? Was there blood? Did you perspire heavily? What was it?" To all she truthfully answered, "Nothing." Finally his questions ceased, for her answers continued, "No, nothing passed—nothing came away."

At last he said, 'No one but God could perform a miracle like that!" One week later she was weighed. She had lost 83½ pounds! It had disappeared overnight. It could not be rationalized away. It was an instantaneous healing. No one could explain where this 83½ pounds had gone in 3 hours. That was a miracle

"She lives today (1950)," wrote Dr. Beard. "This happening has had a strange sequel During the past twelve years the Leavenworth paper and the Kansas City Star have mentioned this remarkable recovery each January on the anniversary of Alice's healing."

Dr Rebecca Beard told this story in a Methodist Church, explaining this wonderful deliverance by saying that God answered prayer.

There is power in prayer, help for those who dare to believe. Jesus came that you might have life and have it more abundantly

Extending A Great Discovery

Mention fermentation to most people, and they think of beer — or maybe sauerkraut. But to the great French scientist Louis Pasteur, fermentation was the key to a whole new concept of life — a startling insight which enabled him to lay the foundation of modern medicine.

Just a hundred years ago, Pasteur plunged the scientific world into frantic controversy when he declared that fermentation is caused by living micro-organisms. Until Pasteur's discovery, most scientists believed that fermentation -- which produces alcohol, lactic acid and many other important substances — was purely a chemical process. The yeasts or other "germs" found in profusion in the brews were regarded merely as accidental invaders. Not only was this mistaken, these germs were the very essence of the process.

The notion that living things too tiny to [illegible] with a [illegible] and powerful [illegible] it made [illegible] to the [illegible] ... scientists [illegible] parts of the world gathered in New York for the Pasteur Fermentation Centennial, an event marking the anniversary of the publication of Pasteur's paper of 1857. The conference, chaired by Dr. James A. Shannon, director of the National Institutes of Health, was sponsored by Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc., world leader in fermentation chemistry and [illegible] develo[illegible].

It was this study of fermentation which turned Pasteur, a chemist by training and precision, to the study of the processes of life — a turning point with enormous consequences for the health of the world.

Today, an entire branch of the chemical industry is based on fermentation, and from this industry comes one of the world's greatest boons — [illegible]. They bring Pasteur's researches full circle: the fermentation process he studied now helps fight the disease germs whose importance he established.

One subject which Pasteur wanted to explore, but never managed to find time for, was the chemical interplay between the sick patient and the germ that invaded him. Modern research [illegible] discussed [illegible] fermentation [illegible] J. Dr. Pasteur Vallery-Radot, who looks amazingly like his eminent grandfather, also discussed modern investigations and applications of Pasteur's key discoveries.

Participants included scientists from the United Kingdom, the USSR, France, Japan, and Cuba, as well as the United States. The conference was attended by more than 800 scientists from colleges and universities, scientific foundations, industry, Federal and state governments and United Nations [illegible].

Thus, though a century has passed, the genius of Pasteur continues to influence the mind of science throughout the world.

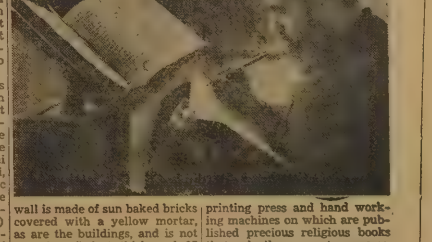
Ancient Monasteries In The Desert



Still today in the Libyan and Arabian Deserts there are old Christian Monasteries where monks continue to respect the strict discipline established by Saint Pachomas many centuries ago. Thirty years ago the excursion to these convents was a very long and tiring expedition that could not be made except on camel back. Today, this visit has become one of the most picturesque and pleasant trips to be made by the tourist.

The Wadi Natrun monasteries are near to Cairo in the Natrun Valley. These convents are built along a line that runs Northwest from the beginning of the Valley. Two convents are close to each other, the Amba Bchai convent and that of the Suryani, or Syriac, for when monastic life started here, the monks were grouped according to their nationality. The Deir (convent) Abu Makar and the Deir Baramos are respectively situated twelve miles to the Southwest and seven miles Northwest of the Suryani Convent.

The four Wadi Natrun conventes are built more or less along the same plan. But the most interesting of them is Deir el-Suryani, erected in the 7th century. It covers an area of about 2,500 acres including the different buildings, courtyards and gardens. Convents are always situated where water supply is abundant. The enclosure wall is made of sun baked bricks covered with a yellow mortar, as are the buildings, and is not less than 7 feet thick and 37 feet high.

Within the walls of the convent the monks do all their own work, while they live retired from the world. Although the contemplative life they lead does not allow them much time for meals, they feed themselves with their own produce just as they have done for centuries. Their diet consists mainly of bread, beans and dates and occasionally oranges and olives.

Deir el-Suryani has its own printing press and hand working machines on which are published precious religious books that only the convent possesses. The press is also used to produce many other works.

Whoever wishes to do so may become a monk. All that is required is a period of observation and preparation of one year. Monks make vows to devote themselves to chastity, poverty and a sedentary life. Bishops and patriarchs are chosen from among them. The Orthodox Patriarch of Egypt is elected by the monks of all the different monasteries.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

TENNIS ELBOW

TENNIS elbow, according to a leading industrial physician, isn't tennis elbow at all, it's radiohumeral bursitis. This type of bursitis is not a result of playing tennis, although tennis players may become victims of the disorder.

In a study of 314 cases of what has popularly been termed tennis elbow, bowling elbow and golf elbow, the industrial medical man we're speaking of has not found any definite occupational injury to be an actual cause of the bursitis. There were, however, rheumatic conditions found in the history of these particular cases. The primary cause of so-called tennis elbow is now believed to be a metabolic disturbance in the elbow brought on by either dietary, nervous, or hormonal disorders.

Medical men further insist that radiohumeral bursiti is one of the rheumatic diseases and should be classed with rheumatoid arthritis osteoarthritis, gout bursal and tendon conditions of the shoulder and other sites. This bursitis condition is most commonly found in the fourth and fifth decade of life. Why then, is it called tennis elbow, and so listed in many dictionaries including medical ones? In tennis playing there is excessive turning and twisting of the arm and wrist but it is seriously questioned if these gestures, either in recreation or work, will themselves cause an inflammation in or around the elbow. Such motions admittedly can irritate an alreadp inflammed structure and thereby increase the discomfort and probably be a factor in chronicity.

One good reason why radiohumeral bursitis may have been given the label tennis elbow is because many tennis players can be found in the 35 to 50 age group, in which the majority of cases appear. Then, too, many tennis players are at the economic level where the nervous tension of business and dietary indiscretion in social life are customarily a part of daily living.

FARM—

SUPERMARKETS TO SERVE YOU BETTER

FARM supermarkets to meet the changing nature of farming and farm living are viewed as a distinct possibility for the next decade. The pattern ha been set by suburban shopping centers which have become highly successful.

Such farm centers would mean one-stop shopping for all farm needs with everything available from tractors and other machinery to insecticides, fertilizers, feeds and hardware. The centers also would have banking facilities to handle all financial requirements, and an auction house where farmers could move some products directly.

This new marketing concept is reported in the current issue of the authoriative publication Agribusiness Outlook, which quotes C. D. Sivord, general manager of American Cynamid Co's. Farm and Home Division.

Mr. Siverd says these supermarkets of the future would be staffed by consultants who would advise on individual problems of the farmer. Thus the farmers would be able to buy those items that would meet his special needs. The publication adds:

"The farmer would be informed, for instance, as to what insecticides, herbicides and fertilizers could be applied simultaneously in one trip with one piece of equipment. A staff veterinarian would advise on purchase of animal feed and animal health products which work compatibly. Entomologists would help him select insecticides and plant health products."

Mr. Siverd says farmers within a 50-miles area could be served by one-stop supermarket economically and profitably.

The centers, as Mr. Siverd sees them, would contain: An agricultural chemicals department selling defoliants, insecticides, herbicides; a fertilizer department; a mechanical department selling pumps, motors, power equipment, tools, etc.; seed and feed, specialty and millwork an dbuilding supplies departments; branch bank; auction market; a retail food store and food market.

[illegible] the Social Security laws, veterinarians, [illegible] Internal Revenue [illegible] ham district.

In conjunction with Mr. Patterson's announcement, J. W. Overstreet, Jr., district manager of the Birmingham office of the Social Security Administration pointed out that since the extension of coverage to these professional self-employed persons, they are now building the same kind of insurance protection for themselves and their families that the Federally-operated system has afforded most other self-employment individuals since 1951.

Mr. Patterson stated that the law [illegible] the first taxable [illegible] veterinarians, [illegible] on a calendar year basis are required to pay a self-employment tax on their net earnings for each calendar year [illegible] if their net earnings [illegible] $400 or more in a taxable year. The rate for 1957 is 3.375 per cent on the first $4200 of net earnings. This amounts to a maximum [illegible] $142.13 on $4200. These taxes are in addition to any income taxes [illegible] pay. Schedule C, (Form 1040) From Business or Profession, must be properly completed showing the Schedule SE section and submitted at the same time as the other forms that are filed as part of the Federal income tax return.

As a participant under the old-age and survivors insurance program, Mr. Overstreet added, the professional individual is purchasing insurance protection against the loss of income himself and his family [illegible] due to old-age and such misfortunes as total disability or death of the family breadwinner. When one of these hazards is incurred, and the participant or his survivors otherwise qualify, monthly benefits are paid to replace, in part, the earnings that are [illegible].

Mr. Patterson and Mr. Overstreet still emphasized the law is compulsory coverage for all self-employed persons, with the exception of [illegible] whose net earnings amount to at least $400 in the taxable year. They also pointed out that the taxpayer should [illegible] to show his social security number so that he may receive proper credit for his payment. Failure to indicate the account number may result in no credit and [illegible] loss of future benefits.

Where the taxpayers does not have an account number, he should obtain one from the social security office so that it is available at income tax filing time. Questions about the filing of tax returns should be addressed to the Internal Revenue Service.

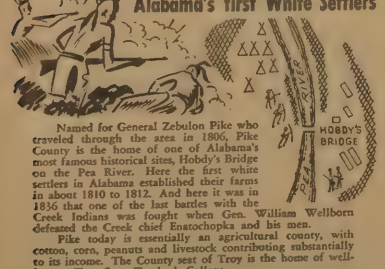
A Salute to PIKE COUNTY

COLORFUL HISTORY

Beginning with Alabama's first White Settlers



Named for General Zebulon Pike who traveled through the area in 1806, Pike County is the home of one of Alabama's most famous historical sites, Hobdy's Bridge on the Pea River. Here the first white settlers in Alabama established their farms in about 1810 to 1812. And here it was in 1836 that one of the last battles with the Creek Indians was fought when Gen. William Wellborn defeated the Creek chief Enatochopka and his men.

Pike today is essentially an agricultural county, with cotton, corn, peanuts and livestock contributing substantially to its income. The County seat of Troy is the home of well-known Troy State Teacher's College.

Nine other counties in the United States have been named in honor of General Pike who discovered the famed Pike's Peak.

Choosing a name for a county or city has always been the inalienable right of Alabamians, just like the right to choose a beverage . . . whether it be coffee, buttermilk or beer.

Clanton Loses To Lanier; Beats Maplesville

THE C. C. H. S. Tigers open their post holiday basketball season last week with Lanier and Tuesday night against Maplesville Red Devils.

The Tigers found the going rather rough against the hard inning, fast shooting Sidney Lanier poets of the Capital City last Friday night as they found themselves on the short end of 72-71 battle. However, they had much better luck against Maplesville Red Devils winning that one by a score of 44 to 36.

Guard Ken and Rose paced Lanier's blue and white past the Tigers in a tense battle at the Lanier gymn. Thomas Minor lead the C. C. H. S. effort with 21 points, close behind was forward Hershel Billingsley with 20 points

The poets got off to a fast start and at half time found themselves leading 32 to 31. In the finale period they pulled away from the Tigers only to have to fight off a desperate C. C. H. S. rally.

With the score standing at 72 to 70 Hershel Billingsley dropped in a fowl shot, and C. C. H. S. hopes flaved only to be dampened by the shrill reffrees whistle indicating the end of the game.

The Tigers found the home court better for their purposes Tuesday night when they downed Maplesvilleby a score of 44 to 36.

The highligts of the game was the Tigers amazing rebounding power. Thomas Minor and Hershel Billingsley constantly cleared the backboards for the locals.

Highpoint honors again went to Thomas Minor as he bucketed 11 points.

Coastal Bermuda Increasing Annually

AUBURN, Ala.—Coastal bermuda is a crop with a future. And if its past progress is any indication of what it holds in store for Alabamians, farmers had just better hold onto their hats.

For the state's coastal bermuda has grown, in the past seven years, from a 2500-acre crop to its present day acreage of 81,000. And the road ahead still looks prosperous for coastal.

"There is a good reason for this rapid increase in acreage," Agronomist O. N. Andrews said here this week. "Many farmers have given coastal a fair trial—and they like it."

The API Extension specialist pointed out a couple of examples to illustrate the popularity of coastal bermuda.

"A grade-A dairyman in Tuscaloosa County planted four acres of coastal four years ago," said Andrews. "Sprigs from this patch were used to plant 18 additional acres on his land and 30 acres on a neighboring farm. The dairyman grazed 30 head of cattle on 14 acres of coastal and saved 24 tons of good hay from the remaining eight acres.

"In Elmore County," the agronomist continued, "10 acres of coastal planted by a dairyman in 1955 furnished summer grazing for 22 dairy cows, plus making 10 tons of hay. The dairyman planted an additional 30 acres in 1957."

Andrews said that Farm and Home Development demonstrators in Elmore County kept records on recent coastal bermuda hay demonstrations. They reported that 26 acres yielded 42 tons of hay and furnished grazing for an average of one cow per acre.

Land Should Be Plowed Before Jan. Rains

ANBURN, Ala.—January mornings are frosty and cold, but they often grow into warm, sunshiny days.

And during this mild climate, weather-wise gardeners can be seen plowing their fields, breaking ground for the seeding of early spring vegetable crops.

"Actually, most farmers have already completed this job," reports API Extension Horticulturist John Bagby, "and those who haven't, should get to work." He explained that the latter part of January usually sees plenty of rain. Land not plowed before this wet spell may not be dry enough to plow later in February.

By then it's too laae for successful planting of cool weather crops, warned the garden specialist. Lettuce, carrots, beets, cabbage, Irish potatoes, broccoli, and turnips should be ready for harvesting before hot weather. If left in the ground too long, they'll probably producing a good garden. An application of eight to 10 tons per acre of stable manure before breaking the land is a recommended practice, he said. After the ground is plowed and prepared, use six quarts of a good cotton grade fer-

Bagby had other suggestions for bolt or quickly go to seed.

Broilers Need Special Care In Cold Climate

AUBURN, ALA.—January is a time for extra precautions on the part of poultrymen. The buildings in which birds are housed must be kept warm and comfortable at all times, even though the weather outside may be cold, wet, and disagreeable.

Poultry houses should be well ventilated but without drafts. It's easy for litter in the houses to become wet and caked, the poultryman warned, pointing out that wet or caked litter is a sign that more ventilation is needed. But be careful in opening windows on cold, windy days, he said. And leave vents at the floor level closed; they're not needed during the winter.

Proper ventilation takes judgment on the part of the producer. Conditions vary with different types of houses and different ages of birds; young chicks need more heat and less air, and older chickens need more ventilation.

An experienced broiler grower can tell whether chicks are comfortable by watching their actions. However, it's a good idea to have a thermometer for each hover if the brooder is heated by gas or electricity. Check the temperature to make sure it's right, especially if the chickens are young.

When litter around the waterers becomes caked, remove it and add fresh litter. In washing the drinkers, make sure no water spills over.

or three applications. Later, use tilizer per 100 feet of row, in two one pint of nitrate of soda per 100 feet of row as a side-dressing.

Long season crops such as okra, pepper, and eggplant require two side-dressings during the growing period. Keep the garden cultivated to keep down grass and weeds and to break the crust on the soil after rains.

DO you have some bills that you are never going to collect. If so, let's take some action now to show that they are uncollectible and claim them on this year's tax return.

Loans to relatives or friends can be deducted as bad debts. However, they are always given very clase security and you should be prepared to prove the money was in fact a loan; that you have made every reasonable effort to collect, and that it was in no way, shape or form, a gift.

You cannot get a bad debt deduction simply because you do not choose to force collection. Turn those bad accounts over to your attorney or collection agency for action. Do it now if you want th deduct the bad debts this year.

Your bad debts are deductible if—

(1) A valid debt actually was made in 1957 or existed January 1, 1957 and something happened in 1957 that made you believe the debt will never be collected.

(2) The amount of the bad debt must have been included in your income or been a part of your capit.

You cannot have a bad debt deduction for uncollectible wages, fees, rents, etc. If you are a merchant and have a bad debt arising from sales or services, you cannot deduct the bad debt unless you have included the sale in income.

If you are in business your business bad debts are deducted together with your other business costs, on separate Schedule C of the tax return.

If your bad debt is a personal debt the deduction is made on separate Schedule D of the tax return as a short term capital loss. Such losses cannot be deducted from other income in an amount over $1,000 per year. However, they can be deducted from capital gains in any amount.

If you have a bad debt loss of more than $1,000, take $1,000 this year and carry the balance over to 1958. You can deduct $1,000 per year for the next five years, if your loss amounts to that much. You can take it all in any year that you can deduct it from your capital gains.

U. S. Department of Agriculture specialists report that about 96 per cent of U. S. farms and ranches are family-operated. This held true 30 years ago, too.

FOLKS and THINGS About Town

by Ben

JUST been studying the new 1958 Almanac and the information it does contain. Things you just would not believe and couldn't possibly d owithout. For instance, did you know that on Saturday, Sept. 13, 1847 Scott entered Mexico City. It doesn't say who Scott was or why he entered. That's what makes it so fascinating.

DO you know the seasons and when they begin: Vernal Equinox, Spring begins March 20; Summer Solstice, Summer begins June 21; Autumnal Equinox, Autumn begins Sept. 23; Winter Solstice, Winter begins Dec. 22nd.

THERE will be three eclipses in 1958, two of the sun and one of the moon. April 18 an annular eclipse of the sun, visable in Alaska and Hawaii. May 3, a partial eclipse of the moon, not visable in Chattanooga and St. Louis. October 12, a total eclipse of the sun, not visable in North America. Information like that.

IT even gives all the moonlight night in 1958 and weather and weather signals and stuff like that there. Well, we're so chucked full of knowledge, we think we will go on to the lighter things.

SUCH as Selective Service ain't taking any young men from Chilton County in January.

AND news comes to us that we may not get a new Health Center after all. Just who is standing in the way we do not know but we think Chilton County should have one and would like very much to see the present formative plans go forward.

THE annual meeting of the stockholders of the Bank of Thorsby was held last week and the same personnel was elected to the various offices. They also increased [illegible] to $50,000. [illegible] late Archie Ogburn and the officers of the Bank of their successful growth and service to the Thorsby community. Directors of the bank are: A. D. Collins, J. R. Ekblad, V. O. Lenoir, P. J. Norwood, J. A. Ogburn and S. M. Pate.

It doesn't take a minute
To prin a little grin that has

It doesn't take an ounce of strength,

New Help..

County Agent Urges Fire Ant Control

YOUR County Fire Ant Committee has met with Federal and State officials to study local applications of this assistance. The information below will give you a workable idea of the procedure to be used.

A total of $2,400,000.00 Federal and $250,000.00 State money was allocated to the Southeastern fire ant infested group of states. This money is to be used in connection with an ant eradication program. This means that individual farms will not be considered to participate in this money. Groups of farmers, preferably a group of farmers comprising an area of approximately 10,000 acres, will have to file a request for a total coverage program. The total cost of materials has been determined to be $4.0- per acre. This cost under the program, is to be shared equally by the Federal and State government and local participants. In other words, if we are to participate in the alloted public monies we must raise in cash, or agree to participate with labor, or equipment, at the rate of approximately $1.35 per acre for every acre of land (total land in a given area.

I would like to emphasize that funds are limited and that they are allocated on a first come - first served basis. If you are interested notify this office at once. We will, from indications of farmers interested, call additional meetings in any area that arises to insure sufficient interest to make the project possible.

Good Cottonseed To Be Scarce In 1958

AUBURN, Ala.—The cottonseed situation facing farmers over the Southeast this year isn't promising

In making a report on the 58 outlook, Seed Crops Specialists said that the supply of good, high-quality [illegible] cottonseed is [illegible] during harvest time.

However, the specialists said that Alabama commercial cottonseed producers saved enough seed before the rains to plant about 40 percent of the alloted acreage. The seed are of good quality and germinate well above 80 percent. In addition, there is a small carry-over of good, high-quality cottonseed from the 1956 crop, and many individuals saved their own supply of planting stock.

Farmers will have to plant an estimated 50 to 50 per cent of the cotton acreage with seed germinating below 80 per cent or with gin-run oil mill seed.

Seed Specialists: We would rather see our farmers use cottonseed of known origin and genetic purity with a germination of 60 percent than for them to use seed germinating 80 per cent or better with un-Certified seed germinating 60 to 80 known origin and genetic purity. per cent will be stamped 'sub-standard in germination.' However, they are inferior only in this one respect."

The seeding rate recommended by API is one bushel per acre of sed germinating 80 per cent or above. So, if a farmer is planting 60 per cent germinating seed, he should use one and one-third bushels of seed per acre to take care of lower germination.

Olds Leads Medium Price Class In New Car Sales

OLDSMOBILE [illegible] ead of all compe[illegible] in the medium price class in the sale of new cars since the 1958 model were introduced, according to Oldsmobile's general manager and vice-president of General Motors, J. F Wolfram.

"I believe this indicates," Wolfram said, "that Oldsmobile will make an even stronger impact on the medium price class market in 1958."

Shelton Motors confirmed the fact that he has been informed by Mr. Wolfram that Oldsmobile is now the leader in the medium price class since the 1958 cars were unveiled.

Wolfram, prior to new model introductions, had predicted a good year for his company. In meeting with automotive writers, he had stated that Oldsmobile expected to take a larger share of medium price class.

"Oldsmobile sales since the introduction of the 1958 models in early November have been higher than during the same period a year ago," Wolfram added. "In the months of November and December, Oldsmobile retail sales increased by 10 per cent over the same period of 1956."

"Public reception of our brilliantly styled 1958 cars would indicate that our optimism is justified. It is apparent that more and more people like Oldsmobile's 'mobile look' and the continued engineering leadership for which Oldsmobile has become famous," Wolfram concluded.

"Lots of men could support a wife if they didn't have to feed her vanity."

To Discuss Problems And Procedures

Vegetable and berry growers are called to discuss Association affairs and to plan marketing activities for 1958 berry and vegetable crops.

The marketing Association has, for several years, been the concentration point for blackberries, pickle cucumbers, and limited quantities of corn and tomatoes. There has been interest expressed by several producers in seeing the Association market other products. A meeting of food crop producers in general, during which an expression of marketing service needs and production intentions can be assembled, should be a constructive influence in our county fruit and vegetable program.

THEY ONLY COUNT THE COLD HOURS

FOR most Alabamians, the unprecedented siege of cold weather which ushered in the new year soon became a nuisance and an abomination, but our neighbors in Chilton County gloried in it to the extent of actually counting the hours during which the wintry blasts prevailed.

This may seem madness to some people, but there was a method to it for Chilton Countians. Whether or not you know it, peach trees, upon which the agricultural economy of Chilton largely depends, require certain periods of dormancy to assure bumper yields and discourage too-early fruiting.

The lowest varieties of trees can get by on 750 hours yearly of cold below 45 degrees, while the largest require up to 1,050 hours.

Last year, Chilton's peaches got rest periods far below requirements, and the results were scanty yields and sparse foliage, by which the trees "breath" and "perspire." This lack of foliage particularly was costly, as it killed enough trees to force replacement of entire orchards.

By the middle of last week, we are informed, Chilton orchards already had enjoyed more than 600 hours of rest, and that should assure them plenty of dormancy before winter has blown its last chilly breeze.

For those familiar with the deliciousness of Chilton peaches, this is enough to compensate for protracted cold weather. In fact, there are a lot of Alabamians who would be happy to count along with Chilton Countians, if they only knew how to get into proper cadence.—Selma Times Journal.

REPUBLICANS ARE IN TROUBLE

WHEN the Chairman of the Republican National Committee has to call on the Northern Negroes for help they are in trouble.

Meade Alcorn, Chairman of the Republican National Committee stated in a speech to the Capitol Press Club, a negro organization, last week that Northern Negroes must help to replace Senate and House Democrats with Republicans next November "if further civl rights legislation is to be made possible."

Alcorn was quoted as saying that a vote for any Democrat is a vote to continue control of powerful congressional committees in the hands of Southerners opposed to civil rights bills.

This, in our opinion, is a clear admission by the leader of the Republican Party that without the help of the Northern Negro vote they are powerless.

Norhern Republican properganda has poisoned the friendships of the white and colored races in the South. Where the races in the past have been friends and neighbors they now look on each other with suspicion and distrust.

The Republican Party is directly responsible. Had there been no "Little Rock" incident, or other such "mistakes" by the poor leadership displayed by the Republican Party, there would be no cause for worry about race troubles in the South.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

CONGRESS was asked by the President in his annual budget message last week to appropriate funds totaling $73.9 billion for federal expenditures for fiscal year 1959. If approved, this sum will constitute the highest peacetime budget in the history of our nation.

Nearly $40 billion of the total amount requested is earmarked for defense spending, an increase of almost one billion dollars over the amount appropriated for the current fiscal year. The increase is designated primarily for the development and production of missiles and new "space-age" weapons.

Linked closely with the defense budget is an additional request of $3.9 billion for foreign aid. That amount is approximately one billion more than Congress appropriated for the same program last year.

The remainder of the President's proposed budget—approximately $36 billion—includes all other anticipated federal expenditures for the next fiscal year.

President Eisenhower predicted in his budget message that anticipated revenues for fiscal 1959 will exceed proposed expenditures. However, there are many who feel the President is overly optimistic and that the 1959 budget, unless reduced by Congress, will not be balanced.

MISSILE FUNDS AUTHORIZED

As we expected, the first legislation to be approved this season by the House of Representatives is connected with the missile program. By a vote of 374-0, House members last We dnesday approved a $549.7 million authorization for an emergency military construction program which includes a new ballistic-missile warning system. This warning system, which had heretofore been kept secret, is designed to detect and give sufficient notice of an enemy attact by ballistic missiles to enable the U. S. Strategic Air Command to become airborne prior to the attack.

The House -approved bill also authorized funds for another launching base for intercontinental ballistic missiles and for certain new facilities for the Strategic Air Command.

MEETING WITH MCELROY

...I attended a breakfast given last week by the new Secretary of Defense, Neil McElroy, for the members of the Foreign Affairs Committee. In addition to the defense secretary, those attending this meeting included Secretary of the Army Wilbur Brucker; Navy Secretary Thomas S. Gates, Jr.; and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Nathan Twining. Following breakfast, we were briefed on certain important phases of our National defense.

Secretary McElroy is faced with a difficult job during this critical period of world history. Important decisions he must make in the months ahead undoubtedly will have a direct bearing on the future security of our nation.

Natl Guard—

Ala. Tops All Southern States In 6 Mos. Trainees

MONTGOMERY—With excellent or superior ratings for 75 percent of its Army units setting a new high last year, the Alabama National Guard today reported another record for its training program. The Alabama National Guard sent more than any other Southern state.

Major General James F. Berry, Alabama Adjutant General, said figures compiled for the annual report of the Adjutant General's Office show 1,393 Army Guardsmen have completed or are currently on 6-month active duty tours. Early last year the Department of the Army made the "hitch" mandtory for National Guard and Reserve recruits with no prior service.

General Berry said that, although Alabama's original quota of spaces in the program was far less than the year end total, arrangements were made with the National Guard Bureau to make room for all Alabama Guardsmen who requested the tour of active duty.

Most of the Alabama citizen-soldiers were assigned to basic training units at Fort Jackson, near Columbia, South Carolina. Late in 1957, a few Alabamians went to Fort Chaffe, Arkansas for their basic training because of a lack of spaces at Fort Jackson.

General Berry also noted that over 300 Air National Guardsmen completed 11-week basic courses at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

Ala. Industry Days Annual Affair Planned

UNDER the General Chairmanship of Frank Samford, President, Liberty National Life Insurance Company and Director and Past President of Associated Industries of Alabama, a state wide leaders has just been concluded at meeting of Alabama Industry Days Birmingham, where they met to make extensive plans for the forthcoming Al... Industry Days celebration.

To Begin Week of April 28

According to Chairman Samford the 1958 Industry Days Week will begin on Monday, April 28 and conclude Saturday, May 3. The theme for this year's state wide week-long event is to be "What Alabama Makes, Makes Alabama" and will be participated in by hundreds of cities and towns throughout the State.

Following the meeting, Chairman Samford stated there was widespread interest in this early spring program which is designed to point up the importance of what private industry and business means to the State's economy. "As an indication of this interest," says Mr. Samford, "everyone of the five sponsoring organizations were well represented at the initial meeting and perious discussion was engaged in." He further stated that plans to revitalize and expand this truly worthwhile endeavor were made and agreed upon. The various co-sponsoring groups which will actively participate in this annual event will be the University of Alabama, Alabama Press Association, Alabama Broadcasters Association, Alabama Junior Chambers of Commerce and Associated Industries of Alabama.

Origin of the Bible And Its' Authenticity

(Following is the Third in a series of articles furnished by the Clanton Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses dealing with the Origin of the Bible.)

Jehovah continues to bring forth to his covenant people corroborative proof that the Bible is His authentic Word of truth, and not the word of man. In order to become better equipped for good worke in Jehovah's service, his witnesses do well to be familiar with the evidence of the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures, because it will enable them to firmly establish the faith of others. Limited space will necessarily limit the proofs; even so, ample proofs can be supplied to convince the reasonable and meek, and fools will never believe until cut off in death. --Ps. 14:1; Isa. 53:1.

From the earliest times the canonical books have been received by the Jews as inspired and as wholly trustworthy documents. The truth of the Scriptural narrative has been attested to by the unanimous testimony of that nation, though a great portion of it is a record of their own repeated disobedience, unfaithfulness, and falling away to idolatry or religion and into the hands of their enemies. The writers speak with all candor and humility about their own shortcomings; they spare no creature. They were faithful witnesses of Jehovah; they suffered and even died for the truth. Seeming indonsistencies may perplex the superficial reader; but they vanish before a reverential and accurate investigation. The contemporary Israelites of the writers, both of the Hebrew and of the Greek Scriptures, always accepted each book as a true record of events.

Profane history confirms the Bible record where names and biographies of historical characters are given, and the same is true relative to the names and locations of historical places. For example, there is an abundance of profane testimony corroborating the story of the Gospels, and some of the testimony comes from anti-Christian historians. Among such historians and writers of the first and second centuries are Flavius Josephus, Tacitus, Suetonius, Pliny the younger, Lucian, Phlegon Trallianus, Celsus and Numenius.. All these testify to the facts that in the reign o Emperor Tiberius Caesar there lived one called Jesus Christ; that he was an extraordinary man who did great miracles; that he was put to death at the command of Pontius Pilate; that there was a phenomenal darkness and earthquake at his execution; that his teachings spread rapidly; and that they attracted many followers, who suffered persecution.

These facts lend further support: Palestine was at that time under a peculiar system of double government, partly Jewish and partly Roman. The narrative of the Greek Scriptures remarkably shows that dual form of administration, a Roman and a Jewish, involving a twofold form of taxation, two modes of capital punishment, two methods of marking time, two military forces, and so on. Also, one finds occuring side by side in the Greek text Latin and Hebrew words, a natural circumstance during this period.

Repeatedly archeological discoveries have proved the Bible record true and have closed the blaspheming mouths of "higher critics" and atheists. Ancient secular records, by monumental inscriptions, coins, remains of cities, and numerous other antiquities unearthed, all unite to verify the Bible. It is noteworthy that plants, animals, birds, fishes, and insects mentioned in the Bible have been found in precise keeping with the plant and animal life of the particular regions mentioned. Furthermore, even the order of creation as given in the first chapter of Genesis is corroborated by geology. Certain forms of plant and animal life are found in certain strata or layers of rock, to which layers geogolists assign a certain period of time. The order in time to which scientists assign the appearance of certain forms of life is in the same order of appearance as the Genesis account of creation sets it forth. Of course, scientists, vying one with the other for attention set fantastic figures of time upon their findings; but the important thing is that the record of creation found in the rockks of the earth agrees with the record in ink in Genesis . And why not? The creator of the one is the Author of the other. Both records are true, even if misinterpreted by scientists and clergymen.

All the foregoing facts are strong and convincing proof of the authenticity of the Bible. But there is evidence many times stronger: the thusandfold and accurate minor and major fulfillments of Biblical prophecies irrefutably proving the Scriptures as inspired history written in advance. Men cannot foretell events, not even one day ahead "Boost not thysel of tomorrow: for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth." (Prov. 27:1) But, "know unto God are all his works form the beginning of the world." Though this foreknowledge of his Jehovah has blessed man by "declaring the end from the beginning(and from ancient times the things that are not yet done". He has inspired men to record these prophecies in his Word, such men themselves not knowing whereof they wrote. (Acts 15:18; Isa. 46:10; 2 Pet. 1:20, 21; 2 Tim. 3:16, 17; Dan. 12:4, 8, 10; 1 Pet. 1:10-12). All men are fallible; despite their possible sincerity their words are not always authenhowever, that men were not the tic. The foregoing texts show authors of the Bible, but merely employed as secretaries to the Author, Jehovah God. And He is Infallible!

If physical facts have come to pass to fulfillment of Bible prophecy, then they constitute the strongest king of circumstantial evidence of the Bible's authenticity, and the reasonable mind is satisfied and faith is firmly established. (John 14:29) Unnumbered Bible prophecies are now fulfilled. Many prophetic dramas are in course of striking fulfillment today. But space rules that we cannot here consider them in detail. Hence the matter will be narrowed down in scope to meet the limiting conditions of space. Prophecies recorded in the Hebrew Scriptures, which were written centuries prior to Jesus' life, will be cited and shown to have been fulfilled in Jesus, hence proving him as Messiah Christ. His words of prophecy will then be cited, and modern events, nineteen centuries later, referred to as fulfillmnts. This will establish Jesus as the Messiah and his word as true and reliable. Then all should be willing to acknowledge him as a credible witness and should accept his testimony concerning the Bible's authenticity.

The following tables shows some of the main events foretold relative to the Messiah. Remember as you study the evidence that the prophecy was written centuries before the fulfillment, and that the events in fulfillment are often corroborated by profane history and other writings.

Jesus of Nazareth Proved to Be the Promised Messiah:

The incident or event, Hebrew Scripture Prophecy, Greey Scripture fulfillment.

Born of the tribe of Judah, Gen. 49:10, Matt. 1:1-3.

Born in Bethlehem, Mic. 5:2, Mat. 2:1, 5, 6.

Born of a Virgin, Isa. 7:14, Matt. 1:22,23.

Not believed in, Isa. 53:1, John 12:38.

Hated without cause, Ps. 69:4, John 15:25.

Rejected, Isa. 53:3; Ps. 69:8; 118:22, 23, John 17:12, Acts 1:20.

One apostle unfaith ul, Ps. 109:8, John 17:12, Acts 1:20.

Betrayed by follower, Ps. 41:9 Matt. 26:14-16, 47-50.

Numbered with sinners, Isa. 53:12, Matt. 27:38.

Lots cast for garments, Ps. 22:18, Matt. 27:35.

No bones broken, Ps. 34:20, John 19:33, 36.

Dies sacrificial death, Isa. 53:5, 8, John 1:29; 1 Cor. 15:3.

All these things were fulfilled in the case of Jesus Christ. Undoubtedly, he was the Messiah. (Luke 24:27, 44). Furthermore, he was the great Prophet Moses foretold. (Deut. 18:15; Acts 3:22, 23). He prophesied of the "last days"; the fulfillments are visible to all. He foretold World War I, famines, pestilences, earthquakes, difficulties within the ranks of his followers, the appearance of an "evil servant" and a "faithful and wise servant", the intense persecution of Jehovah's witnesses, the world-wide gospel-preaching work now going on, and the unsettled conditions among men and their fears and perplexities for the future. (See Matthew 24; Mark 13; Luke 21). He also foretold man's failure in world government following World War I and styled such Kingdom makeshift an "abomination of desolation", and pointed out the final end.

These irrefutable facts stamp Christ Jesus as a true prophet. His Word is reliable. And what is his reliable word concerning the authenticity of the Bible? His direct testimony is "THY WORD IS TRUTH!" (John 17:17). And when one considers that Christ Jesus' words were not his own, but his heavenly Father's, then Jehovar stands supreme as the Voucher for the genuiness of His Word, the Bible . (John 3:34; 7:16.) Thus by one authoritative reference the question is settled with finality. The promised and foretold spirit of God came upon the writers of the Greek Scriptures and caused them to finish off the Bible canon authentically. The entire Bible is God's Word of truth. -- Joel 2:28, 29; John 14:17; Acts 2:16-18; Rev. 1:1-3; 21:5. BIBLE LANGUAGES: HEBREW next in series.

Blackberries Should Be Used As Financial 'Crutch' Says Jones

FARMERS in Chilton Co., who are interested in increasing their farm income should at least consider blackberry production. Blackberries, under good management, usually bring good returns to the growers.

R. Lee Jones, Clanton, Alabama, Rt. 3, says he gets more net money per acre from his 2½ acre of berries than from any other crop. Let's see how Mr. Jones helped Mother Nature produce his 18,833 pounds of marketable blackberries last season, when weather conditions were not at the best.

By January 1st, Mr. Jones had about half of his berry vines hung on trellises. "Now this is a little earlier than recommended", says Mr. Jones, "but I have several reasons for doing this way." First, I can get seasonable labor to hang the berry wood, and too I can pick my days and get more efficient work from my hands." "My berry patch is located in a low place with woods and hills surrounding it, and that has a tendency to break the cold winds early in the spring when the wind can do a lot of damage". "Then too, Mr. Jones continues, if you can get these berries hung by the late cold weather they make me more in that they yield heavier."

After the berries have been hung and the first buds begin to swell, this was the latter part of February, Mr. Jones applied half of his 1200 pounds of 8-8-8 fertilizer per acre of amonum nitrate was applied as a side dressing when the first berries were about half grown and another one hundred pounds per acre was applied after the berry crop was harvested.

Mr. Jones marketed his berries through the Chilton County Fruit and Truck Growers Ass'n., and after the Cooperative deducted his share of operating expenses, he received 10c per pound. "With Mother Nature's cooperation", says Mr. Jones, "I expect to do even better this year on pounds of berries per acre, and I have also a new patch to bring me up to a three acre total."

If you are interested in blackberry production, you should attend the farmers' which is to be held January 28th at 7:00 p. m., at the Thorsby Junior High School, or contact the County Farm Agent's office.

Selden Joins So. Congressmen In New Legislation

LIMITING USE OF FEDERAL TROOPS

REP. Armistead Selden has joined with several other Southern congressmen in introducing legislation that will impose specific limitations on the use of federal troops within a sovereign state.

One of Selden's bills prohibits the President from calling the National Guard into the federal service, except in time of war, threat or invasion, or when requested by the governor or legislature of a state.

A second bill prohibits the use of federal troops to enforce federal court orders and state laws. Both have been referred to the House Armed Services Committee for consideration.

"In ordering federal troops into Little Rock", Selden said, "President Eisenhower, in my opinion, exceeded both his constitutional and statutory authority. Yet, federal troops were sent into Little Rock and are still on duty there at this moment. Should Congress pass the two measures that I have joined with other members of Congress in introducing", Rep. Selden went on to point out, "the limitations on the use of federal troops within a state will be clearly spelled out for the Executive Branch of our government and further Little Rock incidents will be averted".

Selden and other Southern congressmen are urging the Armed Services Committee to schedule hearings on these bills at an early date.

Effects of Radiation

ALL people are exposed to nature's radiations, and many are exposed to radiations from artificial backgrounds, as well as from medical diagonostic and treatment procedures. The latest reports establish that the average exposure of people today from total radiation sources appears to be at a lower level than the point of exposure demonstrated to produce harmful effects in humans and animals Death among radiologists is frequently mentioned, in considering irradiation as possibly contributing to leukemia.

Figures are not in the affirmative, as they show leukemia cases among radiologists to be small in number, although some of these physicians have sustained very large doses of irradiation. Only 17 recorded deaths of radiologists were attributed to leukemia in the United States during the fifteen year period 1938 to 1952. The exposed populations of Hiroshima and Nagasaki in relation to the incidence of leukemia has also been taken into account.

Findings are that, during the six year period 1949 to 1955, there were approximately 95 cases of leukemia reported among 194,000 survivors, or about one out of two thousand. The subject appears to be a matter of weighing the known benefits of radiography against the known, the problematic, and the unknown effects of radiation exposure. "In people who are ill," states the American Trudeau Society, "the needs for radiological studies are great and deserve more weight on the side of diagonostic benefits as opposed to possible hazardous effects of radiation." All radiation that serves no useful purpose should be scrupulously avoided, adds the statement.

Editorially, the New England Journal of Medicine comments that natural or background irradiation can be used with skill and discrimination It is evident that there is no great increase in recorded leukemia deaths in the United States.

Broiler Research Made At Auburn

AUBURN, Ala.—Broiler growers with plenty of grain—particularly those who mix their own rations—can profit by research recently completed by the API Experiment Station.

In reporting the research findings, it was noted that broilers were fed the first seven weeks on broiler mash (20 percent protein). During the remaining two weeks of the experiment, they were fed different ratios of broiler mash with corn meal, broiler pellets, or cracked corn. The most economical gains were made when the birds were fed one part corn meal to three parts mash. The next best was two parts broiler crumbles and one part cracked corn.

These findings suggest a lower protein ration for the two-week finishing period, a cut in costs, and a good opportunity to use yellow corn either cracked or as a meal. It also adds color to the birds' diet, the poultryman pointed out.

Feed costs and feed per pound of grain are higher for the last two weeks than for all the rest of the broilers life, so a saving here is important. Broiler growers who have home-grown yellow corn, feed it with the 20 percent broiler should crack or grind the grain and during the last two weeks. Producers who buy the growing mash can feed the finishing ration on top of the mash.

[illegible] Baptist church. Mrs [illegible] presided. Mrs Mildren [illegible] Missionary to Cuba was the guest speaker. The Alley Sisters sang "Does Jesus Care."

Last Wednesday night our choir had a wonderful practice. We learned some new songs. Its marvelous what one hour of practice can do for a choir. All choir members who have been absent, please attend the next session.

Bible discussion last Wednesday

Our church was engaged in a night, led by our pastor. Be at prayer meeting each Wednesday night and learn more about the Bible through discussion.

Everyone enjoyed the Sunday school devotional last week based on the theme "What We Do - Determined by what We Believe." A quintet sang "In the Upper Room". A hymn which has a wonderful inspirational message.

We had a campaign this past week to have 100 in Sunday school last Sunday. Ninety-seven attended Sunday School and about one hundred - twenty attended the preaching services.

To all our many visitors, we extend a cordial invitation to come again and worship with us. We were glad to have all the visitors from the neighboring communities of Marbury and Verbena.

The choir sang an inspiring song, "I saw the Cross of Jesus." Charles Lowery sang "What Will You Do?"

Training Union services were well attended. This week emphasis was placed upon Daily Bible reading. Everyone make a special effort to read your Bible daily.

The choir sang "Lead Me Gently Home." Sidney Hudson sang "Take Your Burden to the Lord". Every one received a blessing from the musical part of the program. The sermon was enjoyed by all.

All who have been missing church, make a special effort to attend next week. The church is what we make it. Always keep in mind this thought, "The church needs me and I need the church." To have a church on the beam, the members must be on constant alert.

The WMU will hold its regular meeting Tuesday at 2 p. m. All ladies are urged to attend. Here you learn many new things about missions, missionaries, and offerings.

We urge everyone to keep in mind the coming business meeting which will be held February 5. To keep up with the church, it is best to hear it at church, not from your neighbor. So all interested members, make plans to attend.

And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God . . .—(Romans 8,28.)

It is wonderful to meet, on memorable occasions that are all too infrequent, a person who truly loves God and obeys His commandments every hour of every day. Such a one radiates love and joy, peace and harmony, strength and goodness, and is really blessed and fulfilled. We can all be like that—why aren't we?

WINTER HARNESSES A BEAUTY!

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—Mountains of ice in a winter wonderland spellbind those fortunate enough to visit this place of wonder. Huge blocks of ice form a natural, linking bridge to Canada, and as the mist is blown inland, the trees in the surrounding park area are turned to crystal chandeliers. Niagara Falls succumbs slowly but never completely to low temperatures. At night for nearly three hours the great lights spill 440 million candlepower to illuminate every inch of the crests of both American and Canadian falls, penetrating the banks of heavy mists and drawing the cataracts into bold relief against the darkness.

Telephone Talk

By IRVIN COMMANDER
Your Telephone Manager

WHAT'S MY LINE? Have you ever wondered who keeps the telephone lines around here in working order? A telephone man, to be sure, the installer-repairman. And, when storm damage repairs or maintenance are necessary, cable splicers have to be "johnnies-on-the-spot." In all kinds of weather at any hour of the day or night they're at work—up poles, down manholes, out in the country, right on your street. And just being there isn't enough. They have to know what they are doing; which wires to join and how to join them. It takes know-how and a lot of hard work to keep telephone lines in order and our telephones ready to serve everyone, all the time.

BRRR, IT'S COLD! And did you know, the colder the weather the louder sounds are. In hot weather sounds are weaker, don't carry as far. As this applies to telephone communications, it was a problem that worried telephone people. Then the Bell Laboratories found an answer. It's the thermistor, an electronic device that controls the volume of voices on the telephone. It keeps them from being too loud in cold weather and too low in warm weather. It's so sensitive it can detect a temperature change to one-millionth of a degree.

DO you contribute to the support of a dependent, but do not furnish over one-half of his support? Maybe you can claim the dependency credit anyway.

If your dependent can qualify in all other ways except that you do not furnish over one-half of his suport then perhaps this will help you.

In cases where two or more persons contribute together more than 50% of the support of an individual and each could claim the individual as a dependent except for the fact that he did not contribute more than 50% of the support, the law permits one of the contributors to claim the individual as a dependent provided:

(1) The taxpayer claiming the individual as a dependent contributed over 10% of the support, and

(2) each person other than the taxpayer who contributed over 10% of the suport of the individual agrees not to claim the individual as a dependent for any taxable year beginning in the calendar year 1957.

One of these agreements, Form 2120, must be executed by each person (other than the taxpayer claiming the dependent) who is a member of a contributing group and who contributed more than 10% of the support of the dependent. The agreements must be filed with the return of the taxpayer claiming the deduction on account of the dependent in question.

In other words, suppose that you and your three brothers each contributed 25% of the cost of supporting your mother. By agreeing among yourselves, anyone of you can claim the dependency credit for any year that the others are willing to sign an agreement form 2120 that they will not claim it. You can take turns, or one claim it every year. You cannot pro-rate the credit between you. One must claim the full credit.

Now is the time to consult with the others contributing towards the support of your dependents and agree among yourselves on who is going to claim the deduction this year and who is going to file declarations that they are not claiming the deduction.

FHA Head Says Local Farmers Using Operating Credit

THIS is the time of year farm families plan the steps they need to take to increase the efficiency of their farming operations during the coming year, reports Isaac C. Byrd, Farmers Home Administration county supervisor.

Approximately 150 farm families in the county are operating their farms with loans obtained through the Farmers Home Administration.

The agency advances operating credit primarily to help eligible farm families make improved use of their land and labor resources on family-type farms and make needed changes in their farming systems. Most of the changes call for adopting better farming practices and improving the efficiency of their farming operations. The loans help farmers pay for equipment, livestock, feed, seed fertilizer, and other farm and home operating needs including refinancing chattel debts. Operating loans run from 1 to 7 years at 5 per cent interest.

The bulk of the operating loan money in this area is being used for equipment and livestock. Many of the changes in farming systems are resulting in better dairy herds, more dependable pasture, better equipment and better orchards.

Before an operating loan for adjustment purposes is closed, the applicant and the county supervisor agree on the propsed long-time improvement. At the beginning of each farming year while the loan is being repaid, the family with Mr. Byrd's help makes annual plans for the best use of the farm income and to determine additional credit needs. A year-end review of the past year's successes and mistakes guides the family and the county supervisor when they get together to plan for the year coming up.

The Farmers Home Administration makes operating loans only to families who have or can acquire land and labor resources needed to help them improve their farming, and who are not presently able to turn to private or cooperative lenders for adequate financing of the type they acquire. All borrowers graduate to conventional credit as soon as they can.

Mr. Robert Earl Ray of Birmingham spent the week end in Thorsby visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. David Childress and the Charles Childress family.

FOLKS and THINGS About Town

by Ben

THEN there's the story of the school teacher who was teaching in a small southern town and was stopped one afternoon by an original inhabitant. "Miss Jones," he said, "I hope you won't take this as an offense--but folks are saying you're seeing too much of Elmer Brown lately." Why Mr. Sunday," fnaghed the teacher, "Mr. Brown is 80 years old, and harmless as a baby!" "Miss Jones, you don't seem to understand. That man is a Republican.

See where C. B. Cox is a candidate for the State Legislature. With his years of experience and "know-how" he should serve Chilton County well.

THERE'S two ways of being rich. One is to have all you want, and the other is to be satisfied with what you have.

YOU can never do a kindness too soon, for you never know how soon it will be too late.

IT'S not how high you go in life that counts—it's how you got there.

TUESDAY 11 men had quilified for the ofice of Governor Before March 1st deadline it looks like there will be more. Now if a fellow can't find a good man to vote for out of a pack like that....

NOTICE more pretty girls getting into politics. Now comes a little lass from Leeds, who wants to be Secretary of State. Seems like Mary Texas Hurt started some thing when, four years ago, she was elected to that same office unknown and without any political experience.

CHILTON County may lose an annual payroll of $20,500.00 if plans now under study in the Department of the Army are accepted by Congress. If the plan is approved Alabama will possibly lose as many as 80 National Guard Units.

AND speaking of the Armed Forces the State Selective Service Director announces that 336 Alabamians will answer the call in the month of February. Of this number two men will be called from Chilton County.

WE have the nicest people in Chilton County. Last Sunday afternoon our sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Meadors, were driving down from Birmingham when they run out of gas. About the time he started to the nearest service station two teen-agers drove by, stopped, and backed up to see if they could be of assistance. Now mind you, this was two of our so-called younger, thoughtless, impudent, rude, reckless, generation. They asked if they could be of assistance and took him to a service station then back to his car, waited until he got started and turned around and continued their journey. They thought it was about as nice a gesture of friendship and hospitality that could have been shown them and we don't know who the two young men were but we believe there are ten of them to one of the delinquents we read about so much these days.

IN A small church one Sunday morning a bus driver came in at the beginning of the service & sat down in the very first row. After the sermon the preacher was curious and went to the man and asked him why he sat in the first row all alone. The bus driver remarked: "I sat up there to see what it was you did to make everyone move to the back."

Chilton's Hospital Holds Fine Record For Three-Year-Old

Handles Business Affairs With County In Mind

SERVING in its Humanitarian role of giving, sustaining and fighting for lives the Chilton County Hospital has compiled a very impressive record of achievement over the past three years.

In its daily routine (which is 24 hours) it has, over just the past year, given hundreds and hundreds of Chilton County and Centra Alabama families reason to be thankful for its very existence.

The Chilton County Hospital surpassing many others of much greater size, as far as community service is concerned has admitted, in 1957 alone, 1,923 patients. It has served 43,273 meals and made no less than 7,640 laboratory tests of varying nature.

On top of this, in 1957 through the facilities of the hospital 447 little Chilton Countians were born and 589 operations were performed by the corps of able doctors serving the community.

During last year 1,050 emergency calls were taken care of by the hospital staff and 249 blood transfusions were accounted for.

In the diagonostic division there were 1,018 X-Rays taken last year.

As stated, this is an impressive record and some citizens are probably wondering about the financia outcome of this magnitude of business.

How The Hospital Dollar Is Spent

Of each dollar taken into the Chilton County Hospital last year 76.6 % of that dollar was spent inside of Chilton County. 15.6% was spent in other Alabama counties and only 7.7% was spent outside of the State of Alabama. This accounts for quite a financial boost in the County's income each year.

Breaking the dollar into different categories we find that 55.6% of every dollar is spent on salaries of hospital employees. 36.8% is designated for supplies and 7.4% goes for food to feed patients. The other .2% is signified as miscellaneous expense.

This should give you some indication of just what your County Hospital does for you as a citizen of Chilton County, not only from a humanitarian and health standpoint, but also as an industry adding to the financial stability of our growing communities.

Administrator James N. Sudduth and his staff of skillful and trained experts are doing all in their power to make the Chilton County Hospital the best in the State and they earnestly solicit your help and suport in making it so.

ACROSS THE EDITORS DESK

An Open Letter To Congr'ssman Selden

An open letter to the Honorable Armistead Seldon, Representative in Congress, Sixth District, Alabama.

Copy to The Honorable Armistead Seldon.
Editor, Chilton County News

Dear Mr. Seldon—

I have seen articles in the above mentioned paper, stating that you have joined with several other southern Congressmen in introducing legislation, that will impose specific limitations on the use of federal troops within a Sovereign State.

One bill prohibits the President from calling the National Guard into Federal service except in time of war, threat of invasion, or when requested by the Governor of State.

A second bill prohibits the use of Federal troops to enforce federal court orders and state laws.

Just how, Mr. Seldon, do you propose to have Federal court orders carried out if a treacherous and seditious Governor of a State, who has no respect for the Constitution of the United States, or for his oath to preserve, protect and defend that Constitution, orders out the militia to prevent the carrying out of those orders? When the President took office, he took the following oath or affirmation "I do solemnly swear, or affirm, that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States." Is it your opinion that he should have just taken off in his airplane, and gone somewhere and played golf? And forgot his oath as he and most of our legislators have been doing during most of his administration?

Mr. Seldon, you took the same oath as the president did. Yet the present administration during your term in office have been gross violations of the Constitution or laws. Not I of you raising your voice in protest against any of them. If you have, I would be pleased to see a statement in the above mentioned paper, so stating.

I would like here to quote son paragraphs from the Constitution Article Six, Paragraph two reads:-

This Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof, and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under authority of the United States, Shall be the Supreme law of the land; and the judges of every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary, notwithstanding.

Paragraph three, Article six reads:

The Senators and representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several State legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several states, shall be bound by oath or affirmation to support this Constitution; But no religious test shall EVER BE REQUIRED as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

The first words of the first Amendment, which is also the first article of the Bill of Rights, reads-Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion.

In our treaty with the Moslems in 1796-97, appears this statement:- "The United States is in no way founded upon the Christian Religion". Therefore, according to paragraph two, Article Six, this treaty becomes a law of the United States.

From these articles, it should be plain to any ten year old child, who can read our language, that the great aim of our forefathers was to keep religion and Government separate. They meant to keep our government free from religion, as

During your term of office, during the present administration, a prayer room has been built in our national building for Congressmen at the expense of the taxpayers. While I have no doubt, that most of them need to pray, or need to LITTLE people, given little authority, become big problems.

FRANKNESS, even though courageous and commendable, usually boomerangs.

THE man who is shy can count on being run over by most everyone in this day and time.

GOSSIP, and those who know how to use it, are rightful things in small communities.

THE other day we met a fellow who promised to make us some quick money--if we would advance him a little first.

THERE is something wrong when a government lets men get rich on wars, blood and preparedness.

OUR nomination for fighter of the years is Ezra Benson, who is going to take on several hundred Congressmen in the next few months.

Unforgivable Sins--

THE Administration must accept the blame for the following unforgivable sins in the rocket and missiles construction fields. Moreover, some of the sins are still being committed:

1. The Administration cut back the missiles program, in an economy move, in Augusa of 1957, two months before the Russians fired their satellites.

2. The Administration has increased funds for ATLAS, the Air Force's most advanced inter-continental ballistic missile, by only one-third for next year, in spite of the fact that the Gaither report urged funds for this inter-continental missile be tripled.

3. The Administration still has not placed one over-all director in charge of the entire missiles and rockets program — with authority to act.

4. The Administration has not been completely frank with the American public and has not released the contents of the secret Gaither report, nor other disturbing conclusions drawn by investigative groups concerning our security.

5. The Administration has been guilty of placing too much emphasis on a balanced budget, at the expense of adequate security.

EDISON'S BIRTHDAY--

IF EVERY man and woman in America whose job would not exist but for Thomas A. Edison were to knock off to celebrate his birthday, Tuesday, February 11th, would be a national holiday!

It would be difficult indeed to estimate the millions whose work derives from his nearly 1,100 patents - and the ideas he didn't bother to patent - who generate and distribute our electrical power, make and exhibit our movies, provide us with records and players, entertain and inform us via radio and TV, and produce all manner of equipment and appliances that feed on the force made available.

At no time in our history since Thomas A. Edison's death, 11 years ago, have the things he represents been so important to our continued progress, infact our very existence. His was not only an inquiring mind, but a disciplined one. He assigned himself a task, and stayed with it until it was licked. The Edison Storage Battery, for example, was no miracle (as some said) but the result of ten years of application and 50,000 experiments! He might well be called the father of practical research - practical, because when he perfected an invention he found a company to make it and put it to public use. And his long lifetime of research and development provides inspirng assurance to youth that every new idea begets a train of others. Invention is never finished, scientific curiosity never satisfied.

It was this inspiration that guided young Max McGraw in the field of electricity and in building an electrical equipment manufacturing concern that was ultimately, as the McGraw-Edison Company, to acquire not only the name of the world's electrical wizard, but to perpetuate his ideas. In the merger of the Edison Industries and the McGraw Electric Company, Thomas E. Edison's passion for organized research fires the imagination of present day scientists in the laboratories of the company's 28 divisions and subsidiaries. And, as th birthday of the world's most famous trainbutcher rolls around, the emphasis on research is being stepped up. . . just as it is throughout the nation.

This anniversary in 1958, a year of peril and of ... for the country Thomas A. Edison served so magnificently, is a good time to study and to emulate his ... other things done.

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

HOUSE members approved an emergency appropriation bill last Thursday which is expected to greatly accelerate our missile program and, at the same time, provide additional facilities for the Strategic Air Command

Passed by a 388 to 0 vote, the bill appropriates for the current fiscal year an additional $1.3 billion for the suplementary", it does not constitute any increase in funds already approved. Instead, it represents new projects for which fiscal year 1959 funds had been requested. By making these funds available immediately, it is expected that certain vital defense projects can be speeded up by at least six months.

In answer to criticism of cuts made by Congress last year in funds for the Defense Department, Rep. George H. Mahon (D-Tex.), rankingmember of the House Appropriations Committee, emphatically denied that these reductions in any way hinderec our defense program. During House debate on the emergency bill, he stated, "it is unmistakably clear and now undisputed from any responsible source that last year Congress gave the Department of Defense several hundred million dollars more than is being used for this year's operation ,

Transfer Authority—

In addition to the emergency appropriation, the House-approved bill breaks precedent by giving the Secretary of Defense authority to transfer if necessary $150 million in Defense Department funds. This will enable him to quickly channel funds to any important defense project that may result from a sudden research development, thereby avoiding any delay in the program while awaiting congressional approval of an appropriation.

Other Projects—

Besides providing for improvements in present facilities of the Strategic Air Command, the measure designates funds for dispersing SAC bases to areas where they will be more secure against enemy attack.

THINGS WE S-E-E

And HEAR BY "TUCK"

WE HAVE been noticing lately the quality of the reviews of books in the Montgomery Advertiser and are impressed by the fact, that the editors are giving no ground as to the accepted fact that the public wants, enjoys, and searches for trashy literature. The reviews mentioned seem to us to always be of the highest calibre and by some of the best authors. It is a precedent that should have been started many, many moons ago, but we have enough faith in human nature to feel that all is not lost and that enough of this type of influence will awake the public to the needs of better distribution, not only of the literature itself, but of influence to read it.

It is a good sign of a possible crusade towards a better informed and cleaner minded citizenry—a condition that we have been getting entirely too far from. More power to these editors; they have our complete suport—for what it' worth.

WE'D say we were gettin' pretty merchinary when a man's importance is measured by how much he pays in taxes.

FROM THE number of candidates qualifying in the race for the Governorship of Alabama you'd think it was going to be some event. Actually, in our opinion, there are only four who'll even make the race an interesting one. From the views of a columnist on the Montgomery Advertiser we get the impression that everybody but Jimmy Faulkner had just as well close up shop and go home. It's a far cry from the election and to put it mildly the above view very definitely remains to be seen.

NOTICE also the views of another newspaper, editorially speaking, tend to eliminate Judge Wallace from the picture because he is "nothing but a talker." One of the first requirements that qualify a person for a position as governor of any state is that he be a diplomat; and we've yet to ever hear of a person being a very successful diplomat without having the ability to "talk". We feel that there are a few men in the running who very definitely have a record, a background, which can and should be their platform—at least a plank in same. Some of Alabama's "cream" in fine young men are at the forefront in politics these days. We hope the public is aware enough of this fact to scrutinize all possibilities before tossing their vote into the political pot. It's not a case of morals, it's a case of merit and these men do merit your consideration and finally your approval for what they are worth to our State of Alabama. There's going to be a lot of mud-slinging and you'll be doing yourself a favor if you analyze it well before picking it up and tossing it again.

AND on the local scene politics are crawling out of their mothballs and are once again stepping to the front in our everyday conversation and business. It is amusing to us to watch a prospective candidate feeling out the opinion his associates have of him. Crafty, wary, unsure, and at the same time self-satisfied enough to feel that he will win. It's a strange business--but a necessary one in our Democracy.

WE very recently "sampled" one of our good friend Bill Hayes' "flat tops" and were satisfied with the outcome. Bill is back at his old stand at the Exchange Barber Shop and he and Paul Headley are in business together full-time now. Bill's one of the best there is--and though we don't m ean barber, he though we don't mean barbers, he of them. We wish his an abundance of good luck with his "first love" and though we don't see how it can possibly benefit him we offer him "our head" in "his business". One thing in his favor--at least it's not pointed!

AND here's an interesting side note this week; for two weeks in a row now we have noticed colored boys at the overhead bridge here in Clanton collecting money for the March of Dimes. It seemed unimportant to them that both these days were blustry and bad and cold as the mischief. This week Solomon Wilson and Ocie Trimble stood the watch on the bridge. Making our donation, we noticed that Solomon and Ocie seemed proud that they could help in this great cause. They're fine young men, it seems. Would that we had more like them in Chilton County.

RECENTLY received a birthday greetings from our very close friend M. C. "Pete" Deaton in Texas and the content went something like this: "Ish O. K. if you get a little high on your birthday this year". Then on the inside the only visible writing was the word "HI" in about six point type. Same to you "Pete" (who's birthday was January 9th), but don't you take us literally either.

HE'S RIGHT--IT'S NOT HISTORY

WE have been having ennumerable complaints, or should we say discussions, of late concerning the time of arrival of Chilton County News at certain points in the County and surrounding counties.

Though, basically, this is a complaint to the effectiveness of the newspaper it behooves us to know that certain of our readers are not getting their paper until Friday and even Saturday, right here in Chilton County.

Before we continue we want to confess that one of the problems has been "here at home". We just haven't been catching that old train. However, in all fairness, we cannot take the entire blame.

The mails have been in the past few months, to say the least, fouled up and we are having a time finding out what we can and can't do that will get our subscribers their papers on time.

Bear with us if you will. We are giving you one of the best papers ever at this time and we certainly don't want our supporters coming in, as one of this past week, and stressing that he wanted the "News" not history. We most assuredly agree with him that we are not in the "history" business and just as soon as we can work out a "workable" timetable whereby our local citizenry will get their papers on time we will be gratified indeed

It's a case of "which is best" and we assure you that in the very forseeable future something will be done about the "un"dependable way in which you have been receiving your News. Thanks for the confidence!

To Speak At 87th Annual Ala. PA Convention

DR. FRANK ROSE, new president of the University of Alabama, is scheduled to speak to APA members at the annual banquet Friday evening, February 7.

ACROSS THE EDITOR'S DESK

A HOME FOR LOCAL ASSOCIATIONAL MISS.

THE Purchasing Committee, appointed by the Executive Board of the Chilton-Unity Association had its first meeting at the ... Baptist Church, Clanton, last Sunday afternoon for the purpose of discussing matters pertaining to buying a home for the Associational Missionary.

Rev. B. B. Burks, Chairman, called the meeting to order and the prayer was led by the Rev. J. W. Jones. The Rev. M. Lockhart was asked to serve as secretary and Rev. J. W. Jones was elected as vice chairman. The Committee is composed of Rev. B. B. Burks, Rev. F. F. Glidewell, Rev. J W. Jones, and Mr. W. Louie Smith.

The secretary was authorized to offer this information to the press for the purpose of giving the opportunity to any one who might feel led of the Lord to donate a home to the Association exclusively for the purpose of furnishing a home for the Associational Missionary who is giving full time to that work.

Some one might like to give a plot of land on which a home could be built. It was a unanimous feeling among the brethern that the Lord was leading in the matter of offering this privilege and simply make it known concerning the matter for which the committee is responsible. The general feeling among the Brethern is that the vicinity near Clanton would be a rather general location for a home for the Missionary.

If you are interested in the matter given here or have a three bed room house for sale or a plot of ground forsale or even a gift, we are asking that you contacteither of the above Committeemen or the Associational Missionary, Rev. M Lockhart and the Committee will immediately be called together if the matter deems it necessary. Rev. Burks can be reached in Thorsby as well as Rev. Jones, Rev. Glidewell in Cooner . Mr. Louie W. Smith can be seen at The Peoples Savings Bank in Clanton. Rev. M. Lockhart Missionary, can be contacted at Clanton Route One. Phone one W3—Chilton - Unity Association .

The Origin of Our Holy Bible

BIBLE LANGUAGES

(This is the Fourth in a series of articles presented to you with the cooperation of the local Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses.)

The finger of Jehovah God moved over the surface of two stone tablets located on top of Mount Sinai. On the front side of both tables of stone it wrote. When the finger was lifted from the surface of these durable "pages", thereupon remained the first written copy of the Ten Commandments. They were inscribed in perfectly formed characters of written Hebrew (Ex. 31:18; 32:16, 19; 34:1-4, 28) it was at about the same time that Moses started writing on the first five books of the Bible. He wrote in Hebrew. With only a few exceptions, all of the inspired Holy Scripture writers that followed during the next eleven hundred years wrote in the Hebrew languages.

In the Hebrew Scriptures only the people are called Hebrews; the language after the death of King Solomon, in 997 B. C., is generally called "the Jews' language". (2 Ki. 18:26, 28; 2 Chron. 32:18; Isa. 36:11, 13) Hebrew belongs to the family of languages that were spoken by most of the descendants of Shem (and a few others). For that reason that family of languages is called the Shemitic or Semitic family. Because God did not confound the language of Noah and Shem at the time of the presumptuous building of the tower of Babel, it is reasonable to conclude that they spoke the original Semitic language from which thereafter stemmed forth the many branches of that language family. Hebrew is the main stem of the Semitic family, it very likely being the language spoken in Eden. By the days of Jacob the Aramaic branch was in evidence, Laban using words different from Jacob's to express the same idea. (Gen. 31:47) When Hebrew began to be used to put in writing the story of creation and a sketch of the 2,500 years of man's history from Eden to the Exodus, that language was capable of vividly painting the inspired historical narrative.

Hebrew, like most of the Semitic languages, was written without vowels, just consonants. There were twenty-two letters in the Hebrew alphabet, all of them consonants, but about nine of them could represent two sounds. The range of the language was expanded to about twenty-eight consonant sounds. The twenty-two Hebrew consonants together with their names appear in the alphabetical order as stanza headings of Psalm 119, in the American Standard Version. But even if the language did not have written vowels, it nonetheless had a plenty of vowel sounds in its oral form. It outstrips English by far in the use of vowel sounds. The crux of the matter is that the written language did not proved vowel letters, and the readers were required to remember and supply the vowel sounds of the spoken tongue, just as English readers must supply the vowels in certain abbreviations such as bldg. (building), bldr. (builder), blvd. (boulevard), and hgt. (height).

As long as the Hebrew language was spoken those versed therein had no difficulty in supplying the proper vowel sounds when reading the all-consonant text, but when Hebrew ceased to be a living language it became more and more difficult to remember the right vowel sounds to go with the Hebrew Bible manuscripts. But the traditional pronuciation was kept alive and handed down by those specializing in reading the Law and the Prophets and the Psalms for the instruction of the people. Finally, however, during the sixth or seventh century after Christ, a system of dots and dashes were devised and these were place below, in or above the consonant letters to indicate the exact vowel-sounds. These are not called vowel letters, but vowel points. They were added by Jewish scholars called "Masoretes". Also supplied was a system of accent marks to indicate stress, pause, connection between words and clauses, and musical notation. No man on earth today can read this musical notation, the key to it having been lost.

Most words in Hebrew can be traced to a root with three consonants. Most of these roots are verbs, the most important part of speech in the Hebrew language. These roots are vivid and expressive, playing upon the senses of seeing, hearing, tasting, touching and smelling. The Hebrew Scriptures use a little more than 2,000 root words, but most of them are so seldom used that if one knows the 500 most frequently used roots he can read most of the Hebrew Bible. The total number of words in the Hebrew vocabularly of the Bible is estimated at from 5,000 to 7,000 words. The Hebrew has two tenses, not so much "tenses" as senses, to their verbs, namely, the perfect or historical tense, and the imperfect or indefinite tense. Hebrew uses no more tenses than these two. For illustrations: "If you tell me to do this, I have done it." That is perfectly good Hebrew. "If you that is, any time you tell me in tell me" is in the indefinite form: eternity, past, present or future. "I have done it" is historical or past form, but here refers to a time future after the telling. Though referring to the future, the one who puts the expression in the perfect form thereby means that it is as good as done.

The name "Jehovah" is in a verb form in the indefinite sense. That is the reason why that name can be translated as Rotherham renders it: "He shall, may or will be whatsoever he shall, may or will be." That is all combined in the one name Jehovah. Because the name has all this significance in it the Christian Scriptural Greek tries to convey its meaning by the expression addressing Jehovah as One "who art, and wast, and art to come". By those three tenses the Grfeek seeks to express the scope of eht name Jehovah. Incidentally this name of the Creator appears 6,823 times in the Hebrew Scriptures, being represented by its four superstitious Jews considered the name to holy to even pronounce, and substituted Adonay (my Lord) or Elohim (God) for it as they read aloud. To remind the reader to do this the vowels of one or the other of these substitutes were put under the consonants JHVH. Thus we have today the English form of what religious Jews considered the incummunicable name, that is, Jehovah. Through religious superstitions of the Jewish leaders the ancient Hebrew pronunciation has been lost and can only be surmised today, but we do have in English the euphonious anglicized form that appears thousands of times in the American Standard Version Bible and several times in the King James Version Bible.

Malachi, the last book of the Hebrew Scriptures to be written, was recorded in the Jews' language. Its time of composition is not definite, but there is some evidence to believe that it was toward the end of Governor Nehemiah's time, nearly a hundred years after the release of the Israelites from captivity. It is very evident that by that time not all of the Jews understood Hebrew. (Neh. 13:24, 25) Only a few years earlies when the law of God was publicly read in the traditional Hebrew tongue, in the Hebrew of the Bible manuscripts, it was necessary for the readings to be put into an Aramaic paraphrase in order for the people to understand. Neh. 8:8) Prior to the Jews' captivity in Babylon some Aramaic words had crept into the Hebrew speech during the seventy years in Babylon the inflow of Aramaisms increased; after the release the Hebrew tongue was overrun and crowded out by the large-scale invasion of Aramaic, and it ceased to exist shortly after Nehemiah's days as the living languages of the Jewish people. Only the Jewish priests and scribes thereafter knew the Hebrew of the Scriptures. Aramaic became the common language of what was once Jehovah God's chosen nation.

The study of the Hebrew language was almost entirely forgotten by non-Jews until the sixteenth century. In the seventeenth century the grammar of other Semitic languages was compared with that of Hebrew. In the nineteenth century Wilhelm Gesenius began a strong revival of the study of the Hebrew of the Scriptures, which move was taken up and continued by others. Since that time knowledge of this language that comprises more than three-fourths of the inspired Bible canon as it was originally written has increased rapidly. The publisher's note, dated 1935, in The Complete Bible, An American Translation, says: "Hebrew scholarship is moving fast, and even the few years that have elapsed since the first edition (of this modern speech Bible version) was issued in 1931 have seen contributions o the subject that neither translator aor publisher can ignore."

Deadline For Farm Employees Reporting Cash Wages

JANUARY 31, 1958, is the deadline for reporting the cash wages paid in 1957 to farm employees, George D. Patterson, District Director, Internal Revenue Service, Birmingham, stated today.

Farm operators or farm owners who have paid as much as $150 in cash wages to any worker in their employ during 1957 must file an employer's tax and information return for such farm employees. They must also report each farm employee who worked for them on 20 or more days during 1957 regardless of the amount of those wages if they were figured on a time rather than a piece rate basis.

For 1957, the social security tax rate is 4½ (2¼ each for employer and employee.) This tax applies to cash wages paid to a farm worker up to a total of $4200 in the year. The tax amount must be entered on Form 943 (Employer's Annual Tax Return for Agricultural Employees) together with the total amount of cash wages paid to the farm worker. It is required that the farm employer do this and file the return with the District Director of Internal Revenue at 1531 3rd Avenue, North, Birmingham, Alabama, on or before the due date mentioned above.

Mr. Patterson points out that when a farm employee meets the 20-day a year test the farm employer should count only days for which cash wages figured on a time basis. However, if the worker meets this test, the farm employer must pay social security taxes on all cash wages paid the employee during the year (whether on a time, piecework, or other basis.)

Farm employees include household workers if they are employed on a farm operated for profit.

MUST I FILE A FEDERAL INCOME TAX RETURN FOR 1957?

IF you are under 65 and had taxable income of $600 or more, or over 65 and had taxable income of $1200 or more, you must file a federal income tax return regardless of whether you owe tax or not, and it does not matter whether you are a man, woman or child; as long as you are under 65 and had taxable income of at least $600 or over 65 and had taxable income of $1200 or more in 1957 you are required to file a return by April 15, 1958.

It may be that you had income of less than $600 (or 1200) and income tax was withheld from your paychecks. In this case, you should file a tax return. It will show that you own no tax and will act as a calim for refund of the withheld tax.

It is always a good idea to get these returns in as soon as possible The sooner you file your return, the sooner you have your refund.

Taxable income is money or it's equivalent in goods or services you received.

To arrive at taxable income gross income is reduced by the cost of what you sold (for instance if you sold merchandise for $2 that cost you $1, then you have a gross income of $2, but your taxable income would be only $1. What you received for the merchandise, less what it cost you. You would also deduct any expenses you had in connection with the sale.

The same is true [illegible] ices. For [illegible] a [illegible] or selling, traveling [illegible] line 6(a) [illegible] return [illegible] whether or [illegible] form 1040. [illegible] the [illegible] debts or [illegible] tions.

Joe Taxpayer, [illegible], is an [illegible]. He started work this year [illegible] this job he had an employment agency fee. Joe also joined his union and paid an initiation fee and monthly dues. Joe had to buy tools and supplies necessary to his job. Joe is required by his employer and the duties of this job to purchase and maintain special uniforms and work clothing not adapted to streetwear.

These, and many other costs Joe takes as deductions on page two of the return. They can be taken only if Joe files long form 1040 and itemizes his deductions. The deductions are lost if Joe files a short form 1040 form 1040A or takes the standard deduction.

There are many deductions that John Taxpayer, Joe Taxpayer and the merchant can take and some kinds of income are not taxed. That's what these columns are about. Be sure to read every column. Some may help you find things you can deduct. If you have a specific problem you should consult your accountant.

"Commando" Being Used In Chilton Artificial Breeding Program

Commando was bred by Marlu Farms, Linocroft, New Jersey and is out of one of the outsanding Jersey herds in this country. He was proven great through thirty-two daughter-dam comparsion records. Commando was sired to eighteen Jersey cattle with an everage production record of 7,438 pounds of milk and 402 pounds of butter fat. Daughters resulting from this service produced 9,201 pounds milk and 486 average butter fat, or his daughters showed an increase over dam production of 1,763 pounds milk and 84 pounds of butter fat.

This proven bull and many more similar to him are now available for service through the artificial breeding program and should play a very important part in improving per cow production of Chilton County dairymen.

Tests Indicate Chilton Soils Critically Low In Lime Content

Do Not Apply By Guesswork Say Authorities

WE hear a lot of talk about the need for lime on Chilton County soils. A fair question is: "What evidence is there that farmers need to use lime on their farms."

To get an answer to this question lets take a look at some research results obtained by agronomists of the Agricultural Experiment Station on lands similar to ours. Over a 7-year period 1949-55, lime gave an average increase of 323 pounds of seed cotton per acre. A few dollars in lime returned around $40 per year.

If your soil needs lime badly the use of high rates of fertilizer will make the lime need much more serious. As the rates of fertilizer are increased for cotton the need for lime becomes greater.

Many farmers now use ammonia sources of nitrogen. Ammonia sources of nitrogen are acid forming.

Corn is tolerant of moderate amounts of acid, growing well on soils with pH as low as 5. However, lime is desirable for corn on the more acid soils. To get benefits from lime for corn all other [illegible] must be in adequate supply.

Crimson clover seed yields increased an average of [illegible] acre for the application of [illegible] borax. [illegible] lime [illegible] least [illegible] clover seed [illegible] more [illegible]

One of the important uses of lime is in production of winter legumes for soil improvement or on grazing mixtures. Let's take a 25-year period 1930-55. Lime increased winter legume growth about [illegible] per acre at Alicevi[illegible] over 7,000 pounds at Prattville station.

What do [illegible] yield mean[illegible] 70 pounds of extra [illegible] pounds in ve[illegible] mean the [illegible] Sometimes pay [illegible] On No. [illegible] at Auburn one ton of lime increased the grain sorghum yield from 55.6 bushels [illegible] acre, or 185 bushels of extra grain.

Here is the secret to a lot of disappointments with Johnson grass and Sudan grass. The Johnson grass yield on Norfolk Sandy loam at Auburn went from 106 pounds, where no lime was used, to 3846 pounds per acre where 1½ tons of lime per acre were applied. Sudan grass was increased over 3 tons per acre by use of lime. These research results by our Experiment Station should remove any doubt about the general need for lime for row crops and sod crops on most soils.

A warning in use of lime. Do not apply it by guess. Get a soil test made to find your lime needs.

Be sure to use material that is fine enough that 90% or more will go through a 10-mesh sieve and 50% through a 60-mesh sieve. Then be sure that it is spread evenly over the land. Don't have "over-limed areas in your field because of a poor job of spreading. Remember lime pays if you use it right.

Chilton County soil tests indicate a critical need for more extensive use of lime on crop and pasture lands.

A recent [illegible] of [illegible] cent soil samples showed [illegible] needing heavy (1 ton per acre or more) need for lime. Forty-nine of the total needed moderate applications of lime, and only 14 of the 336 tests made failed to indi[illegible] sections [illegible] with [illegible] crops.

There is much evide[illegible] ers can profitably spe[illegible]

Farmers can get custom spreading service or can purchase lime direct from Shelby County plants and spread with farm equipment.

Soil testing is the most accurate method of determining lime needs. Soil testing is simple and relatively inexpensive.

For best reults from 1958 crops test soil to determine lime needs and get busy with the chore of applying lime where needed.

be prayed for, they should do it in their church or home, or at least somewhere else, and not in government buildings or on Government time. If they believe in Christ and his teachings, they should do it at home, or at least somewhere else and not in government buildings or on government time. If they believe in Christ and his teachings, they shoud do it at home in their closets. He tells them how in Matthew 6: 5, 6, 7,.

Did you vote for this violation of our Constitution? Or did you make any protests against it?

During this time "In God We Trust", has been inscribed on our postage stamps. A cancellation stamp reading, "Pray for Peace", is being used. Did anyone ever hear of such hypocracy? Praying for peace while we are arming every nation for war, that we can bribe to accept arms under our conditions.

Is it any wonder that the whole world looks upon us as a nation of hypocrites? Is it any wonder that we have lost our world prestage? Did you enter any protests against these acts?

Our Congress opened this year with prayer, by a paid chaplin at the taxpayer's expense. Televised it for the world to see. Any true American should consider this an insult on him, and to our Constitution, and all that it stands for. If our president and other legislators have no respect for our Constitution, or for their oath to Preserve, Protect, and defend that Constitution, how can we expect anyone to respect any other laws we may make?

Is it any wonder crime is at an all time high? It is any wonder there is so much juvenile delinquency?

Our Constitution is supposed to be the fundamental, as well as the Supreme Law of our Land. I for one believe 100 per cent in our Constitution.—Respectfully yours, Wer Gletty, Route Two, Clanton, Ala.

FOLKS and THINGS About Town

by Ben

WE all live on dreams. We build castles for the tomorrows and the tomorrows. All our hope and desires are realized in our dreams, though we sometimes reach our goal and realize them, most of us are content to dream. To some who attain greatness or prominence the dream fades and dies. And too, the realization never quite compares with the dreams of our yesterdays, our yesterdays fade into living past. But dream we will of our youth, or the memories of it until the end of time. Our maker knew what he was doing when he gave us dreams to sustain us through life and comfort us in death.

THE Chilton County Democratic Committee met Saturday afternoon right-away the candidates got busy laying the ground work for a jam-up hot political campaign in Chilton County. The most of the big State offices are being contested for this year but from the Editor's desk it looks like things will be so hot in our local politics that most of the State races will just have to take a back seat. You'll find several candidates mentioned in this issue and probably many more as the various races progress.

Two automobiles run together at an intersection causing quite a bit of confusion and excitement. One of the cars was driven by a woman and the other was driven by a man. The officer who had just arrived at the wreck asked the lady to give her side of the story. "Well, I was going to turn left here at the corner and I put my hand out and started to turn." "That's right," said the man," and that's what confused me."

REGARDLESS of the bad weather we have experiences during January, Mayor Hollis Jackson was telling us the other day on the sewage disposal plant report and work is ahead of schedule and with no further delays it will be completed according to contract.

Arthur Henley made us a visit Saturday afternon. Arthur is stationed at Sylacauga now, doing recruiting service. He says he sure wishes they would send him back here. He misses his old friends and school mates in Chilton County. He did the next best thing though. He paid up his subscription to Your Community Newspaper.

Hats off to Jim Wade and Red Waggoner for their interest and aid to the aged sick at the Nursing Home. Word comes that Jim and Red go out each week and shave the men and cut their hair on their own time and at their own expense. Hope these two fine gentlemen don't resent our saying so, but we think they are doing a wonderful service and deserve thanks.

And let's don't leave out Cilla Adkins from Modern Beauty Shop. She and her team go out once each week to fix the ladies up beautiful. It's work that is appreciated and the pay, Satisfaction of doing a kind deed for those who have weathered the storms of life and passed into their sunset years unable to do the things they once did--or go places they once could go.

Ex-Police Chief is sleeping in the jail house now! Henry Anderson has been spending the past week sleeping at the jail because he has been feeling a bit under the weather. We hope Henry is on the road to recovery now and takes good care of himself. That Asian flu will get you down.

Plea From Headley To Farmers Concerning Cotton

H. G. Headley, Chilton farmer, this week made a public request that all farmers interested in renting cotton acreage to the Federal Government, write Secretary of Agriculture Benson in Washington, D. C. urgently requesting an additional appropriation for the rental of these lands.

Funds allotted for this purpose have ben exhausted on a first come--first served basis and many farmers were unable to rent land.

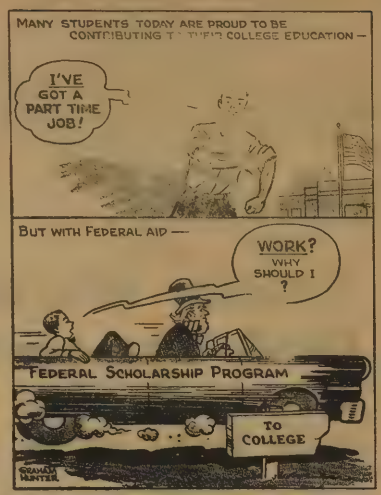
WHAT PRICE YOUTHFUL INCENTIVE:



Why Not a Free Ride?

The proposed grants of college scholarships by the Federal government could weaken, slow down and finally dry up the individual initiative and effort traditional in the higher education field.

Planning on sending their children to college, families all over the country today are buying insurance policies and setting money aside for them. Many young people themselves are planning to do, or are doing, part-time work before, during and after college to help pay for it.

But with the government stepping in with grants, parents might well be inclined to seek Federal scholarships for their children instead of making personal sacrifices—and the young people themselves might well prefer to take a free ride to and through college—at government expense—to working.

The main support for education must come in the future, as it has in the past, from state, local and private sources, and from individual effort.

. . . from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

THE launching of an earth satellite last Friday by the United States was the top news story in Washington as well as throughout the entire world.

Russia's ability to launch two satellites months ahead of the United States was a tremendous propaganda victory for the Soviet Union and dealt American prestige a damaging blow. A similar accomplishment by the United States should now dispel any doubts that other nations may have as to our ability in this field.

ROCKET PREVIEW

In December of 1956 I spent a day at Huntsville's Redstone Arsenal with several of my colleagues from Alabama. At that time we were briefed by Generals Medaris and Toftoy and had an opportunity to talk with Dr. Wernher von Braun, German scientist, who has played a leading role in rocket development. We also witnessed the test firing of a rocket similar to the one that was used last week at Cape Canaveral, Florida.

As a result of that visit, I was extremely pleased but certainly not surprised that the Jupitor-C rocket, developed largely at the Army Ballistic Missile Agency in Huntsville, was the vehicle used in the successful launching of this nation's first earth satellite.

SCIENTIFIC AID

President Eisenhower has presented to Congress his emergency plan to increase the number of trained scientists in the United States.

The President's program, which is contained in a bill introduced by Republican Representative Carroll D. Kearns, will provide 10,000 four-year college scholarships each year for high school graduates who show aptitude for science or mathematics. It would also provide 5500 fellowships for training college teachers in these fields.

In addition, it authorizes federal funds for assisting states in the testing and guidance of high school students, and provides grants that will enable schools to offer better instruction in mathematics, science, and foreign languages.

Two members of Congress from Alabama, Senator Lister Hill and Representative Carl Elliott, believe the President's proposal is too limited and have introduced legislation that will provide a much larger and broader program. It is estimated that the Hill-Elliott proposal will cost approximately three billion dollars.

INEQUITIES CORRECTED

Legislation adopted last week by the House of Representatives is designed to eliminate a number of inequities presently existing in our tax laws. As passed by the House, this measure deals chiefly with the correction of inadvertent errors in the income, estate, and gift tax laws. The bill blocks many current tax-dodging devices but, at the same time, contains a number of provisions that will benefit the taxpayers.

Early Senate approval of this legislation is expected.

The Public and It's Three 'Eyes' on Public Health

This is an important question, both to the worker and the public, for in its answer lies the effectiveness of any phase of public health work. In its answer lies the cooperation or non-cooperation of the public.

The public is divided in three sections relative to public health: (1) Those who understand the good of public health and accept it, welcoming and cooperating with the worker; (2) Those who understand it, but who, for commercial reasons, oppose it and resent health workers, however fine and sincere they may be; and (3) Those who are unin ormed about public health and think it an unnecessary interference in their affairs. So, the answer to the question of "How Laymen Look Upon Health Workers" would vary in different localities, and this difference would be directly dependent upon the degree of public health education that had been accomplished in each locality, the length of time this education has been under way, the earnestness and enthusiasm of the health worker in that area, and the cooperation of the medical profession.

Education in all the fine arts of living is a duty of the government—national, state and local. There can be no fine art of living without public health. Great as the power of wealth is, it cannot buy happiness unless there is public health. Christianity, character, public health and wealth, in the order named are the foundation in the art of fine living. Without them, nations would decay. If public opinion of the health worker is not what it should be, it is because the education of the public has not reached a point sufficient to bring about an appreciation of public health.

The medical profession at large, in organized groups of national, state and local societies, promotes public health education and disease control in a general sense, but they do not do all they can to promote public health and uphold the esteem of public health workers in local communities.

If you hear untriendly criticism of health workers, you can rightly assume that some one or many have fallen down in their direction of or approach to the work, or both. No one can assume that it is an easy job. No one who strives can avoid errors, but his stride of progress is much greater than his errors. Thus, there is constant progress. This is the thought that gives moving force to any upward movement: this upward pressure is what divides the public into the three classes mentioned earlisr.

What vision came to a few of our ancestors? What strength of character impelled them to take up the task of leading Alabama out of the jungle of health ignorance? How long has it taken to create that first division of the public who are now converts to and cooperators in public health? Who first put his shoulder to the task? When I think of the man who first cought the vision, and who had the strength of character to sacrifice a good medical practice for the meager remuneration then available for such work, I stand in awe. I wonder, had I lived in that day, could I have had the vision, even then, would I have had the courage to give up a lucerative practice and make the attack on the ignorance of the day. We must have been the resistance, criticism, even the ignominy faced by those souls then? What did laymen think of those health workers in Alabama

Alabama history records the answer. Eighty-five years ago, a physician in Mobile, Dr. Jerome Cochran, harassed by the sight of Alabamas' being strangled in the grasp and destruction of yellow fever, and by the knowledge that farming would soon be stultified by malaria, that typhoid fever was raging in Alabama, and that before long bubonic plague would have a foothold in the state and America conceived the thought that Alabama should have a state department of health, supported by the state to study the source, cause and prevention of these diseases. He gave up his practice to promote his vision and finally secured a legislative appropriation of $3000 annually for this work. What could he do with this small sum against all lack of belief and interest of that time? He was not discouraged by what laymen thought of health workers. For twenty-four years he labored on small means, until, t his death, Alabama had what is today accepted as the best health system in America.

It has taken eighty-five years to come where we are today; It has taken eighty-five years to divide the public into three divisions mentioned above. What does the layman think of the public health worker? The eradication of yellow fever, the control of malaria, the approximate control of typhoid fever, the reduction of diphtheria to a minimum, the conrtol of smallpox, the proper handling of killed meat, vegetables and fruits, the sanitation of hotels, restaurants and public conveyances, disease-free water supplies and the removal of defects from school children; state institutions for the mentally ill, schools for defective children and the blind; maternal welfare and chest clinics, and clinics for crippled children; sixty-seven full time county health departments with traine dworkers, tuberculosis sanitorium and far-reaching legislation for a greater public health--these are the thundering answer of "What Laymen Think of the Health Worker."

ACROSS THE EDITOR'S DESK

To Mr. and Mrs. Sie Foshee and Jim

(ED'S NOTE—The following is a letter received by Mr. Sie Foshee, Clanton, who wanted to share the content, because of the sincere description and historical value. The letter is from son James and family.)

Dear Mom, Dad & Jimmy:

I trust all of you had a very merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

My dream of going to the Holy Land finally became a reality. It was with great difficulty that I finally did leave; However, the maid became ill and had to go to the hospital for 2 days which left James with the children for 2 days and 2 night alone. However, since all the arrangements had been made and the ticket purchased, he insisted that I leave. Truly, it was a chance of a lifetime.

The family saw me off at 9:30 p. m., December 21, 1957, via Alitalia air lines. It took approximately 3 hrs. to reach Beirut, Lebanon. Sunday the 22nd, we motored by bus to Baalbeck, one of the ancient cities where the people worshipped the god Baal of biblical times. The following day we visited another ancient city, Byblos, of ruins during the time of the Phoenicians. The Phoenicians of course are the ones that invented the alphabet. At that time it was a 22 character alphabet. We saw the ancient civilizations of 3000 and 2000 B. C. Excavations are still going on and every year something new is uncovered.

Returning from Byblos we had a quick tour of the city--museum, the American University, tomb of the Unknown soldier, the embassies, and the mainstreet shopping places.

Tuesday, December 24, we departed from Beirut, Lebanon at 1:00 p. m., by Air Jordan. At 3:25 p. m., we arrived at Jerusalem, Jordan. That night we drove to Bethlehem which is a distance of about 12 miles for an Anglican service and for the Catholic Mass in the Church of the Nativity which is built over the crypt (cave in a mass of rock) where Jesus was born.

Christmas Day we returned to Bethlehem to see Shepherd's Field or the field of Boaz where Ruth and Naomi worked. Then to the church of Nativity to get a day-time view of it.

From there we journeyed back to Jerusalem to the Garden of Gethsemane where Jesus prayed at the Rock of Agony before his condemnation and crucifixion. There is also the Olive grove where Jesus was betrayed by Judas. A stones throw from the garden is the burial place of the Virgin Mary. Next to the burial place of Mary is a crypt where Jesus lived and taught his disciples.

Next we drove to the Mount of Olives where it is believed from that spot Christ ascended into Heaven. There also is where the Lord's Prayer was given.

From there we walked the Stations of the Cross, the first being where Pontius Pilate condemned Jesus to die and a crown of thorns was put on his head. From there he carried his cross all the way up to Calvary. On the way he dropped the cross 3 times, was met by his mother, Mary, his face wiped by St. Veronica. Over the place where he died on Mt. Calvary the Church of the Holy Sepulchre is built containing the last 4 stations. We saw the exact spot where the Roman soldiers stripped off His garment and where he was nailed to the Cross and where the cross itself stood. The 14th station of the cross is the Tomb of the Holy Sepulchre itself where Jesus was buried and then of course arose. We saw part of the actual rock that was rolled against the sepulchre.

There are seven gates through the wall surrounding the old city of Jerusalem. However, only 3 are operating today.

A short distance from there is the Dome of the rock where Abraham was to offer up Isaac, his only born son, as a burnt offering. (Genesis chapter 22) Over that rock now is built a beautiful Arab Mosque. The Arabs believe their prophet Mohammed ascended into heaven from that rock. At that rock the First Masonic Lodge was founded. To the Jews this rock is important because long ago during Passover week they daily killed 2 or 3 thousand sheep on that rock as offerings to God.

For a 100 years the Crusaders held that rock and built the Temple of Domina over it. Then the Arabs came and drove the Christians out in 1187 and Salahdin made it a Mosque again. It is still a mosque today.

From there we went to see the Wailing Wall which is where the Jews wept at one time years ago, because they lost Jerusalem.

We left Jerusalem December 26 at 4:15 p. m., and arrived in Cairo at 7:00 p. m.

On December 27, we visited 3 Arab Mosques, the first being King Hassin's Mosque which is 700 years old. This King cut off the hands of the architect that built the Mosque so he would not be able to build another of such magnificance.

The second was the Mosque of the Royal Family where King or rather the Ex-King Farouk's father is buried.

The third mosque we saw was the Mohammed Ali Mosque which is built on pillars over the Well of Joseph and is the higest Mosque in Cairo.

Following the Mosques we saw the Egyptian museum. Since we had so litle time, we only saw a small portion of it. As you enter the museum huge granite statues greet the eye, one in particular being of Rameses 2nd, ruler of Egypt 100 B. C. He is reported to have had 111 sons and 69 daughters.

We saw funeral boats which were used 2000 B. C.

And, of course, we saw Tut-Ankh-Amun's treasures from one of the most famous pyramids in Egypt. He ruled from age 10 to 18 and then he was poisioned, 1500 B. C. At that day and time they (Kings) had chairs, beds, traveling beds. He was embalmed and put into 3 different mummy cases. This pyramid was found in 1922.

On December 28, we journeyed by private auto to see the pyramids and the Sphinx at Giza. There we were at the edge of the Sahara Desert. The Sphinx has the face of a woman for beauty,the head of a man for brains and the body of a lion to signify strength.

One of the pyramids we entered was of a prime minister 2500 B. C. All over the walls were painted inscriptions of the things he did.

We departed Cairo December 29 at 3:25 in the morning and arrived in Athens 7:05 a. m.

James, Randy, Paul, were waiting at the Airport. Fatine was home with Diane. And, of course, we were all overjoyed at seeing each other.

Our address in Germany is: Capt. James K. Foshee A02231046, 7025 Air Postal Group, APO 12, N. Y., N. Y.

Hope all of you are fine.—Love, Margie, James, Randy, Paul, Diane.

Prepares for National FFA Week

The Jemison Chapter of the Future Farmers of America, the National organization of boys studying vocational agriculture is preparing its department for the National FFA Week which this year is February 22-28.

Some of the things they have done or are in the prosess of doing are as follows:

1. Purchased copies of the 1958 edition of the Handbook of Alabama Agriculture, recently published by the Alabama Poilytechnic Institute, Extension Service, Auburn. This 420 page guide to better farming carries thousands of facts that farmers can use in improving their operations.

2. Are in the process of ordering all new agriculture bulletins that pertain to farming in this area. Raymond Hilyer, FFA Reporter, wrote to Senator Hill requesting a list of bulletins that were available. The Chapter is selecting the appropriate bulletins.

3. Are in the process of giving the Vocational building a face lifting with a bright, new, fresh coat of paint.

4. Completed a shed and pasture for the Chapter's FFA bull.

February 22-28 is an important occasion for every FFA member in Alabama and throughout the Nation. The purpose of the celebration of FFA Week is call attention to the work of the Future Farmers of today, who will be the successful farmers of tomorrow.

"I have found the enclosed statement in some very old files. I have no record that I ever paid this bill, and evidently filed it away to take care of it. My sincere apologies for an unforgivable delay."

The Telephone Company thanked him for the payment but advised him his check would be retained as a souvenir and would not be cashed.

ATTENTION: Self-Employed Farmers Of Chilton County

Self-employed farmers may use an alternate method for figuring their earnings from their farm, J. W. Overstreet, Jr., district manager of the local Social Security Administration office, and George D. Patterson, District Director of Internal Revenue, reminded farm operators today.

Mr. Patterson pointed out that self-employed farmers may figure their earnings for social security in several ways.

1. If your gross income from agricultural self-employment is not more than $1800, you may count as your net farm earnings either your actual net or 2/3 of your farm gross income;
2. If your gross farm income is more than $1800, and your net farm earnings are less than $1200, you may use either your actual net or $1200, you may use either your actual net or $1200;
3. If your gross farm income is more than $1800 and your net farm earnings are $1200 or more, you must use the actual amount of your net earnings.

Mr. Patterson added that use of the option will enable farmers with gross income as low as $600 to obtain social security protection for themselves in their old age and for their survivors in case of death. However, he said that in order to receive any social security credit, a farmer must be able to report at least $400 for social security purposes based either on his actual net profit or by using the optional method.

In addition to the revised optional method, the 1956 amendments extended social security coverage to some farm owners who receive cash or crop shares from tenant farmers. If the farm-landlord under his agreement with his tenant, materially participates in the production or management of production of the farm crops raised on his land, this income, formerly excluded as rental income, may be reported for social security purposes. This provision is effective for taxable years ending after 1955.

Requests for information regarding taxes due and tax return forms should be directed to the Internal Revenue Office at 1531 3rd Avenue, North, Birmingham, Alabama. Questions concerning the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program will be answered by your social security office at 1710 1st Avenue, North, Birmingham, Alabama.

BETTER PLANNING—

Timber Growers Should Plan Improvements Now

AUBURN, Ala.—Better planning of woodlands will greatly increase returns made from these areas.

Not only that, but a well-managed tract of land will yield important benefits in protection of soil and water resources.

Now is a good time for timber owners to begin planning improvement cuttings in their woodlands. However, the cutting itself can be put off until summer. At that time, freshly-cut stumps are least likely to sprout.

Overage and surplus trees should be cut to make room for young, well-shaped trees to grow to their best potentials. This means regular removal of diseased, damaged, or badly shaped trees--as well as vines and poorer species. Many of these cuts can pay for themselves, if used for firewood, pulpwood, fence posts, poles, or even sawlogs. And most of these improvement cuttings will eventually pay off by adding to the value of the remaining timber.

Overmature trees that aren't growing at a profitable rate should be harvested before they rot or are damaged. Such trees can usually be recognized by flattened crowns, thin foliage, and somewhat thinner barks. Getting rid of them gives fast-growing trees with straight trunks roo mto continue healthy and profitable growth.

County agents and local foresters will give advice on improvement cuttings and possible markets for timber.

RANCID-TASTING coffee is often the result of tiny particles of old coffee which cling to the inside surface of the coffee pot. A well-scoured coffee pot makes the best- flavored coffee.

FOR EGGS—

Coolers Are A Must During Hot Weather

AUBURN, Ala.—When temperatures soar upwards, egg producers need extra help in maintaining high egg quality.

For this reason, more and more egg producers and handlers are adding refrigeration equipment to their operations. This will aid them in keeping eggs fresh for their customers. Poultrymen who neglect to provide such equipment will find egg marketing more and more difficult.

The best time for installing egg coolers is before hot weather arrives. Then the equipment will be on hand to give needed protection to egg quality when temperatures get above the danger mark and the air gets too dry.

Coolers may be purchased as a complete package or can be built on the premises. Coolers that will maintain temperatures of 55 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit and relative humidity of 80 to 85 per cent are more satisfactory. Both temperature and moisture conditions are important in maintaining high quality in eggs.

KEEP fudge frosting soft and workable while using by placing the dish in a pan of hot water.

Notified of Fisher's new duties, Mr. Wm E. We are happy that Mr. Fisher was selected for this special training at Gilead."

Gilead's sole purpose, he stated, is the training of Christian ministers to aid in the Witnesses' worldwide Bible educational work.

MARBURY FFA—

OUR PROGRESS OF THE PAST 3 YEARS

Before we started taking agriculture three years ago, there were many things the class did not know. In fact, we never dreamed so many interesting and practical things could be included in any one class. We have this class to be one in which we learn to spell new words, increase our vocabulary and solving problems in mathematics. All these we realize are necessary if we are to fill our place in our neighborhood as a wide-awake, alert, and capable co-operative citizens. We have found the class to also be different as for as classroom procedure is concerned. We are more at liberty to have free movement rather than sit in one desk. This is due to individuals choice of the provided variety project offered to the students in the agriculture department.

It is also here in which we have participated in a number of contest which is offered to all members. These are in livestock, poultry, corn growing, tractor driving, and speaking contest.

Among the many useful projects studied as a class we have learned the correct ways to set out pine seedlings, cull chickens, to judge hogs, cows, chickens, and sheep. The study of the different breeds of the above was especially interesting to a large majority of the class. Interest came so some members and led them to an individual project for further observation and research for information. Quite a few of our class showed excellent ability and originality for our dream house.

Last year we helped to sponsor a rodeo. The enthusiasm was so high by the students and community, the results were so satisfactory plans are in the serving for a bigger and better one this spring.

The Future Farmer's Organization is a strong one and the foundations and principles upon which it was established are durable and worthwhile. Since we represent the agricultural generation of tomorrow it behooves us all to learn to be skilled mechanics, chemists, bookkeepers, and successful. Thereby serving as our guide for like the motto of our great organization "Learning to Do, Doing To Learn, Earning To Live, Living To Serve."

CONTROL OF FLIES—

Methoxchlor Is Safe For Use On Dairy Cows

AUBURN, Ala.—Methoxchlor is effective in controlling hornflies on dairy cattle. But the material should only be used as a dust treatment for this job, cautioned the Agricultural Research Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The recent announcement follows a decision by the Food and Drug Administration of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

According to the FDA, no residue of methoxchlor is permitted in milk; however, there is no objection to use of methoxchlor on dairy cows if the insecticide is applied to so that no residue occurs in milk.

Studies made by USDA entomologists show that methoxchlor--applied as a dust treatment to only the backs of dairy cows--leaves no residue in milk. The specialists have found that such a dust treatment provides excellent control of hornflies--one of the most costly pests of dairy cattle.

The Department recommends applying one tablespoonful of 50 percent methoxychlor powder to each animal, sprinkling the material over the back and rubbing it lightly into the hair. This treatment will provide control of hornflies for about three weeks. The researchers caution, however, that methoxychlor dust treatments to an animal will not control lice, other biting flies, the house fly, or ticks.

Methoxychlor used as a spray and applied to dairy cows for control of hornflies or other insect pests is not recommended by USDA specialists. The insecticide as a spray is advised, however, for use in dairy barns as a residual treatment for control of stable flies and houseflies.

For House Of Represenatives

It is my pleasure to report that I have qualified with the Secretary of State as a candidate for the Democratic nominee for Member of the Alabama State House of Representatives from Chilton County.

The people of Chilton County have been very good to me for several years and particularly during the past few years while I have been engaged in the practice of law in Clanton. It is now my wish to have the oportunity to serve the people of Chilton County in our State Legislature.

During the next three months my campaign will be conducted on a personal basis throughout the County and it is my intention to see all voters before the May 6 Primary. My campaign will be based entirely on the proposition that I will give to Chilton County the representation in the Legislature that it needs and deserves.

My candidacy will not be tied to any slate or group in this County or any other place. My only aim will be to serve all of the people of the County to the best of my ability during the next four critical years. Your valued support is earnestly solicited. — Glen T. Bashore.

YOUR Health

FIRST MEDICAL MOVIE

The first known motion picture of a medical subject was a study of the heart beat of a dog made by Dr. Edward Riechert in 1887. It is recorded that, even in those early days of medical research, the dog was completely anesthetized and suffered no pain. The result of Dr. Reichert's experiment was a series of pictures taken by a battery of cameras which showed the successive phases of the contraction and dilation of the heart.

Compare this first primitive motion picture of a medical subject with the visual education in surgical procedures being accomplished today. Through the wizardry of color television, thousands of physicians and medical students sit before screens to study a close-up view of an operation being performed in a hospital some distance away. The potentials of television as a teaching medium were discussed in medical schools several years ago. Early in 1947, the first satisfactory experiments in televising surgery in black-and-white were made at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. The importance of adding color to such television presentations was stressed by Dr. I. S. Ravdin, head of the Department of Surgery, University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, Philadelphia.

A pharmaceutical company, of Philadelphia, with the aid of a national broadcasting company's laboratories, set up and tested color television of surgical operations at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania two years ago. Televising a surgical operation in color involves much detail and preliminary planning, and a crew of six is required in the operating room, and to man the receivers. The surgeons wear tiny microphones inside their masks and describe each phase of the operation as it is clearly shown in color on the screens. So delicate is the electronic phase of the televising that the sound of the scalpel as it makes the incision is heard!

Bible Languages: Aramaic!

Toward the close of the eleven hundred year stretch of time over which the Hebrew Scriptures were written a language other than Hebrew cropped up now and then in Bible manuscripts. That intruding tongue was Aramaic. Though words that had been incorporated into Hebrew had appeared before Jeremiah's day, it was in his writings that a complete statement in Aramaci first appeared. (Jer. 10:11, Am. Stan. Ver., margin) Later on down in Babylon Daniel wrote more extensively in Aramaci all the way from 2:4 to 7:28. (See marginal note on Daniel 2:4 in the American Standard Version.) Still later, long after the end of the captivity of the Jews in Babylon and near the close of the period of Hebrew-Scripture writings, scribe Ezra wrote in Aramaic in the book that bears the name, from 4:8 to 6:18, and again at chapter 7, verses 12 to 26. (Once more confirms by checking the marginal readings in the American Standard Version, this time in connection with Ezra 4:8 and 7:12) But with these brief portions of Bible scholar's interest in Aramaic does not end.

Aram was a plain extending west and east from the Lebanon mountains and beyond the Euphrates river, and north to south from the Taurus mountains to beyond Damascus. The country Aram seems to have corresponded generally to the Syria and Mesopotamia of the Greeks and Romans. This extensive plain was occupied by the descendants of Shem's son Aram, who were called Aramaeans, and whose language was called Aramaic. Hence their tongue was of the Semitic family of languages and closely related to Hebrew. Throughout the time that the Israelites spoke Hebrew they were constantly in touch with Aramaic speaking people. Abraham, descended from Shem through Arphaxed, lived for a time in Haran, which was in Abraham Mesopotamia. Isaac's wife came from the same place. However, it is not until the close of Jacob's twenty year sojourn in Aramaic tongues. Then it was that Jacob and his Aramaic-speaking father-in-law Laban used different words to designate a heap of witness. (See Genesis 31:47, and the two marginal references thereon in the American Standard Version.) When together in the household of Shem, Aram and Arphaxad, of course, spoke the original Semitic language. Now, some 600 years later, their descendants speech was no longer the same. Aramaic had by this time begun branching off from the original Semitic language of Hebrew. Just how different the tongues were at that early date is not known.

After the nation of Israel entered the Promised Land Aramean tribes dwelt among them, and close connections existed between the Israelites and the Aramaens during the period of Judges. (Josh. 13:1 3:1 Chron. 2:23; Judg. 10:6, Am. Standard Version margin) King David subjugated a great part of Aram; he married an Aramean princess from Geshur. Solomon carried on trade with Kings of Aram. When the close association between the Israelites and the Aarameans, it is not difficult to understand why Aramaic traits are found in Solomon's writings. Ecclesiastes and Song of Solomon. From the days of David and Solomon to about 400 B. C. the Arameans were the international traders on land carrying their goods and their language far beyond the borders of their land.

During the reigns of the kings of the ten-tribe kingdom of Israel repeated clashes occurred between the Israelites and Syrians, or Arameans. The northern part of the Israelite kingdom was conquered; towns changed hands several times. The Syrian king of Damascus even set up trading-quarters in Israel's capital, Samaria. Even Judah was invaded during the reign ofKing Ahaz and some Judeans were taken captive northward to Damascus. Then when Syria was subdued by Assyria and the ten-tribe kingdom later fell to the Assyrian Shalmaneser IV, in 740 B. C., he moved Israelites into Aramaic-speaking sections of his empire and transported into Samaria people from places of his empire where Aramaic was spoken wholly or in part. This put Aramaic speaking people at the very doors of Judah. A few years later it is revealed that the officials of Judah could understand Aramaic, but the common people could not. (2 Ki. 18:26, Am. Stan. Ver., margin) All of this shows the nearness of the Hebrews and the Arameans and explains the more and more frequent appearances of Aramaisms in the Scripture writings as time marched on.

When Jerusalem fell in 607 B. C. most of the Jews were taken captive to Babylon. Long before, the Arameans had overrun the Tigris-Euphrates valley, and by the time the south had filtered northward into Babylonian and Aramaic. It was at one time inaccurately believed that Chaldee and Aramaic were the same. At any rate, when the Jews arrived in Babylon they rapidly added Aramaic expressions to their speech. It is very likely that at this time and shortly after the release from captivity the Jews could understand both Hebrew and Aramaic, but Hebrew was fading and Aramaic was coming in stronger and stronger. After Nehemiah's time the Jews, surrounded by and intermingled with Aramaic-speaking peoples, forgot Hebrew and spoke only Aramaic. Ever since the reign of Darius (521-485 B. C.) Aramaic had been recognized as the international language.

The trained Jewish priests and scribes alone kept the Bible Hebrew alive. When they read from the Scriptures they were obliged to accompany the reading with a paraphrase in Aramaic in order that the common Jewish people could understand. In time these Aramaic paraphrases were put into writing and called Targums. When Christ Jesus was on earth the language of the Jewish people was Aramaic, and for that reason the Greek Scriptures call it Hebrew. Matthew's Gospel, which seems to have been written with the Jews particularly in mind, was first recorded in Aramaic. It was later translated by Matthew himself into the koine' Greek that was so widely understood at that time. No Aramaic copies of Matthew's Gospel have been preserved. This seems to indicate that there was not the widespread demand for it that there was for the Greek version in the international koine' Greek of that time.

It is quite probable that by A. D. 100 Jehovah's witnesses at Antioch had translated at least the gospels into the Aramaic dialect spoken there, called Syriac (which was somewhat different from the Aramaic spoken in Palestine). Because some Palestinian Aramaic words appear in this translation it is believed that it was made by refugee Christians from Palestine. This version is known as the Old Syriac Version. From time to time this version was revised and eventually came to be known as the Peshitta. This revision seems to have been complete by the beginning of the fifth century after Christ. By about the fifth or sixth century the Greek Scriptures were translated into Palestinian Aramaic of that time. However, with the rise and spread of Islam, which began in the seventh century, Arabic took place of Aramaic and Aramaic ceased to be a livin glanguage, except in a few out-of-the-way places in the mountain regions of northwestern Iran (formerly called Persio). Thus Aramaic joined Hebrew in the grave of dead languages.

Bible Languages: Greek next in series.

LOVE and XXXAA: I see by the heart-shaped candy boxes and the like around here that St. Valentine's is not far off. Remember when we were kids how much fun it was to make our valentines and run all over town delivering them? But the older we get the more our families and friends get scattered and the harder it is to keep in touch. That's when it's nice to visit by Long Distance. On special occasions, or just anytime you want to say hello to someone you miss, a Long Distance call is the quick, easy way, and real fun, too! And remember, whenever you call, it costs less to call station-to-station. (Rates are even lower after 6 P.M. and on Sundays.)

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON CO.

J. Luther Kendricks

This is to advise you that I have qualified as a candidate for the ofice of Sheriff of Chilton County, subject to the Democratic primaries of May and June, 1958.

First: I would like to thank the many good citizens of this county who have come and asked me to run for this office, some of you who were frank enough to tell me that you did not vote for me four years ago, but pledged your all-out support for me, should I get into the race this time. This makes me feel very humble and thankful to all of you for your confidence and I assure all of the people that I will never betray that confidence if I am elected as your sheriff.

To the new comers of our County, I will give a brief background of my life. I am 47 years of age. I ame a native Chilton Countian, am married and have two children. My son is a high school senior this year and my daughter is in the Sixth grade. I am a member of the First Baptist Church in Clanton. I spent the early part of my life on the farm with my parents. Later I worked at a service station and garage t Thorsby for several years, after which I was employed as an auto mechanic by the U. S. Forest Service at Talladega, Alabama. In September 1941 I was employed by the Alabama Highway Patrol as a patrolman. I held that position until January 1, 1951, except for the period of March 1944 to December 6, 1945 when I was stationed in the European Theatre of Operation with the U. S. Army as a combat soldier and during the political campaign of 1950 while I was running for the office of sheriff to which I was elected.

Most of the time since I went out of the sheriff's office in 1955, which I lost by 58 votes, I have been employed as an automobile salesman. During the time I was with the Alabama Highway Patrol my efficiency rating was excellent. During my term as sheriff of this county, every Grand Jury was very complimentary of the job that the deputies and I were doing.

During my term of office, I was the first sheriff of this county to bring radio communication to Chilton County sheriffs' cars. I also installed a filing system in that office in order for us to give better service to the citizens of this county. My friends and I were also successful in getting a deputy sheriff added to the force, he being assigned to the western section of the county and the other deputies salaries raised. I was the first sheriff to bring a law enforcement school to the county for the benefit of all the officers of this area.

During my term as sheriff I did everything possible to make the best sheriff that this county had ever had and I knew that we had had some mighty good sheriffs. If you citizens will honor me again with this office, I again will do everything in my power to be the best sheriff that you have ever had. I realize now that I made some mistakes while I was your sherif but they were honest mistakes, but I am only human and of course none of us are perfect, but I will earnestly try to make as few as possible.

I have not promised anyone a job as deputy nor will I promise anyone a job until after the election is over. I do not believe in trying to get votes in this manner. If you citizens elect me as sheriff I will get the very best citizens as deputies that I possibly can, making sure that they are honest, energetic, capable and mature enough to make good sound decisions in their work.

I pledge to you citizens, if elected, to do my best at all times to cooperate fully with all Federal, State and City officers in order to make Chilton County a better, safer and cleaner place in which to live, and I would try to get some good State ABC men stationed back in our county. I have always stood for good, clean, fair law enforcement.

I believe that my record as sheriff before show the citizens where I stand on the liquor business. I don't believe in only catching the cusomers of a bootlegger. I think much more good can be accomplished by getting at the roots of any crime; this I promise to do.

I am a member of the Chilton County Citizens Council and a firm believer in segregation. I firmly believe that God segregated the races and we certainly ought not to try to de-segregate them. I believe that the two races can progress better by not being intergrated and if I am elected as your sheriff I will do everything that I can legally to oppose integration.

I would like to warn the citizens of this county against paying any attention to the false rumors that have already started in this campaign. You may rest assured there will be more of them, as you know certain ones have waged a campaign of this type against me. They have already started telling them. Let me say here, that I never voted anything but a Democratic ticket and whether I am the Democratic nominee this Fall or not, I will still vote the Democratic ticket, even though I do enjoy the friendship of many good Republicans of this county. If you elect me as your sheriff I will not show any partiality in enforcing the laws of our State and County as to the Democrats and Republicans.

I would like to state here that I have not and will not be instrumental in getting any candidate to run for any other office and I will certainly not take any part in any other candidate's race other than in the sheriff's race.

I do not believe in mud slinging campaigns for I have stated many times before that Chilton County needs builders, not knockers. As fas as I know at this time, all of the ones that I have heard mentioned that might run for sheriff are good men and I think they are my friends. I will do my best to conduct the type ot campaign that when the race is over we will still be friends.

May I remind you that as a State Highway Patrolman, I served you honorably; as a combat soldier of World WarII, I served you honorably; as sheriff of Chilton County from 1951 to 1955, I served you honorably and if I am elected sheriff this time I will still serve you honorably.

Let's keep Chilton County a good place to Visit, A better place to live". Your support and friendship are earnestly solicited by me.

Respectfully yours, J. Luther Kendrick.

Pd. Pol. Adv. by J. Luther Kendrick, Clanton, Alabama.)

FFA URGES SOIL TESTS OF COUNTY LANDS

The Jemison Chapter of the Future Farmers of America is encouraging its members to make soil test on all crop land.

Rain damage to crops last fall, resulting in heavy financial losses to most farmers, makes it more important than ever to use the correct amounts of fertilizer and lime as recommended by the soil test. Every dollar put into fertilizer and lime must get the greatest possible return.

Te Jemison FFA members realize that scientific farming is here to stay and are starting the 1958 crop year off by making soil test and plan to fertilize their projects by the results of these tests. — Raymond Hilyer, FFA Reporter.

AGAIN AN APPEAL FOR POLIO SHOTS

High Schoolers Most Unprotected

Your Health Department wishes to thank each one of you who responded to a recent appeal to utilize the current stock of Poliomyelitis vaccine before its expiration date. All of the expiring vaccine in the state was used before it expired. The small supply of vaccine purchased with Federal funds has been received. Chilton County received an order last week of 900 cc's or enough for 900 injections.

All persons receiving this vaccine still have to meet the Federal regulations - under 20 years of age and expectant mothers. Only slightly more than 50 per cent of eligible persons in Chilton County have been protected. The high school age group is the least protected. We want to urge those who are in need of vaccinations to go to their family physician or to the Health department and attend to this important matter now.

Polio can be prevented only when each individual gets a series of anti polio vaccinations.

KEEPING out of the ruts is the main difficulty on the road to success.

GENIUS may light it's own fire, but it takes a lot of ambition to keep it burning.

IT's much easier to build a reputation than it is to keep it from getting tarnished.

A WORTHY GOOD TURN --

The Boy Scouts of America observe its 48th anniversary during Boy Scout Week, February 7 to 13, by launching a yearlong nationwide Good Turn. The Safety Good Turn, undertaken at the suggestion of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, will find 4,700,000 boys and leaders engaged in promoting traffic safety, outdoor safety, and home safety.

We are accustomed to great achievements from our Boy Scouts. Their outstanding work in the 1952 Get-Out-the-Vote campaigns, their Conservation Good Turn in 1954, their collection of nearly two million items of clothing, foodstuffs, and supplies for the needy in 1934, and other activities in behalf of their fellow Americans have given us approximately twenty million past and present Boy Scouts who have learned the real meaning of service.

Calling the Safety Good Turn "an opportunity for service to your country in the highest tradition of the Boy Scouts of America," President Eisenhower said, "We must seek new ways to save the basic resources of our nation: Its people."

He told the Boy Scouts that he was encouraged by the splendid results of their Conservation Good Turn. "I now urge you," he wrote, "to adopt Safety as your service project for 1958. Through the concerted action of your members, and in cooperation with other organizations, you can alert the public to the urgent need for reducing the tragic toll of accidents."

We congraulate the Boy Scouts on past achievements and wish them well as they undertake this great public service to the community, state, and nation.

THE PERFECT VALENTINE --

ST. Valentine's Day is ruled by the heart.

HOW the day originated, however, has been a matter of dispute for generations.

The romantic contend it started in England, with gentlemen carrying gifts to their ladies on the day that birds chose to begin their mating.

The historically-minded claim the day is a tribute to two third-century martyrs, both named St. Valentine, and that -- in recognition of their kindly deeds -- it became a custom to exchange tokens of love.

The origin of the day is of little importance now. It is enough to concede that St. Valentine's Day is well-established as a day for making gifts to those we love.

In this context, it is appropriate to note that St. Valentine's Day marks the half-way point of the 1958 Heart Fund campain.

So we suggest that, in thinking of affairs of the heart, you consider the vital organ which makes life possible. How better could one show affection than through a Heart Fund gift intended to protect the heart of a loved one?

A fight for the hearts of all those you love - meaning a contribution to the Heart Fund - is indeed the perfect Valentine!

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

CONGRESSIONAL action has been completed on legislation that will name the present Tuscaloosa Lock and Dam for the late William Bacon Oliver. I introduced this measure (H. R. 6660) last year, and it received House approval before Congress adjourned in August. The Senate passed the bill on Thursday of last week, and it is now awaiting the President's signature.

Mr. Oliver, who represented the Sixth Alabama District in Congress for more than twenty years, played a major role in securing the first appropriation for the construction of the lock and dam at Tuscaloosa.

Although the structure was unofficially named for the late congressman in 1940 by citiens of Tuscaloosa County, it is still legally designated as the Tuscaloosa Lock and Dam. Before the name can be changed on all official records to the William Bacon Oliver Lock and Dam, final approxal of H. R. 6660 is necessary.

SPACE AGENCY

A bill has been apssed which creates under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of Defense an Advanced Research Projects Agency. The first director of this new agency will be Roy W. Johnson, a vice-president of the General Electric Company.

The main job of the A.R.P.A., as explained by Defense Secretary McElroy, is to provide planning and direction to all United States space projects.

At the same time this legislation was sent to the White House, Congress also referred to the President the $1.26 billion-dollar emergency defens appropriation bill which includes funds to establish the Advanced Research Projects Agency.

COMMITTEE STUDIES

In other legislation, the Senate last week created a committee of its own to investigate the problems of outer space and to make recommendations as to whether the control of future projects should come under civilian or military jurisdiction.

The resolution which established the committee was introduced by Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson (D-Texas) and was passed with only one dissenting vote.

A similar bill introduced in the House of Representatives proposes a 31-member group to study problems of the space age.

PAY TELEVISION

While I was in the Sixth District during the congressional recess, a number of people expressed an interest, both pro and con, in subscription television. Last week the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee passed a resolution in which the Committee pointed out that it had not been established to the Committee's complete satisfaction that the Federal Communications Commission, under present law, could authorize subscription television operations.

The resolution then called on the Federal Communications Commission not to grant authorizations for subscription TV-operations until Congress specifically empowers the Commission to do so.

ONLY YESTERDAY—

The 1958 Phi Betta Kappa Scholarship Competitions will be held in Munger Auditorium and seniors will also be guests of the college for luncheon on that day.

Birmingham-Southern annually awards two four-year scholarships, two scholarships for a two-year period and two one-year scholarships to those scoring highest in the written tests. Other scholarships also are awarded each year by the college on the basis of need and of records made in the Phi Beta Kappa tests.

Deadline for entering this year's competitions is Sunday, Feb. 16. Students wishing to take the tests should send copies of their high school transcripts to Dr. E. S. Ownbey, chairman of the Phi Beta Kappa Scholarship Committee, Birmingham-Southern College.

NAVY—

You Can Be Part of "Heart of Dixie Company

A SPECIAL Navy Recruit Company to be known as the "Heart of Dixie Company" will be enlisted from the Birmingham Recruiting District in February. The Birmingham Navy Recruiting District includes Alabama, Northern Florida and Eastern Mississippi.

Chief Jensen of the Clanton Navy Recruiting Station said that the "Heart of Dixie Company" will be made up of 75 men who will go to San Diego, California as a group for their "boot" training. The unit is scheduled to leave from Birmingham on the 27th of February. Present plans are to send the group by air.

The Navy has special programs for high school graduates who can qualify for them and they will be available to graduates enlisting in this company."

The "Heart of Dixie Company" will be the second such company to be enlisted from this area. Last year the "Heart of Dixie Company" was formed and subsequently received recruit training at the Navy Training Center in San Diego, California.

In competition with thirteen other companies, the "Heart of Dixie Company" led the field in all bases of training and was graduated with honors at the graduation ceremonies.

Members of the new "Heart of Dixie Company" will again have the chance to prove that the men from this area are "tops" in whatever they do.

All young men between the ages of 17 and 31 are eligible to enlist. Navy recruiter Jensen urges interested men to see him as soon as possible at the Post Office Building in Clanton. All processing must be completed by February 26 to insure a position in the "Dixie" Company.

Layman Interested In Radio Ministry

Raymond H. Nichols, oustanding layman of the Methodist Church today and President of the General Board of Lay Activities of the church since 1944, urges a greater interest in the progress of the radio ministry. At the Second National Conference of Methodist Men held recently at Purdue University, he pointed out that the first national project of Methodist Men in the radio field has ban welcomed, country wide. This is the Methodist Men's Hour, an annual series of 36 half-hour programs for weekly broadcasts. It is sponsored here by the Methodist Men of the Clanton Methodist Church, over Station WKLF at 5:00 p. m. every Sunday.

"The program offers a magnificent opportunity to laymen to extend their ministry and that of the church," Mr. Nichols said. "As an action project its success has been most gratifying and its acceptance by listeners of all faiths has been inspiring." First produced in 1952, the number of radio stations broadcasting the program has increased from 35 to 352 in just five years, and requests for copies of the program sermons have increased in proportion.

A speaker of national recognition, Mr. Nichols is editor and publisher of the Vernon, Texas, Daily Record and is currently Vice President of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. In June, 1957, he was the U. S. Employer Representative to the International Labor Conference in Geneva, Switzerland, and is a member of the Permanent Advisory Committee to the U. S. State Department on affairs of International Labor Organization. Mr. Nichols has been a member of the General Board of the National Council of Churches of Christ in U. S. A. since 1948, and is a member of the Executive Committee of the World Methodist Council.

THINGS We see and hear

by "TUCK"

HOSPITAL Admiuistrator Sudduth did us an injustice the other day. He was by the office and during the conversation that ensued he asked why we didn't send papers to the hospital each week, as did other similar publications in the vicinity. It was the dear old Chilton County News that initiated the practice of making available to hospital patients the News, free of charge, each week. In face, we even went so far as to put a little "get-well" stamp in the corner (and still do). You know the old saying about "copied, but never duplicated;" well we've been supplying papers to patients for five or six years now and delivering them, in person, each week. He (Mr. Sudduth) did offer us an agreement by which we would all be satisfied and we appreciate his concern and cooperation.

HAD a fellow in from a neighboring county this past week and speaking of politics he remarked that "a fellow just doesn't know. . ." Elaborating, he said he was in an embarrasing situation. It seems that the fellow he voted for in a general election became Sheriff and during said Sheriff's term in office he proceedd to "physically beat to a pulp" a friend of said voter's. We can understand his predicament in "not knowing" and hope that this might serve as a nudge in the ribs of thought and good judgement in the upcoming election in our own County of Chilton.

WE certainly missed not being able to attend the Alabama Press Association's winter business meeting at Tuscaloosa this past weekend, but it's a funny thing; back a few months ago when business was slack, nobody wanted us to go anywhere; and now that business is picking up and we're working 'round and 'round the clock, it seems like meetings in general are picking up accordingly. . . what you gonna do?

IT'S a strange thing to us the way a voter looks at a candidate for public office and the way a candidate looks at himself. The voter distrusts everybody in general and usually knows little about any one cnaidiate in particular, yet somehow, he still manages to have a decided opinion on the character and potential of practically every candidate in the running. To the candidate, on the other hand, as far as he's concerned, personally, he IS the only one in the running, or he'd be saving his money. There is nothing more humble than a would be office-holder around election time and the common voter chooses this time to be his obstinate worst, but at the same time, he is the most gullible character you ever met. He'll swallow any wild tale. He is full in the knowledge that he (finally) has something that someone else wants and is vying for. That's what makes our Democracy a paying proposition. That's why your one small vote can have so much influence in this free government of ours. Don't pass it off lightly. It's important to you, that vote, and to your descendents.

NOTICE the size of Clanton? Quite impressive and possibly a bit deceiving is the view that confronts the nighttime motorist coming into Clanton from South on Highway 31 .Street lights and neon signs indicate blocks and blocks of nothing but "Clanton". No longer a hole in the highway, we are an economical influence in the State of Alabama and the U.S.A. You may be fooled as to the "acreage" of the city, but never undestimate the influence of our people, the acreage of heart and hospitality and the general friendliness we are blessed with. We are growing, progressing. We should be proud of Clanton.

AND somebody said something about frost in April, but by golly we believe the good Lord will certainly turn a favorable countenance upon Chilton farmers this year and give the peach and berry growers a bumper crop, especially of "The Tops" in mouthwatering goodness. . Chilton County Peaches. The economical force mentioned above would take a decided belt in the snoot if it were not for Chilton's faithful farmers and their dependence on the soil and their belief in the Almighty. We think they are due a break in 1958 and no doubt about it, a break for the farmer would be in the interest of all of us, not only the farmer. Check this week's front page for Peach Dormant Hours in Chilton County to date.

A CANDIDATE for one of the County offices was in talking with us the other day and we heartily agreed with practically everything he had to say. Only one thing went against the grain a bit with us. He said, and he was right, in a sense, that a politician in Chilton County didn't have a chance when it came to moral standing in the community. He seemed to think that chastisement was the accepted thing for ALL County and local officials no matter how hard they tried to do right or what they did in the peoples' best interest. Let us remind Mr. C. that there are two major elements in any community: those who "knock" everything, no matter what its merits, morals or no morals. And then there are those, we like to think the majority, who have the personal integrity to weigh everything as they see it and form their opinions by degrees, thereby "giving credit where credit is due" in most cases. We agree that some officials do get criticized more than others and some unjustly. Some are mere accusations, but we stand our ground on the belief that accusations never have and never will hurt anybody, providing they have strived to live clean and right in the first place. If you have something to hide, then you are foolish to run for public office. This is one of the first things, in our opinion, that a so-called politician is required to consider. Many times also, the criticism of the public is justified. We agree with Mr. C. that politicians are right up on the firing line when it comes to public opinion, but we personally feel that he needn't worry about his family's standing. . .that has already been established with neighbors and good friends to prove it. And let us also remind Mr. C. that while our first endeavor as a newspaper is to present the truth to the people; down the line there somewhere in our intentions is to recognize honest effort and to "give credit where credit is due" and we strive to that end.

FOR the simple sake of being different we are anxious to hear of a member of a Home Demonstration Club for once answering roll call with a simple "present" or "here" rather than going into the time-consuming details of how she makes egg yoo fooey or how she hooked her husband. It would be interesting to note who it was who had the "gall" to do such a thing.

WE are among the scores of local citizens who are extremely happy that the Rev. L. D. Brookshire and family have moved back to Clanton after a sojourn of a few months in Centreville. Bro. L. D. has taken the charge at West End Baptist here in Clanton and his congregation is pleased, to put it mildly. It must be nice to be such a likeable fellow.

Collins Chapel Farmer Lists Virtues of Blackberry Crop

"The first secret in making money in the blackberry business is to plant good healthy plants", says Mr. J. D. Cox of the Collins Chapel community. Certainly he must know what he is talking about because his 2 acres that was 9 years old last season produced 18,475 pound of berries. In 1956 the yield was 27,910 pound on these two acres and in 1954 the yield was 32,472 pounds on the same two acres.

When Mr. Cox set out this patch of berries 9 years ago, he made his furrow 10 ft. apart, dropped his plants in the row about 3 ft. apart and used two teeth on his cultivator plow to cover them. He got about 100 per cent survival in this manner. This berry grower reminds you here; however, "I had extra good plants that came from first year old setting and too these are the better plants, usually."

Mr. Cox fertilizes his berries after they are cut down in the summer with 600 pound of 16 per cent Nitrogen per acre. Then in the spring after the berries have been hung, he applies another 200 pounds of 16 per cent Nitrogen.

Mr. Cox says, "No other crop will give me as much return per acre as my berries and I am now planning to set out another 2 acres this spring when I can get the plants." "These berries are marketed through the Chilton County Fruit and Truck Growers' Association where about one-half of the money received from the berries go for fertilizer, hanging, and picking." "The other half is my profit", says Mr. Cox. The only labor Mr. Cox hires is for hanging and picking.

Mr. Cox answered the question on whether there is any money in blaskberry production by saying, "If it wasn't making me money, I would have been out of this business before now and I certainly would not be planning on increasing my berry acreage to 4 acres."

"Other farmers in Chilton County might increase their farm income with blackberries", says Albert Pitts, Assistant County Agent.

If you are interested, you should contact the County Agent's office.

POPLAR SPRINGS CHURCH AND SOCIAL EVENTS

Our attendance Sunday and Sunday night was much lower than usual. We have many members sick with the flu, but we are praying for each one of them to have a speedy recovery.

We urge each and everyone of our members to be present each time we have services. The world at it's worst needs the church at its best.

Our pastor and a large group of our people went to Bro Henry Patterson's home the other Sunday afternoon and had a wonderful service.

Bro. Henry joined our church after a full suffender of his heart and life to Jesus Christ. Bro. Henry has been ill for a long time, and we are all rejoicing over his accepting Christ as his Saviour. He and his good wife and family still need our prayers, so lets don't forget them.

The Youth Rally was held at New Cedron last Saturday night with Bro. Tom Cox bringing the message. Our church brought the banner back. We hope many more will get interested in the Youth Rally and go every two weeks.

We want everyone to think of our church as the little church with a big welcome.

Remember mid-week prayer service each Wednesday night at 7 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bowden spent Sunday in Union Springs with Mr. and Mrs. Walter McDaniel.

See you in church Sunday.

You Can Starve Moles By Killing Insects

While moles may be trapped, it will probably be easier to prevent mole damage.

Moles feed entirely upon insects and worms - not roots and seeds as comonly believed. These small mammals infest lawns and flower beds because their food is plentiful in them.

You can destroy most ground insects and worms by treating the soil. Broadcast eight pounds dieldrin, or heptachlor per acre on the area tunneled by moles and disk or wash material into soil. Dieldrin and heptachlor have a residual effect. Treatment of the area again may not be necessary for several years. With their natural food destroyed, moles may not frequent the treated area.

JOE W. GRAHAM

MAPLESVILLE, Alabama, Feb-10. Joe W. Graham has made it known that he is a candidate for Democratic Primaries as State Senator for the 15th Senatorial District which comprises the counties of Autauga, Chilton and Shelby. He is president of the Graham Lumber Company here and has been engaged in the lumnber business since 1940.

Currently Mr. Graham is a member of the Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee, the town Council of Maplesville, The Baptist Church, Civitan Club, School Trustee, and is a Past District Governor and Past International Sergeant-At-Arms, Civitan International.

He is a graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, with a B. S. degree and is married to the former Marie Ivey, of Marion, and they now have two sons.

Mr. Graham has devoted much of his time and energies to the civic enterprises in this area of Alabama, and is known locally as a most energetic and enthusiastic citizen.

When making his senatorial candidacy known Mr. Graham said: "I am interested in a lot of worthwhile things for the people of the 15th Senatorial District and all of the people of Alabama. I realize fully that teamwork in the State Senate is a must if anything is to be realized for the people I will represent when elected, and I shall certainly endeavor to become a member of the progressive senatorial Team when I enter the Senate. Among the items to which I shall give my support and constant attention are: 1. Increased appropriations for education; 2. Increasing the Old Age Assistance Program; 3. Creating additional jobs through industrial development; 4. An expanded River Development Program; 5. Legislation favorable to farmers and cattlemen, and 6. All legislation designed to aid in the welfare and progress of the people of my district and the State of Alabama. It shall be my constant aim to serve the people of this Senatorial District well and impartially."

Mr. Graham further stated that he would vigorously support and all legislation that would aid the people of Alabama in their effort to preserve our Southern Customs and Traditions: He declared that "Our Southern Way of Life" represented a sort of "fundamental religion" and that he would ever cherish the opportunity to faithfully uphold its sanctity.

In concluding his discussion of the race Mr. Graham stated that "I shall do my very best to contact every voter in the 15th Senatorial District within the next few weeks, and endeavor to present my candidacy to everyone in person. I shall cordially invite any one who may have questions to present to, or discuss with, me to call at my home and office here in Maplesville."

FALLS are the number one cause of accidents in the home. They are usually due to toys or other objects in the line of traffic, small rugs that skid, stairs without railings or light, articles stored on stairs, or slippery floors.

World production of food in 1957 is believed to be the largest in history, reports the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Yet it barely keeps pace with the world's increase in population.

POWELL MAKES SHERIFF'S RACE 'HIS BUSINESS'

Melvin Powell

In announcing my candidacy for the office of sheriff of Chilton County, I would like to say to the many citizens that I am very grateful for the encouragement, expressions of confidence, and pledged support that I received while deciding to enter this race. If elected I will strive every day to build this list until it includes every citizen of this county. I have never asked fo rany political office, but I firmly believe that I can conduct myself and the sheriffs office in such a manner that I will have the trust and confidence of every citizen of our county.

I am 44 years of age and a native of Chilton County I spent the early years of my life on the farm with my parents. Since being released from the Navy in 1945 I have resided at my home on Airport Road. While in the Navy I served in two operations in which over 2 year was spent overseas, first in the North and then in the South Pacific.

I am the son of J. L. Powell and the late Lillie Robinson Powell, and the son-in-law of J. I. Crew and Queenie DeVaughn Crew. Lettie and I have a nine year old daughter which places at my door my share of the responsibility to help make Chilton County an even more desirable place for our young people to live and enjoy. I firmly believe that every other means should be exercised to teach our boys and girls to be upright, law abiding citizens before bringing them before the courts. In these young people I am a Democrat having always supported the Democrat Party. I am a member of Concord Baptist Church, a graduate of Concord Jr., and Chilton County High Schools.

For some years I worked on different construction jobs and for Crew Brothers Wholesale Produce Company. For the past eleven years I have owned and operated my own retail grocery business on Lay Dam Road in Clanton. During these years I have enjoyed the friendship and loyalty of many good people, and for this I am very grateful.

If elected your sheriff I will enforce the law fairly and justly to every citizen of this county. My deputies an I will treat all apprehended persons with courtesy and respect. I will choose for my deputies only mature, upright men with cool heads and sound judgment. They shall conduct themselves at all times in such manner as to warrant the respect of all people. I will make every effort to work not only in harmony with all law enforcement officers of our county and state, but also with all offices of our local and state government. I will arrange my force to have 24 hour service to anyone needing assistance from the sheriff's office. I fully realize the sheriff can do little without the confidence and help of the people. All information will be welcomed and I personally promise any information received will be kept in strict confidence. I will always appreciate any sugegstions and help from anyone to make Chilton CSounty a cleaner and happier place in which to live.

During my campaign I refuse to take sides in any political disputes but I am asking for and will gladly accept any help and support from anyone. I intend to conduct my own campaign and do so in such a manner that when the voting is over, win or lose, I will have the respect of my opponents as well as all the people of our county.

I humbly ask for your vote and influence. — Melvin Powell.

Last Saturday I qualified as a candidate for Judge of Probate, subject to the Democratic Primaries of May 6 and June 3, 1958.

Your expressions of confidence and encouragement have influenced me to become a candidate for this high office, and I feel deeply indebted to you.

The fine vote you gave me in the Judge of Probate race in 1952 will always be a source of strength to me, and I am very grateful to all the citizens of Chilton County for the consideration shown me in the last election.

If you elect me your Probate Judge, I shall be your servant, mindful of my obligation to all citizens of our County, with a determination to carry out the duties of the office in harmony and unity with your elected Members of the Board of Revenue and Control.

In working with your Board Members, I shall endeavor to put into effect and administer the policies decided upon by the majority of the Board, and will not interfere with or counteract such policies. I will not intervene in the elections of Board Members or the election of any of your officials.

In all matters decided upon in an election by the people of Chilton County, I shall be governed strictly by your wishes and will not attempt by any means to overthrow the expressed will of the majority.

The last Grand Jury recommended that a new election be held on the question of constructing new buildings or repairing and adding to existing buildings. If such an election is held this November, and if you elect me to serve you, I shall act according to your decision in this matter.

If elected, I shall enter into the duties of office with deep humility. Conscious that the manner in which this office is conducted must at all times reflect favorably upon our Chilton County needs new industry which will provide job opportunities here at home and put more money into circulation. There are plenty of sites available for all kinds of factories in all the towns of our County. There are favorable sites in Chilton County for industries needing a large water supply. There are many men and women available who would welcome the chance to do productive work at good wages and salaries within a short distance of their homes. If given the opportunity to serve you, I shall work hard to bring new industry to our County, lending every posible aid to all organibations working in this cause.

If elected I shall devote myself fully and completely to the duties of the office, and within the limitations of my ability, endeavor to use common sense and sound business judgment in the conduct of these duties. At all times I will try to have an open mind. I shall want to see each and every citizen who wants to be heard.

Should you elect one of my worthy opponents as your Probate Judge, I shall cheerfully abide by your decision with a continuing gratitude for your kindness and consideration.

Your vote, support and advice are earnestly solicited. — Sincerely yours, John M. Higgins.

INCUMBENT, CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION

In announcing my candidacy for re-election to the State Legislature, I wish to express my appreciation for the honor which the people of this County bestowed upon me by allowing me to be their Representative for the last 4 years. I have tried to conduct myself in a manner as to reflect only credit upon our County. If I am re-elected I shall continue to work toward bringing Chilton County the type of representation they so richly deserve. I shall ever be grateful and mindful of this responsibility. — Francis W. Speaks.

"I expect to see as many of you people as physically possible during this period. You, who have been in my office, know my duties are heavy and I cannot spend as much time as I would like seeing you individually. But, I shall make every effort to see you. I am grateful and humble for the fine support given me my first term by my many friends over the County and the encouragement and good-will from so many of you already in this campaign. I am asking for your vote and your influence in the Primary of May 6, 1958. I assure you that I will do the best job within my ability. During my present term, I have spent long hours and worked hard to give you the best service possible. A Letter To The People From Dalton Champion

Dalton Champion

In the February 6th issue of this paper you saw my official announcement as a candidate for membership on the Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County in District One. May I sincerely say that I truly appreciate the words of approval and encouragement that the good people of the County have given me both before and since that time. I know that I have many friends throughout the County who know the priniples and ways of life for which I stand. This only makes me more humble and more determined to always stand for these things and never betray the confidence that the people have in me.

Between now and May 6th I shall strive to go all out and personally contact each and every one of you but until such time please permit me to use this means of making my acquaintance with the few of you who may not know me. I am 38 years of age, the oldest son of Mrs. Evie Champion and the late Clyde Champion of Jemison, Ala. My paternal grandfather was the beloved Rev. Jim Champion, who served many Baptist churches of Chilton County for many years, and my maternal grandfather being the late J. N. (Newt) Childress of Jemison. In 1938 I was married to Doris Martin, the youngest daughter o. P. M. (Pink) Martin of Union Grove. We have four daughters, Patricia Ann, student at Howard College, Betty Joyce, Sara Nell and Linda Kay, who are attending Jemison High School.

I was born and reared in Chilton County and have always been very proud to say to anyone at any place that I was just a poor boy from Chilton County. I am a World War II veteran, having served almost two years in both the European and Pacific theatres of operations and then being honorably discharged. Members of my family and I attend the Union Grove Baptist church where all of us are identified in some ways with the organizations and activities of the church. I am also a member of the American Legion, being at present a trustee of the Thorsby Post No. 206, past Commander of that post and active member of the building committee at the present time. I am a member of the Masonic Lodge at Jemison and the Masonic Lodge and Jemison Chapter.

I have never before asked to be elected to any public office but deep down inside I have always felt an humble desire to serve the people. I have always watched with pride and deep concern the progress of Chilton County and should you see fit to elect me to membership on this Board I shall always be found trying to work towards the best interests of all the people and the general progress of our County.

Your vote, influence and suggestions are earnestly solicited.

Sincerely yours, Dalton Champion.

HOGS HAVE PLACE ON CHILTON COUNTY FARMS

During the past few years Chilton County have been diversifying their crops. In so doing, many of them have turned their attention to hog raising. Chilton County has a distinct advantage in the production of hogs in that an abundance of pasture crops can be produced there. Many crops, such as cow peas, soy beans, and peanuts, are grown. Including our number one crop; corn. The climate here is mild and the weather is warm enough so that grass will stay green longer than the Northern State.

Regardless of the section of the country in which a farmer lives, he must judge for himself the extent of the log enterprise on his individual farm. In many cases, if the farmer has no liking for hogs, or if his conditions are not suitable, the enterprise should be left out of the farm program entirely. On the other hand, there are many farmers who are not growing hogs who might very profitably keep a few for market or, at least, to furnish pork used in the home meat supply.

At the outset it is best for a beginner in the hog business to start with only a sow or two. As the head increases he can determine to what extent the hog enterprise can be lifted in to the general plan of his farm. This will require a study of the crop yields, in order to determine how much of his crop he can profitably market through hogs. A considerable amount of supplementary feed for hogs can be provided through a well-developed pasture system. Experiments show that gains made on pasture are made at 20 to 30 per cent less than the cost of gains produced with the same ration in dry lot feding. The best results are obtained from pasture crops if they are not grazed to closely.

Nearly all the pastures in Chilton County are rich with plenty of grass and in places for planted grass to grow rapidly.

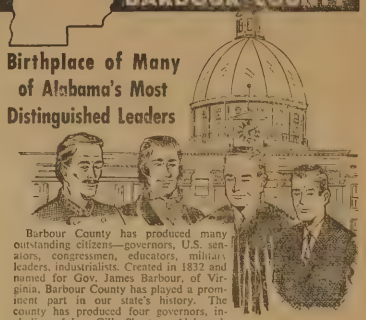
Birthplace of Many of Alabama's Most Distinguished Leaders



Barbour County has produced many outstanding citizens—governors, U.S. senators, congressmen, educators, military leaders, industrialists. Created in 1832 and named for Gov. James Barbour, of Virginia, Barbour County has played a prominent part in our state's history. The county has produced four governors, including John Gill Shorter, Alabama's chief executive during the War Between the States.

Today diversified agriculture and industry are making outstanding economic history in Barbour. Peanuts, cotton, pecans and livestock give varied agricultural income, while textile and lumber plants add substantial industrial payrolls.

In Barbour and other Alabama counties, the U. S. Brewers Foundation works constantly to assure the sale of beer and ale under pleasant, orderly conditions. Believing that strict law enforcement serves the best interests of the people of Alabama, the Foundation stresses close cooperation with law enforcement and governing officials in its continuing "self-regulation" program.

In this friendly, freedom-loving land of ours Beer belongs... Enjoy it

Mr. Cooper asked for help under the A. S. C. program to level, install grass waterways, and terrace eight acres of land (all of which he hopes can be parallel terraces). "Waterways are a must for good terraces, and I need at least three on this field if I have a good terrace system," stated Cooper.

Esco Culp, of Fairview Community, is making arrangements for pine trees to underplant a hardwood area. Mr. Culp stated, "I pay taxes on the land where those hardwood trees are, as I do where I have peaches, but I don't forget that I don't get any return—so I'm putting it in use by setting out pines and later on I'll kill the hardwood.

C. M. Walker, Stanton, has lined off and started clearing a right-of way, and will cut to grade a ditch approximately 3,000 feet long and will drain 50 or more acres of land. Improved pasture will be planted on this botom land as soon as the clearing and ditching job is complete.

While walking over W. V. Brown's farm last week Mr. Brown pointed to a perfect stand of jobolly pines and stated" Ten years ago that place was eaten up with blackjack oak. I sent a fellow over there and deadened the oaks so the pine could grow. I believe that job of deadening the oaks would be worth fifty times that now".

FOLKS and THINGS About Town

by Ben

We never saw a purple cow.
We never hope to see one.
But this for sure, we're telling you
We'd rather see, than be one.

But we saw a lousy 'possum stop traffic in downtown Clanton early Sunday morning. We pulled up behind a line of traffic at the Shell Service Center and wondered what the matter was, because the light was green, the morning cold as a money lenders heart and the missus waiting at home until we could get back with a dimes worth of potatoes for salad at lunch. Well, this little 'possum trotted across the street headed towards Clanton Motors and made a short inspection of th front door. He couldn't get in so he trotted (by the way did you ever watch the possum trot) around the south side of the building and disappeared down the street. The little fellow (he was about half grown) was perfectly comfortable, it seemed, and taking his time. Course he probably ended up in somebody's baking dish before he got too far but we were going after irish potatoes 'stead of sweet potatoes so we didn't take time to run h.m down--truth is' we couldn't run a 'possum down.

CHARLIE Cox spent the past week at Daytona Beach, Florida. He told us Saturday he saw the first snowman he had seen in years down in Florida. We haven't seen a snowman in Chilton County since Heck was a pup.

GET John Higgins to tell you a joke about the candidate and the goose. We'ed try to tell you here but we get our gooses mixed up with our ganders. It's a dilly anyway.

THE suit brought by the Pittman Tractor Company against Probate Judge M. D. Tingle for payment on a tractor was settled Wednesday Morning. According to the record the Board had ordered payment of $14,885.39 but a settlement was made for $14,372. 68. This was a saving of $512.71 to the county compared with the original priced charged. The Supreme Court upheld Judge Tingle in arecent decision in that it was his duty to audit all claims and decide asto whether or not same were justifable and proper.

CITIZENS have no doubt noticed the different type of coin telephone located on 7th street, in front of the office of the Southern Bell Telephone Company. This type coin telephone is used in places where space is a factor rather than the usual type booth. This type of coin telephone is known as a "Boothette". One of the uses of the "Boothette" type coin telephone is in suburban areas adjacent to, and facing the street so that the person may drive up and make a call without leaving his automobile. What-do-you-know? A drive-in telephone booth.

A DRUNK fell from a two-story window and hit the pavement with a terrific impact. A crowd gathered and as the drunk staggered to his feet someone in the crowd grabbed him by the arm asking, "What happened?" To which the drunk replied, "I dunno; I just go here."

'Cuke' Cash Crop in Danger

FARMERS URGED TO SPEAK UP

Action is needed by Chilton County farmers interested in producing cucumbers at a guaranteed price F. O. B. Thorsby, Ala.

For six years Chilton's truck faremrs have been marketing pickle "cukes" under contract to a Montgomery pickle manufacturer. This has been a definite cash crop for many farmers. It has been producing farm income during early summer when little cash is available.

During the six - year period Chilton's average production has been below that of other Alabama cucumber receiving stations. Also, our acreage has not been large enough to justify the buyer's cost of maintaining the receiving station.

Sales Association accounts point out that our best "cuke" growers receive near $300.00 per acre gross from "cuke" sale, while many growers produce less than $30.00 per acre. This certainly indicates that some growers are neglecting their cucumber crop. It also indicates that pickle cucumbers, under good management, have the possibility of producing good per-acre income.

Slight prices advances in the N 3 grade "cuke" have been added to the 1958 contract. The buyer advances seed and agree to buy cucumbers F. O. B. Thorsby, Ala.

Under existing conditions. Chilton farmers are going to lose this cash market.

If you are interested in producing cucumbers for this market, you should notify the County Agent's office before February 28th. This may be done by mail, telephone, or a personal visit.

The interest shown by growers before February 28th will determine whether or not this market will be operated.

Farmers who need more information on "cuke" production and marketing should get in toch with the County Agent's office.

Liberty National Stockholders Up

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of Liberty National Life Insurance Company, President Frank P. Samford reported that the number of stockholders of the Company had increased from 1,447 to 2,234 during 1957. He stated that, based upon total assets, the company was now the 19th largest stock life insurance company in the United States and that its stock was owned by people living in all but 6 of the 48 states.

Mr. Samford in his report to the stockholders pointed out that 1957 was the best year in the Company's 57 year history. Not only was the increase in insurance in force and the increase in assets greater than in any other year, but reserves were further strengthened and the increase in surplus to policyholders was substantially greater than in previous years.

Showing an increase in insurance in force of more than $168 million, Liberty National now has total insurance in force of $1 1 3 billion. This increase in insurance in force was approximately $43 million more than the increase made in 1956, the previous high.

The assets of the Company increased more than $25.4 million bringing total assets to $235 ½ million. Policyholders surplus to over $23.9 million. President Samford emphasized the repidity of the Commapny's growth -- last year its field organization was increased from 1,743 to 1,854 and new district offices were established in Clanton, Enterprise, Fort Payne, Jackson and Winfield, Alabama; Marietta, Georgia; St. Petersburg, Florida; and Meridian, Mississippi. The Company's total personnel was increase from 2,248 to 2,360.

Mr. Samford further reported to the stockholders that the Company planned to continue its expansion program and predicted that even greater progress would be made in 1958.

MORE DOUBLE TALK --

THE announcement last week that a 2 billion spending program would be launched to help stop a recession was just so much double talk. The people have been fed just such drivel for the past six years and we do not believe the country can afford another Republican administration.

Postmaster General Summerfield, who released this bit of information, didn't really mean that 2 billion dollars would be spent on new postoffices but that seems to be the idea the reading public gathered from headlines.

Fact is, the government would appropriate only $180 million for the purpose and that is if,and when, Congress agrees to raise the price of out of town postage to five cents instead of the present three cents.

The balance would be furnished by private investors, if they could be found, which with things as they are is doubtful. All in all it looks like just another hot air balloon sent up to disillusion the people into believing the present Administration in Washington is trying to do something for the "little man".

PHONE TAX SHOULD GO --

FROM the Federal Government's viewpoint, the 10 percent excise tax on all telephone service is a fine thing.

It can't be evaded by the taxpayer, because he has to fork over the money when he pays his monthly phone bill. And the funds roll in without much effort on the government's part, because the phone companies do the work of collecting from the people.

But from most any other angle, it's an exceedingly bad tax. In the first place, it's discriminatory. There's no excise tax on water, gas, or electricity. In fact, the telephone is the only essential household utility that is so taxed.

In the second place the excise tax is a burdensome surcharge on top of all the other telephone company taxes such customer must help pay. It's been figured out of every $1 the average user pays for telephone service, 28 cents goes to taxes.

The telephone tax has been with us as an emergency levy since 1941. For the last ten years, the Federal revenue acts haven't even mentioned a termination date for the tax.

We think you should tell your Congressman whether you want it to become a permanent part of the tax structure -- or whether you feel as we do, that it should be repealed.

IT'S OUR OPINION OF

THINGS We see and hear

by "TUCK"

YOU know, there's a lot of politicians who are going to stand up in front of the crowds and before they think they're going to say "and furthermore friends, I stand on my past records"; and lo and behold they have nothing to stand on. Embarrassing situation.

WE want to say right here and now that if cold weather is a factor in making prime peaches in Chilton County, then it is evident that the good Lord intends to make our 1958 crop the "primest" in our history. It's been cold enough the past month to give a goose pimples . . .and that's pretty cool!

SEE where the local Civitan Club has added new strength to its already enviable roll of good Clanton citizens. Its a fine thing to see such a comparatively young organization thriving so well. It owes its successful existence to men like Joe Smith, G. D. Jones, Noel Robinson, Troy Maddox, Herbert Klinner. . .and wait a minute;we'd have to name almost the entire roll of members, present and past to do them justice, so we'll suffice to say that the Civitans of Clanton are a welcome and necessary organization in our midst.

CLANTON is blessed with a host of good civic groups. Among them, the Lions, the Civitans, the Kiwanis, Pilots, Music Clubs, Study Club, Garden Club, to name just some of the more prominent organizations who daily strive to better the community. We are in favor of a Citizens League of some kind, made up of grateful citizens and possibly City officials to give some sort of recognition to the outstanding civic organization of the year. It would be interesting to judge and would be added incentive to our civic clubs to better themselves and their aims.

IT'S not that we refuse, but it's against our principles to print half the truth when there is a whole truth available. Recently we received a message from one of the county officials concerning a raided still, the capacity and the location. We appreciate this much cooperation from said party, especially since we consider him a personal acquaintance. However, we cannot give the front page space expected these few facts, simply because they do not comprise a complete report of the proceedings. We respect the rights of the law and their sometimes necessary brand of secreacy in a matter. But, we cannot, and they cannot expect the public to be satisfied with just part of a story. By the same token, they must respect our duty to the people to give them as much of the truth as we possiole can without maligning anyone's character or standing.

We have had numerous discussions with many county and city officials concerning our reportings of court proceedings and the like. In many instances we are at fault because we do not have the necessary manpower to produce at all times, the mechanical end of getting out the news as well as the technical end of reporting it. This is a malady of the weekly newspaper, but one which could easily be overcome with the cooperation of officials concerned and their staffs. We do not expect any officials to come running to us when anything happens that is directly or indirectly connected with the police. However, we would consider it fair, not only * us, but to the public in general if they could see fit to meet us halfway and let us in on what's happening when. We cannot possibly keep our nose in public offices day in and day out, possible. Contrary to popular belief it is not only impractical, but imlief, our nose is usually plastered to the proverbial grindstone and it can't be in two places at once. We can however, take off from the grindstone long enough to report a worthwhile happening in county, city or town affairs. We have always cooperated with the county officials and local town and city officials and when they requested that we do something through the power of the printed page we more than agreed to do so. Perhaps we were too cooperative, for our firt duty is to the people and their best interests. On the other hand, the officials consider their first duties to the people terests of some of the public. also and when they request secrecy it is usually for the best in-

The majority rules is still our basic belief and it is with this in mind that we feel that the best thing for us to do is to strive to report all the news to the public and let them be the judge of good or bad. In this light we request a fuller cooperation from all public officials and as we said we pledge to do all in our power for what we consider to be fundamentally right.

As far as "a character" is concerned we do not judge, but when a person is involved in an illegal act, then it is of his or her own doing, not ours, nor the police, the judge nor jury. We therefore consider it only fair to report these happenings to the people, for it is to them that the misdeed has been done.

Cooperation as a word means very little, but put to physical use it becomes a complex part of our lives. It is a strong force in making our community a better place in which to live through a better informed public.

EDISON: Some Good; Some Bad!

CLANTON, ALABAMA
FEBRUARY 10, 1958

Dear Editor—

Tuesday February 11, should have been in red on our calendar this week. In my opinion, it should be a world holiday. This day is the birthday of one of the greatest men this world has ever produced. Nay! I will say THE greatest. THOMAS A. EDISON. I wonder if there is any one who could estimate the number of humans, who owe their jobs and most of the comforts and enjoyments of life to the discoveries and inventions, derived from the personal efforts and work of this great man? Or the thousands of household appliances, factory gadgets etc, that his pioneering either produced, or laid the foundation for. In his short span of life, he contributed more to humanity, than any other man that has ever lived. And he lived to see most of those things put to practical use. Some one more able than I, should check up on his many contributions to mankind and have them published in our County papers for the public to read.

Being a Rationalist and Freethinker, he did not trust in any imaginary gods to do his work for him. He wasted no time praying for divine guidance in his work. He put his shoulder to the wheel and used the super brain and intelligence that nature endowed him with. And see what he accomplished. If we could have a few men like Edison at the head of some of the Governments of the world today, the world would not be in such a H--eck of a mess. — Wes Gletty, Route Two, Clanton, Alabama.

Resolutions Made to Be Broken, Says Gletty

CLANTON, ALABAMA

Dear Editor—

In your paper, dated January 2nd you devoted a double column, in large type, telling your readers of your New Years resolutions, in which the following statement was included:—"You may use my printed page to speak your mind on any matter you may see fit to comment upon. Exercise your rights more."

Last week I sent you a short article on Edison, in the form of a letter to the editor, which for some reason you did not see fit to publish. Naturally I would like to know the reason. I wonder if it would have made a difference if I had made out a Pious Hypocrite.

Of course, we all know New Years resolutions are only made as a fad, and are expected to be broken. They are only made for a show off, and make other folks think we are striving to improve ourselves and our ways. Many years ago, I resolved that New Years resolutions were re not worth the effort. I also made two other resolutions. I resolved:— At all times, to do the best that I could under the prevailing circumstances. I also resolved:—"At all times to treat my fellowman exactly the way I would like to have him treat me". In other words the Golden rule:— "Do unto others, as you would have them do unto you". All my life I have tried to live up to these resolutions. I do not pretend to be anything that I am not. If I even let people think I believed in some thing that I do not, I would be a hypocrite.

Thomas Edison was not a hypocrite. He was an honest and bold man. He was not afraid to speak his convictions.

I believe one hundred per cent in the Constitution of the United States. I believe in freedom of the press and freedom of speech, which our Constitution is supposed to guarantee to all of us. I believe that when any person is given freedom of the press to express their opinions and views, supporting any subject, that others should be given freedom of the press, to express their own opinions that differ on the same subject.

A short time ago, our president made the statement, or to the effect:—

"That it takes no brains to be an Atheist". I wonder if he knows anything about American History Some of the greatest men this country has known were Atheists. Most of the men that instigated our revolution, and formulated our Declaration of Independence and our Constitution were not Christians. Most of them were Freethinkers and Diests. I believe the world considers them as men with brains. Thomas Edison and Luther Burbank were both atheists, and I believe the whole world looks upon them as men with brains. It just makes a difference how the brains are used. Edison and Burbank used the super brain that nature endowed them with, to speed up the evolution of this little old world, and make it a better place to live in which to dwell for mankind.

Of course, military men must have brains and training, to be able to devise ways to slaughter your fellowmen by the hundreds of thousands, an dtear down what the people have built up through the centuries, while the great religious eyes and pearing molten lead in brain trust were burning out the the ears of the scientists and astronomers, because their findings did not agree with their bible. Which do you think is the worst? An Atheist who spends his life biulding up as doing good for mankind, or a religious or pious hypocrite who spends his life slaughtering his fellowmen and tearing down. — Wes Gletty, Route Two Clanton, Alabama.

ED'S NOTE — We sicerely thank Mr Gletty for his close scrutiny and his faithful commenting. We are still advocates of resolutions, however, for they are the best means of bettering a deteriorated situation. They are only what we make of them. So far as we're concerned our "Resolutions" were made in good faith and were not intended to be broken. Certainly they are not to be misconstrued as a "fad". As we said, resolutions are only what the parties involved make of them.

And speaking of the Golden Rule, would you prefer that others give you the benefit of the doubt in a matter? You see, we too, believe in the Golden Rule!

Writer Says Wallace "Only Statesman"

Dear Editor,

As a voter of Chilton County, and still at heart a resident, I would like to take space in your publication to implore the citizens of Chilton County to put serious thought into the forthcoming gubernatorial race. Now is the time to study the candidates -- before the heat of the campaign.

I, personally, would like to ask that every true Southerner in the county put his full support behind Judge George C. Wallace of Clayton, Alabama. Here is a true statesman, a fearless man who is well-suited to be the Governor of Alabama at a time when the state is in grave danger of losing its sovereign rights. Wallace has already, as a Circuit Judge, done more to uphold our Southern way of life against federal oppression than any other man in the South.

A firm believer in the basic principles of America's Constitution, Wallace has made a career of seeing justice done in his court. He has put personal effort into making all of Alabama a better place in which to live through his work as a legislator and a leader in civic affairs. Wallace is well qualified for the Office of Governor.

Even with the large number of candidates for the office of Governor, Wallace alone stands out as a Southern statesman Here is a small man with a large heart who mixes humanity with justice in a superb recipe of freedom and liberty.

All Chilton County will be wise to cast its vote for George C. Wallace in the Democratic election of May 6th. Let us work together to elect Wallace governor for four progressive years and to form a firm foundation on which to rebuild our Southern way of life. — Sincerely, Vernon P. Payne.

WHAT YOU CAN DO -- PERSONALLY ABOUT HIGH TAXES TODAY

THE taxing of the American public, as it stands today is the most flagrant abuse of the personal integrity of the individual that America has ever been reconciled to accept.

The misuse of funds, resulting in more taxes, is self-evident that the right men are not in the right places.

Above, we spoke of integrity...where pray tell are the men of integrity that America is blessed with and are supposed to be leading her in the right paths to fuller living and freedom.

Why do we accept this as "that's the way it has to be"? It is definitely not so! We are the people and the government is FOR the people.

As our tax dollar becomes smaller each year in its ability to "keep up our government" so our taxes are hiked to meet the demand. The government of these United States was formed to serve the people and unwillingly, yet knowingly, we are letting it become a Bureaucratic monster sapping our livelihood more and more.

We are, in a sense, putting to the ax our own interpretation of how a man should get ahead in the world. . . through self-discipline and hard work. What good is personal endeavor if its just to feed the hungry mouth of another bureau formed to "protect" our rights? We want protection all right. . .but first we want it clear, "protection from what."

This "unknown" source of inexhaustable wealth which the government officials strew around so promiscuously is not other than the hard - earned dollar of private enterprise. It is not necessary. The only thing that is totally inevitable is the good Lord and His divine will. Then, we do not have to accept this mis-carriage as "inevitable" because something can be done. . .must be done about it.

Small business, which is free enterprise, is not prospering in this day of so-called prosperity. It is existing out of the need of the people for it. Survival is not enough. As an American citizen, the small business man deserves the rights to the "pursuit of happiness' and with all the "tax hands" which come out of his purse, he hasn't much chance for this pursuit. He has all the modern conveniences perhaps, but where is his sense of security which the government is supposed to give him, and which is the basic ingredient of his happiness?

We believe in the United States of America. That's why we hate to see this abuse of its peoples. We may not be a good American, but we are proud enough of being one that it makes us mad for anyone to imply that we are anything but a good American.

Our belief in our government is founded on the undisputable fact that it is for the people. It is for this reason that we say something can and must be done about this waste of our natural wealth.

Write to your Congressman and make it clearly understood that you stand up for your rights as an American citizen by demanding that he do everything in his power (not by rattling his tongue and writing letters) to lessen the taxation of the American public and that he look into all matters of government which are not entirely satisfactory in their service to the people. Ask him to use his own judgement, but to keep in mind that you are behind him all the way. And then, American citizen, break the precedent, and do what you say you will do. If your Congressman takes a stand for your rights back him up. . .don't turn your back. Should this be the case, you deserve the taxation. . .and more. Tell your Congressman that you have faith in his personal integrity and then pray for his use of it.

All is not lost! The American people, putting their shoulders to this task can bring about a revolution in his trend toward the annihilation of our rights as individuals and citizens of this great country. Join heart and hand with your Representatives in Washington and through this union of minds in the best interest of America we will change the tide and smooth sailing will be much more in evidence. Don't put it aside American citizen. . .do it now! !

Dear Friends:

I am deeply grateful to all the people of Chilton County for the fine support and many courtesies shown me during my term as Probate Judge. The offices of Judge of Probate and Chairman of the Board of Revenue and Control carry with them many duties, responsibilities and challenges. During the past 5 years I have fulfilled these duties and responsibilities in a manner of which I am proud.

I have learned a great deal about County Government and how to make your tax money furnish you the most service possible.

It is my belief that service to all the people is the purpose for which government exists. With the advantage of my past experience, I believe I can bring you even more services for your tax money than I have in the past.

I earnestly solicit your vote on May 6, 1958.

With best wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,

M. D. (Dave) Tingle

$7100 FOR EVERY FAMILY BY 1975 IS CED's PREDICTION OF U.S. GROWTH

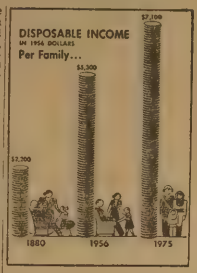
High Incomes Can Be Achieved Only by Wise Handling of Major Economic Issues, Committee Warns

WASHINGTON—By 1975, the average income of American families, after payment of all taxes, should be at least $7,100, as compared with a present average disposable income of $5,300 per family, the Committee for Economic Development predicted.

"Achievement of this high average income is not an imagined utopia, it is a practical goal for practical men," CED's Research and Policy Committee declared in releasing the results of a study by a subcommittee of businessmen and economists headed by Harry Scherman, chairman of the board of the Book-of-the-Month Club, Inc., of New York.

Entitled "Economic Growth in the United States—Its Past and Future," the statement called for "unending vigilance" by both individuals and government to assure that the most is made of the nation's growth-producing potentials. It stressed improvement of public education, continuous investment in enterprise, increased private savings, mobility of both labor and capital, efficient management of business and of government, and rising foreign trade as among the essentials for growth.

"Only if we manage our economic affairs with intelligence can we expect such a 'good life' on the material side, shared among the entire population," the statement asserted. Our growth will depend mainly, it stressed, "on millions of daily private decisions."



"The initiative and wisdom shown in the conduct of every business enterprise, large or small, and in the actions of every individual in pursuit of his welfare, will add up to the grand result and be the principal determinant of the outcome," the report declared.

Pointing out that future economic growth also will be affected "to a very large extent by the policies and activities of government," the Committee declared "we must be more concerned than ever about two controlling matters: first, the need of attracting competent individuals into government service; and second, to broaden and clarify public understanding of governmental matters."

Continued growth is the more important today, the statement said, because of competition by the Communist bloc.

CED is composed of 150 business executives and scholars who conduct research and develop recommendations for promoting national economic development. Its Research and Policy Committee is headed by Frazar B. Wilde, president of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company, Hartford, Conn. W

Origin of the Bible

Growth of The Bible Canon

THE canon of the Bible is the catalogue or collection of books which have been inspired by the holy spirit of God. "Canon" comes originally from the Hebrew word qaneh, which means "reed". The corresponding Gree word is kanon, which aloso means "a reed, or a measuring rod, a straight edge", something by which measurements can be made and also straight lines can be drawn. In otherwords, the canon of the Bible is the straightedge by which one may determine what is straight truth or straight doctrine. Jehovah God has graciously provided it that his servants may be safeguarded from ensnaring religion. The canon has been committed to God's people, not all at one time, but has had a growth over centuries.

The true canon of the Bible is a matter of dispute even to this day. For example, the Roman Catholic approved Bible, the Douay Version in the English ,contains a number of books that are not found in the King James Version Bible. Another instance is the Septuagint Greek Version of the ancient Hebrew Scriptures which contains apocryphal or "spurious" books (the Septuagint originally did not include the Apocrypha). There is great endeavor on the part of translators or their booster to have people credit full divine authority to all the books in the Apocrypha, and thus add to the Bible canon at this late date.

The canon first began to be committed to writing in the time of Moses, and it was very appropriate that Jehovah God should early contribute to it by writing the Ten Commandments. At Mount Sinai these commandments were written on a duarble material, on stone, and that with the finger of God. Then Jehovah God told Moses to write down in legible form the laws, ordinances, statutes and regulations for the typical Theocracy. From then on the canon of the Bible underwent a steady growth and addition. It is therefore seen that what the Scriptures call "the law" constituted the first part of the canon. This law was one production, one book by Moses. It was later subdivided into five rolls, the first five books of the Bible. Not only did Moses write these first five books, but there is strong reason to believe that Moses wrote the book of Job and Psalms 90 and 91. Therefore, with the death of Moses these first part of the canon of the Bible would be completed.

It is apparent that the truth did not end with Moses. There was still a production of further truth, however. So far as the canon of the Hebrew Scriptures is concerned, it continued till the writing of the last book, Malachi. These books, from Genesis to Malachi, did not follow the same order or arrangement as is in the present day English Bibles. The divisions and subdivisions of these books and the order of their occurrence in Hebrew Bibles is as follows.

1. The Pentateuch: Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy.

2. The Prophets: Former: Joshua, Judges, 1 and 2 Samuel and 1 and Kings. Latter: (Major) Isaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekial; (Minor) Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obahiah, Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakuk, Haggai, Zechariah and Malachi.

2. The Hagiograph (a Greek word meaning "holy writings"; the Hebrew is Kethubim, meaning "things written" or "writings"): Psalms, Proverbs, Job, Song of Solomon, Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes, Esther, Daniel, Ezra, Nehemiah and 1 and 2 Chronicles.

The Devil always tries to cause a 'dead fly to get into the ointment and to cause it to stink'. (Eccl. 10: 1) He tries to cause confusion as to the Word of God and to adulterate or to mix it with that which is false and erroneous. He would therefore endeavor to add to the Word of God that which did not belong to it. (Deut. 4:2; Prov. 30: 6; Rev. 22:18) God decreed that there should be an end of the books of the Hebrew canon, and the end of such books was made with the production of the prophecy of Malachi. The canon of the Hebrew Bible was nearly, if not actually, complete with the scribe Ezra, in the fifth century before Christ. It is possible that only the prophecy of Malachi was yet to be appended thereto.

In trying to determine the time of writing of certain Bible books, many "higher critics" contend that the books were written much later than they actually were, basing such claims on the fact that things are recorded that certainly could not have been put there by the original writer, since they occurred after his death. But this does not necessarily set the time of composition at a later date. A major fact ever to be remembered is that the holy spirit of God was working till the very end of the production of the canon of the Hebrew Scriptures. Hence, if there were any additions made in the books thereof, and which additions or anachronisms (misplacing events in order of time), these insertions or additions would be approved by God because his servants would make these additions under the guidance of the same spirit of God that inspired the original composition of the books.

The first version or translation of the Hebrew canon was into the Greek, and it was known as the Septuagint. The Septuagint as it exists today contains apocryphal books, but originally it did not. It harmonized with our present Jewish canon of the Scriptures.

That the Hebrew canon is correct we have ancient proof. Some, however, may say, "Well, how can the Hebrew canon be correct, in view of the ancient manuscripts or codices, such as the Alexandrine MS. of the fifth century after Christ, the Vatican MS. of the fourth century after Christ, all containing some apocryphal books?" On this point the following facts are noted: During the first four centuries of the Christian era, that is, running down to the end of the fourth century (to the year 397, to be specific), the only Christian catalogues of inspired books of the Hebrew Bible that were accepted by the Christian congregations were those catalogues which included solely the Hebrew canon of Scripture. Those catalogues excluded the Apocrypha.

It was the Roman Catholic "Saint" Augustine who, at the Council of Carthage in the year 397, submitted an enlarged canon, which included the apocryphal books. That council decreed what should be rated as inspired canonical books in the "Old Testament". But this catalogue as set up by this council was not approved or accepted by any Greek authority, that is to say, by any Eastern church organization. Even in the west, however, there were those associated with the Roman Catholic Hierarchy and prominent in their ecclesiastical circles who held to the Hebrew canon o. Scriptures excluding the Apocrypha ;and this line of adherents thereto continued all the way down to the Protestant Reformation.

The Council of Trent (1546) in its fourth session decreed that all books set out in its enlarged canon, which include the apocryphal books, were of "equal veneration". This decree was passed by the majority, yet not without opposition. Confusion exists within Catholic ranks as to what is the Bible canon, but Jehovah's witnesses have assurance that it is complete as in the Bibles now in widest use.

Completion of the Bible Canon next in series.

I was reared on a farm in Chilton County and I am one of seventeen children as stated above. I was taught to work and I was taught thrift and to know the value of a dollar and the importance of economy. I believe in progress. I practice it on my farm and dairy and in my own business. PUGGY

By C. WILSON HARDER

From all reports, from all over the nation, this past holiday season postal service was the slowest, most inefficient in history.

Actually, it was not the fault of the postal employees, as their stiff aching backs will bear witness.

Called "junk mail," illegitimate mail, or any other name, it is becoming increasingly apparent that the [illegible] the postal service and by Rep. Rhodes of Pennsylvania is a very sound one. His amendment provides that no one user of the second or third class mails shall be subsidized more than [illegible]

Writing in the Denver Post, that great newspaper's [illegible] columnist, Roscoe Fremont, recently reported some weird happenings at the post office of Mile High City [illegible] holiday mailing rush was getting underway.

One big food company decided to send through the mail free samples of mashed potatoes to Denver householders. The samples weighed 5.5 ounces, or three to a pound. Thus on basis of 200,000 home delivery, Mr. Fleming estimates weary postman toted around 66,000 pounds, or 33 tons of mashed potatoes.

The huge company that perpetrated this load for the mailmen paid at the rate of 4.5 cents per package, or a total of around $9,000, which figured out less than 14 cents per pound.

"By contrast," wrote Mr. Fleming, "We, the ever lovin' people pay about $1.20 per pound to send first class and air mail."

Pointing out that the Post Office Dept. claims that junk mail in 1956 cost a half billion more to handle than was paid for this service, Mr. Fleming reported that right while the mashed potato storm was in progress, an agent for the junk mail industries came to Denver and insisted the junk matters are not subsidized. It's really the people who are subsidized because of all the junk they get for nothing.

Thus, his contention was that people should be grateful for this free junk, forgetting that out of their tax money this year will go at least $600 million to pay for this service.

Of course, pending before Congress is a bill to raise first class postage to four cents. First class mail makes money for the post office, hence the aim to increase profit making end of the business is askew. On several occasions nation's independent businessmen, voting through the National Federation of Independent Business, have opposed such a move.

Thus, the amendment to the bill put on it by Rep. Rhodes looms as most important. Thus, for example, some of the big national magazines now subsidized up to as much as $10 million per year would have to pay for this service after the first $100,000 worth of subsidy. Obviously, they are going to battle this.

Likewise, so will concerns such as the huge soap company which spent $900,000 plastering the nation with sample boxes of a new detergent, which cost the taxpayers $1,900,000 over what the soap company paid. Also of interest will be editorial stand of big magazines on this issue. It's kind of difficult to urge economy one week, a subsidy for self the next week.

ABUNDANT LIFE

GOITER HEALED IN THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

The ministry of Jesus of Nazareth completely meets every need of every human being on earth. Whatever is wrong with you, Jesus of Nazareth can set you free right now.

I say NOW because what Jesus was two thousand years ago he is today. What he did for people yesterday he is doing for them today. He is the same in purpose, power and desire. He is just as good in our time as when he personally went among the people.

Daniel Z. CySip found this out. He was manager of a plantation in the Philippine Islands. He suffered with a toxic goiter and was very weak and undernourished. The date for his operation was December 14, 1955, but it did not take place. Let him tell you why:

"I had been ailing for nearly a year. Dr. Richli had found that I had a toxic goiter. He advised that if I ever wanted to be fully well, I should have an operation. As there seemed to be no way out, I finally agreed to his advice.

"I went out to the plantation of which I was manager to inspect everything and to see that all was in order before going back to Manila for the operation.

"I arrived back in Manila on December 12 and went immediately to the office of my Uncle Alfonso. In the course of our conversation my uncle asked me if I had a strong faith in God. I told him that if I had not had faith in God, I never would have survived a recent serious illness. Then he told me that an American minister, who prayed for the sick and who had a strong faith in God, was scheduled to arrive in Manila on January 1, 1956. My uncle asked if I was interested in having the American preacher pray for me. I answered that I was very willing.

"We notified Dr. Richli immediately that the operation would not take place on the date agreed.

"I attended the services of this minister. After the sermon, he began to pray for the sick.

"When he came to pray for me, he asked me how long I had had the goiter. I told him that I had had it for about five years, and that I could not sleep well at night. I was extremely nervous and could not hold my hands steady. He then prayed for me. While he prayed, I felt groggy and my neck experienced a sudden warmness. The swollen part around my neck began to subside. When the prayer was over, my hands were steady and the grogginess had completely left me. I felt like a newborn being. I was instantly healed.

"The minister then asked me who had healed me. With joy in my heart, I told him that it was Jesus Christ, the Son of God. The congregation was singing as I came down the ramp to the ground, physically and spiritually healed."

I have nothing to add to this story. It breathes such an atmosphere of simple sincerity as to make further testimony unnecessary. Mr. CySip has found that Jesus is still adequate for every need.

Telephone Talk

By
IRVIN COMMANDER
Your Telephone Manager

A friend asked me a question the other day, and I thought that I would just pass this information along to you folks, too. He wanted to know "What is the relationship between Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company familiar wih them to effect quick restoration (A. T. &T.)." He was buying some stock in A. T. &T. and this was of interest to him. Well, I answered it this way.

A. T. &T. is the parent company of the Bell System and Southern Bell is one of the 22 operating companies of this system. Actually A. T. &T. is the principle owner of the various companies. A. T. & T., for instance, owns all of Southern Bell's common stock. In addition, A. T. &T. through it's Long Lines Department operates the nation's major long distance networks, which link all the associated companies together. This service also includes network Radio and Television transmission.

A. T. & T. also provides us with centralized services through Western Electric, our manufacturing and supply unit, and Bell Laboratories handles development and research. In this way, the knowledge, and products can be used throughout the Bell System which reduces the cost of our equipment and services to you. Standardization throughout the Bell System also permits, in the event of any catastrophe, the rapid concentration of materials and workmen and American Telephone & Telegraph Company of service.

A. T. & T. also helps us with our financing. The American Company buys all southern Bell stcok. This money is used for capital expenditures -- for buildings, equipment, cable and the like. We can also receive short term loans from A. T. & T. which enables Southern Bell to keep its cash balance and interest costs at a minimum and relieves the company of doing its long-range financing in advance. I think that you might agree then that our relationship with A. T. & T. gives us security soundness and services which we would not otherwise have.

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Last year the United States Department of Agriculture urged Congress to continue the soil bank program through 958, and Congress supported the Departments request. Farmers were then encouraged by the Department to participate in the porgram and, at the same time, it was their understanding there would be adequate funds to meet their applications.

There is reason to belive that the Department of Agriculture had warning, as the planting season aproached, that the amount of soil bank funds allotted to cotton would be insufficient unless the Department established limitations similar to those used during 1957. Yet, the Department made no move to apply appropriate limitations by administrative action. As a result, thousands of cotton farmers now find they are barred from participating in the soil bank program. Many of these farmers had already planned their farming operations with the expectation of eliminating cotton during the 1958 crop year. Now they find themselves without labor, without financing, and unable to plant their allotted acreages.

Believing our farmers have the right to expect their government to carry through on its commitments. I introduced legislation last week which directs the Department of Agriculture to commit additional funds for the soil bank program. Members of Congress from Alabama and from other cotton producing states have done likewise.

LETTER TO BENSON—

Also last week, I joined with the entire Alabama Congressional Delegation in urging Secretary of Agriculture Benson, by letter, to take whatever action he deems necessary to enable farmers who acted in good faith to participate in the 1958 soil bank acreage reserve program. In our letter to Secretary Benson we said, "Believing that there is a moral obigation on the part of the government, we have introduced legislation that would provide the federal government with sufficient funds to carry out its covenant with the famrres. If as you have previously announced, you cannot administratively fulfill this covenant, we urge that you support the legislation we have ntroduced for that purpose."

We are still awaiting an answer from Mr. Benson but, from previous experiences, there is little reason to believe that the Secretary's reply will be favorable. In any event, the Alabama Members of Congress will continue their efforts to correct an unfair situation which was created leargely by the Department of Agriculture and not by the farmers.

APPROPRIATION DELAYED

The House Appropriations Committee recently deleted from the General Government Appropriations Bill the sum of $750,000 requested by the President for the operation of the newly created Civil Rights Commission. Debate on this appropriation measure began last Monday. Announced plans to restore these funds by an amendment from the floor quickly abandoned when it became extremely doubtful that the votes necessary to pass the amendment were available Many Republicans had returned to their districts for Lincoln Day speeches. and a number of Democrats from the Eastern cities, unaware funds fo the Commission had been eliminated, were not in Washington

Although debate on the measure was suspended before a final vote could be taken, fund for the Commission have at le t been delayed.

'Jesus stood and cried, saying, If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink.'—(St. John 7, 37.)

Our Savior also said He would be with us, even to the end of time. He is here on earth with us in spirit, every moment of every hour, just as He walked among men in olden days. As He healed the sick and distraught then, He will heal and help us today, when we open our contrite, devout hearts and let Him enter.

Horsley White Proud of His Service To People

To The Chilton Countians:

Again, I am earnestly asking you for your vote and influence and support in my behalf for the office of Circuit Clerk.

It is my duty as Circuit Clerk to keep accurate records, reports, etc., of four courts. These records include Circuit Court and County Court with Criminal and Civil divisions of each, acording to the decisions of the Courts. My records made while self-employed, while working at the Post Office and at the Bus Station and as your Circuit Clerk, shows I am qualified to fill the requirements of this office.

HORSLEY WHITE

I have learned the complicated job and am handling it capably and honestly. I am running wholly on my own merits. Take this as a personal request for your support and vote on May 6, 1958. I will appreciate your interest and help. — Very truly, Horsley White.

FOLKS and THINGS About Town

by Ben

NOW is the time for men who are interested in the Democratic Party to qualify as Beat Committeemen in the Various Beats of the county. To know the wil lof the people each Beat should elect Committeemeh to represent them on the Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee for the next four years. There would be much more interest in the Committee and the Party if good men from over the county would qualify for place on their party committee.

Henry Patterson of Poplar Springs Community wants to thank all the folks who have been so kind and thoughtful to him during his long illnes. Mr. Patterson says that every kindness aray of light and hope and without his friends and neighbors it would be very dark indeed. He wants to take this opportunity to thank each and everyone who has brightened his way.

Mrs. Virgil Nell Smith and her Fifth Grade pupils at Maplesville had the privilege recently of naming a seal that was brought on the SS Del Monte to the States & will be donated to the Audubon Park Zoo at New Orleans, La. The seal was brought up from West Africa and weights now about 75 pounds. The Maplesville Fifth Grade Class of Mrs. Smith chose the name "Slipper" for young seal. Mrs .Smith says the name was chosen by a vote of the class.

Saw Cecil Ramsely down the street last Sunday morning. He says he doesn't like Birmingham at all anymore. You know Cecil was our popular A & P Tea Company manager for 20 years and he had a host of friends here who hated to see him leave the local store. We hope he learns to like it more at his new place. However, we can't blame Cecal for not wanting to leave Chilton County—the Garden Spot of the World.

An automobile salesman was pushing what he thought was a red hot prospect for a new car. The prospect, though, kept insisting that he couldn't afford one. "Listen", he said "I'm still paying installments on the car I swapped, for the car I traded, as part payment of the car I'm now two installments behind on."

Politics is warming up it seems. A. W. Todd will speak here this week and Jimmy Faulkner here next month. And we noticed another candidate came out for governor this week. If the field keeps growing there isn't going to be anyone to do the voting. Every man can just vote for himself and if someone makes a miscue and votes for somebody else, then he'll automatically be elected.

J. C. WHITE TO MAKE P. J. RACE

J. C. White, principal of Isabella High School, has announced this week that he will make the race for Probate Judge. This brings to six the number now contesting for the probate judgeship.

Mr. Wite has a letter to the voters in this issue of Chilton County News giving some of his plans and intentions.

Jemison FFA Plan Truck Farming

Many of the Jemison students in vocational agriculture are planning truck crops instead of cotton as their projects during the summer.

Some of the factors they have found that contribute to high yields and profits are:

1. Plant on suitable soil
2. Plant early
3. Use correct kinds and amounts of fertilizer (refer to results of soil test)
4. Control insects and disease
5. Treat soil if necessary, to control nematodes
6. Do a good job of marketing

Chilton county is nearly ideal in its location between two of the best markets in the state, Montgomery and Birmingham.

The Vo. Ag. students believe that truck crop producers who make high yields of good quality and form the markets wants, should make a profit in 1958.

CO. ENGINEER RESIGNS AFTER THREE YEARS

Harold J. Lewis, county engineer since February 1955, has turned in his resignation to the County Board of Revenue & Control and accepted a position with the State. The Board accepted with regret.

At the Monday meeting of the Board tax levies for the current year were also levied same as last year.

Milliard Reynolds appeared before the Board and requested an additional appropriation of $1,000 for the Forestry Dept. The annual appropriation is $3600 and is matched by the state. The matter was taken under consideration by the Board.

I am teaching in my twenty-fifth year as principal in the schools of Chilton County, most of this time as a high school principal. I'm at present Principal of the Isabella High School where I have been for the past nine years.

It is through my wide experience as a school principal, my personal record of honesty and fair dealings with my fellow-man, my deep religious and civic belie. of our obligations and responsibilities as citizens working together for the benefit of all that I hope qualifies me for this high and noble position for which I am seeking.

I shall conduct my campaign honorable, honest and straight forward depending upon my personal record, my educational training and experience and on you the people making the final decision. I believe in clean politics and justice for all. I also, believe that Chilton County should receive her share of new industries and that we have an unlimited supply of labor, know how, sites and other required resources for their development. ACROSS THE EDISOR'S DESK

Dear Mr. Editor:

Thank God for a few people in this world who still believe in God, the Bible and Christianity.

I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God ,and that He was conceived of The Holy Ghost, Born of the virgin Mary, suffered under Pontins Pilate, was crucified, died and was buried; and that He arose from the dead on the third day, and is now at the right hand of God The Father to make intercession for His ...owa.

I believe that Thomas A. Edison was a man, very brilliant and with a keen intellect, but that the keen intellect which he possessed, and the ability with which he worked were gifts of a Super Natural God; and his great inventions and discoveries were made possible by The Eternal God, not because he was an theist. The Bible says, "In Him we live and move and have our beings"

I believe that a person who encourages all people to seek God for forgiveness, fir mercy, for Divine guidance and wisdom in all the affairs of this life, derives more good, receives more benefit, and is a greater blessing to mankind than are all the infidels, agnostics, and atheists combined who, by their vanity and pride, attempt to discourage anyone from seeking The Supreme, Eternal, and Supernatural God in every phase of life.

I believe I had rather die like the great preacher, Wesley, who said on his dieing bed, "Best of all God is with us.", than to die like the noted infidel who said Just before his death, "What a foll I've been.' — ours for Christianity, E. L. Crowe, pastor, Box 43 Stanton, Ala.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Recently it has come to my attention that some of the people of Chilton County are under the impression that the hospital tax monies goes to operate the hospital. This mistaken impression, I am afraid, causes some patients to be reluctant about paying their hospital ills.

There are thousands of dollars worth of expenses incurred each month by your hospital. There are 9 people who depend on their hospital pay check for a living. There is food to be bought, supplies to be available when they are needed, a huge light bill to be paid, as well as water, gas and telephone. A large amount is spent each month just to keep the hospital clean. All these expenses must be paid for as money is used to pay these each month from the monies collected from the patients. None of the operating expenses.

This word of explanation is an appeal to the people of Chilton County to pay their hospital bills. We want to keep the type of hospital that you will be proud of. If you owe the hospital money, won't you please help us by paying your hospital bills promptly. — James W. Sudduth.

There are plenty of candidates for practically every office and the time for qualifying with the Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee hasn't expired.

For the next nine or ten weeks there will be candidates visiting all over the county most every day and during this time you will surely get your chance to meet and talk with all of them. G. O. P. PROSPECTS --

PROSPECTS for Republicans gaining conrol of Congress next year are not being helped by the retirement of 5 Republican Senators in the upper U. S. legislative body. And—this coming in, off year, as far as elections are concerned—makes it doubly difficult for the G. O. P. to pick up ground.

Expected to retire after this year in the Senate are Senators Jenner, of Indiana; H. Alexander Smith, of New Jersey; Senator Knowland, of California; Senator Payne, of Maine; and Senator Martin of Pennsylvania.

The Democrats now control the Senate, 50-46. In an off-year election the party not in power (in the Executive election. That would seem to make it highly doubtful that the Republicans can win control of the Senate.

In the House, it is said that dissatisfaction with the defense program, and an expected recession, will hurt G. O. P. chances in this body. The G. O. P. Representatives up for reelection in this body and other G. O. P. challengers, are also facing the off-year jinx in this campaign.

So it may be that President Eisenhower will have a G. O. P. Congress only two years of the eight he serves —if he serves eight. As need not be stated, the best in cooperative and effective government is not usually achieved when the President and the majority in Congress are of different party affiliation.

The real race, which will come in 1960, is being watched by strategists in both parties. If the Republicans lose ground in 1958, and if dissatisfacton over the defense and economic issues is high, Vice President Richard Nixon may be in for hard campaigning come 1960, assuming he is the nominee for President. Prospects for the G. O. P., politically, then, have nose-dived in recent months.

Origin Of The Bible

Between the canonical books of the Hebrew Scriptures and the beginning of the Greek Scriptures there exists a gap of centuries. We may ask, Why should there be a gap from before the year 280 B. C., when the Hebrew canon was translated into the Greek to comprise the Green Septuagint? Evidently because what took place during the course of those centuries until the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ was not of any typical value. The time elasping allowed for development of religion among the Jews in a more subtle form than the gross idol-worship they formerly practiced. It was more subtle in that it professed to set aside or smothered the inspired canon of the Word of God and developed a great mass of traditional writings, which later writings became known as the Hebrew Talmud.

Before passing on to the canon of the Greek Scriptures, the following may be said about the Hebrew canon and its completion, which gives real authority for accepting it. It finds its real confirmation in the sayings and writings of the Lord Jesus Christ and his apostles. It was because they accepted the Hebrew canon as the inspired Word of God that they constantly alluded to it and made frequent quotations from it. McClintock and Strong's Cyclopedia says that in the Greek Scriptures after Christ the writings quote from all books of the Bible excepting Ruth, Ezra, Nehemiah, Esther, Song of Solomon, Lamentations and Ezekiel. The Greek New Testament as produced be Nestle, an eminent German scholar, shows that the Hebrew books of Ruth, Ezra, Song of Solomon and Ecclesiastes are the only ones not quoted or alluded to in the Greek Scriptures. Neither Christ nor the apostles or other Scripture writers quoted from the Apocrypha.

The designation of Hebrew canonical books "Scriptures" or as the Scriptures" in Luke 24:44 he refers to the entire Hebrew canon as the law and the prophets and the Psalms. In naming bay "psalms" that the Psalms alone as a book were to be understood, but meaning the Hagiographa, the third part of the Hebrew canon. The Psalms were merely the opening of the book by its opening word or words, so the Hagiographa would be designated by the opening book, which was psalms. This shows that the canon of the Hebrew Scriptures was completed before the time of Christ. Jesus accepted and quoted it.

Though the Hebrew canon was complete when Christ Jesus was on earth, the Bible canon was not. It was yet to grow by twenty-seven books, the books of the Christian Greek Scriptures. The Lord Jesus Christ was opposed to oral traditions, the Mishnah. Hence, though Jesus did not himself do any writing of the Bible canon, it is sure that he would not leave to tradition the recording of the things that concerned himself and his followers. They were established by the mouth of at least two or three witnesses. Matthew, Mark, Luke and John recorded the testimony. Additionally Jesus sent the holy spirit to bring to their remembrance all things that there would be no erros in recording the things which Jesus had said. -- John 14:26.

In addition to the four Gospel accounts there were added to the Bible canon the historical book of Acts, fourteen epistles by Paul one by Jesus and one by Jude, two by Peter, three by John, and placed last comes the highly prophetic book of Revelation. These writings were either general in their address or were addressed to congregations or representatives. The receivers prized them according to their high worth and preserved the original writings and caused copies thereof to be made and circulated abroad to Christians. Regardless of who were addressed by the originals, they were inspired and intended for wide circulation for general use and consolation. All the books of Scripture are profitable for all Christians that they may be fullly equipped for every good work. Peter in his second epistle testifies to the writings of Paul and class fies all his epistles with the other Scriptures. This indicates that they had become a part of the Bible canon also that these Pauline epistles were by that time in general circulation, on a par with the Hebrew Scriptures. (2 Pet. 3:15, 16) John, in the last decade of the first century of the Christian era, had the privilege of completing the Greek canon.

Now the question hobs up: Did early church set a standard for us today in accepting these writings of the apostles and their associates? The second and third centuries of the Christian era were until recently blind-spot periods of times, that is, as to the existence of manuscript copies of the text of the Scriptures. They were a blind spot all the way down to the nineteenth century, when papyrus manuscripts of the Bible began to be brought to light such as P 45, 46, 47, and the papyrus fragment of the "Fourth Gospel", written between A. D. 100 and 150, which do fill this blind spot, manuscripts written the vulgar Greek language of that day, as is verified by thousands upon thousands of non-Scripture papyri which were not inspired. These Scripture MSS, existed in collected form and were circulated, showing that they were accepted as part of the Bible canon.

We now come to an apparent difficulty, namely, that the ancient MSS. Alexandrine, Vatican and Sinaitic contain some apocryphal nabas, the Shepherd of Hermas, and books, such as the epistles of Barthe epistles of Clement. The question arises, therefore, How may one be sure that the present-day canon of the Greek Scriptures is complete without these apocryphal books? ((Remember these manuscripts are of the fourth and fifth centuries.) Early Christian writers of the second and third centuries set fourth personal catalogues of the inspired Scriptures and such catalogues agree with our canon of today. These catalogues do not include the apocryphal books.

Origen's famous Hexapla contained the same books as are included in the present-day canon. In Eusebius' catalogues of what books were inspired he lists these same books. There are at least ten ancient catalogues of the inspired books of the Greek-Christian writings, which catalogues are still extant. Of these, six agree exactly with our canon today; three of them omit only Revelation; and one of them omits Hebrew as well as Revelation. This means that these catalogues, all prior to the Council of Carthage in 397, do not include the apocryphal books of the epistle of Barnabas, the Shepherd of Hermas, the epistle of Clement (Romanus) and the Corinthians, and the Apocalypse of Peter. Furthermore, the Council of Carthage in its decree set forth the same Greek canon as exists today.

What, then, is the sum of this? Are we dependent upon the catalogues of these early Christian writers, who were not inspired, and the catalogues of those ancient councils? Do the Vatican, Sinaitic, Alexandrine and Bezae MSS. of the fourth, fifth and sixth centuries determine the Bible canon? No. The canon of the Bible canon rests upon a higher authority. The thing that binds the whole Bible together is the holy spirit of God, that gave force when began and concluded the recording of the canon. Internal evidence indicates it is inspired, because it harmonizes throughout. It is indestructible by its enemies, despite their efforts over thousands of years of time. -- Ps. 100:5; 1 Pet. 1:23, 25.

Report from Washington

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Armistead I. Selden

Included in the Interior Department Appropriation Bill passed by the House of Representatives last week is the sum of $51,000 for further improvements at the Marion, Alabama, Fish Hatchers. This is the third consecutive year that funds have been provided to expand and improve this important Sixth District installation.

For the entire Interior Department and related agencies, the House appropriated a total $413 million which is approximately $1.3 million less than the Administration's request and $43 million less than the amount appropriated for the same Department last year.

Veterans Laws Complied

Also approved by the House last week was legislation that consolidates into one Act all the existing laws administered by the Veterans Administration.

This new compilation does not in anyway affect the basic benefits available to veterans or other dependents presently on the rolls, nor does it change in any manner the [illegible] of monetary benefits. However, it does consolidate and integrate existing laws relating to veterans, enabling all persons fident understanding that it emconcerned to use it with the conbraces in one statutory "package" the many and diverse laws administered by the Veterans Administration which heretofore have been scattered among a series of separate enactments.

If approved by the Senate and signed by the President, the new Act is expected to cover approximately 200 pages in comparison with a total of 421 pages currently consumed in the publishing of the various veterans laws.

Public Land Withdrawals

A bill has been sent to the White House which requires the Defense Department to seek congressional apprpval before obtaining military reservation tracts that consume more than 5000 acres of public lands

Original introduction of the bill in the House was prompted by the Navy's application a few years ago for several million acres of public domain in Nevada and California for aerial gunnery training. However, in recent months, citizens in other sections of the United States have also protested the acquiring of many thousands of acres of public lands for military use.

Officials of the Department of the Interior, which administers our public lands, have testified that they have no way of judging the military's need for public areas. Therefore, as passed by Congress, the new legislation will require a specific Act of Congress for future withdrawals by the military of more than 500 acres in a single tract of publicly-owned land. Certain areas occupied by the armed forces under temporary use permits would be exempted from the requirements of the legislation.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT A SCANDAL

Are you one who has really made a misstep or else has the name of doing so because of wagging tongues? If so, there are two things you must remember: (1) You are not the first to suffer like this and (2) Such a mistake need not ruin your life.

So do not allow it to ruin your spirit, neither let it unfit you for usefulness and happiness tomorrow. If someone is really your enemy, nothing would please him any more than that. Even if it is true, the thing which has occurred is in the past. It is water over the dam. You can yet live a useful and wonderful life. Now let me suggest certain things for you to do.

First, decide with a spirit of humility that you can make good in spite of everything. And you can! People from every walk of life have done so. In fact, some have done it so well that their community has come to regard them as some of their chosen and best people.

Second, realize what caused you to go in the wrong direction. Cut completely away from that cause.

Last, do not brag or make a show. Simply demonstrate in a quiet way that you have what it takes to live a good life. Then proceed quietly and honestly to build it.

Emma C. lives in a small city in one of the Carolinas. She is the mother of two daughters although she is not married and has never been.

When Emma was a young girl of 16, she allowed herself to become entangled with an older man. Not realizing the seriousness of her mistake, she continued on until she found herself with child.

Her lover laughed at her and told her that it was none of his concern. "After all," he said, "how do I know the child is mine?"

After the baby was born, she felt that she was ruined. And so she plunged into a wild life of careless abandon. The shock of the realization that another child was coming brought her to a stop. What would she do? Where would she go? Her parents had washed their hands of her. For several days she thought of taking her own life.

Then a good Christian woman took her aside. Gaining her confidence, she persuaded the young girl that all was not lost. She could recover herself. She informed Emma that the road might be rather long, but there were many people who would be willing to help her.

That day Emma turned her life over to God. She gave him her past, her present and her future.

Today she is some 30 years older. Her older daughter is one of the most respected young ladies in the city. She is known for her strength of character and has a very fine position with one of the largest firms in the Carolinas.

Her younger daughter is married. The grandchild is one of Emma's greatest delights.

But Emma herself is not known as "the former streetwalker." She is known as Miss Emma C., the wonderful Christian lady whose kindness, goodness and excellent character have become an example to everyone.

Use of Fertilization For Proper Irrigation

Before a farmer invests in supplemental irrigation—a practice that can help greatly to increase crop yields—he should be willing and able to use high rates of fertilizer.

Research lone recently by the U. S. Department of Agriculture shows that crop response to water management through irrigation or drainage is closely associated with soil fertility management. Scientists of USDA's Agricultural Research Service point out that no single soil and water management practice, by itself, will insure high crop yields Such practices—including supplemental irrigation—must be integrated into the farming system for maximum benefit, they say.

Special prayer is requested for Mr. Funzi Headley. He was removed to a Birmingham Hospital last Sunday.

Everyone who has been missing services, we hope you'll make special efforts to attend next week. All visitors are invited to attend and are always welcome.

Keep Seedlings Moist Before Planting

AUBURN, Ala.—Many landowners with no previous experience in tween now and spring.

Due to tree-planting programs under the Soil Bank Conservation Reserve plan and other state and federal projects, rebuilding of forest reserves has been undertaken by many farmers over the state.

Speaking in Auburn this week, API Extension Forester Ivan R. Martin had a few words of advice for farmers setting our seedlings. The plants, he said, must be kept moist from the time they leave the nursery until they're planted. He explained that a good root system; and, unless care is taken, roots tem is essential to successful plantwill dry out rapidly and become injured.

"Water the seedlings immediately after they arrive from the nursery and plant them as soon as possible," advise the forester. "I see ding must be put off for several days, plant will stay most stored in a cool place. Seedlings kept for more than four or five days should be "healed-in" in moist soil, however. To do this, dig an open V-shaped trench. Then open the bundle of trees and spread roots out along one side of the trench. Fill in with soil so all roots are covered, then drench with water. Stamp down the soil for a firm covering and keep it moist until planting

On planting day, be sure to keep roots covered with a damp material such as wet moss, or keep them submerged in a puddle or bucket, Martin said. Never allow roots to be exposed to sun or wind, even for an hour

Trying to Control Nematodes in State

AUBURN, Ala—Alabama along with 24 other states — was part of a 750,000-acre where a search for nematodes was carried on last year.

In cooperation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, state agriculturists inspected three - quarters of a million acres in central and eastern states, examining soil for the underground pest, pulling plants to check roots for clinging female nematodes, and ivisually inspecting sample fields for anemic-looking plants and yellowed spots that might reveal feeding of the tiny eelworms.

USDA scientists consider this broad survey a big step forward in eventual control of nematodes. nematode numbers; it is costly and They point out, however, that the search must be continued and intensified. Last year's survey bore down hardest in older soybean-producing areas where crop rotation is not practiced and in areas exposed to infestation through movement of farm machinery or by other carriers.

Scanning soybean fields for unhealthy - looking plants is the quickest but least certain survey method used for nematodes, say USDA specialists. The healthies-appearing fields can nourish heavy nematode colonies a year or more before damage appears above ground. By the time crop damage ins apparent, billions of nematodes are usually present

Although soil fumigation reduces doesn't give complete control. Until research now in progress finds a practical chemical, cultural, or biological control of the pest, scientists and farmers to keep soybeans or other host crops off infested fields during long crop rotations.

STEM rot of peanuts causes between 10 and 20 million dollars worth of damage annually, say U. S. Department of Agriculture specialists.

U. S. MEAT imports were about 21 million pounds greater in the first of 1957 than during the same period of 1956.

Field Clinic For Crippled Children, Held Feb. 13th.

The Field Clinic for Crippled Children and adults was held on February 13th at the First Baptist church with Mrs. Marion Tepper, District Orthopedic Nurse of Crippled Childrens Service, directing. Drs. Fay M. Randall and Fletcher Comer were the attending physicians.

Seventy eight of the eighty eight patients were registered by registration chairman, Mrs. L. E. Diefenderfer, assisted b yMrs. Herbert Klinner and Mrs. Gordon Robertson.

A packed lunch consisting of two varieties of sandwiches, fruit and milk were given each child and in some cases the person bringing the child.

Twice yearly, all churches, clubs and civic organizatioins donate all materials for these lunches for patients and staff memebrs. The civic committee is deeply grateful for these donations for all services so freely and graciously given and for the use of the facilities of the First Baptist church and the First Methodist church where the clinics are held, alternately.

The public is urged to visit these field clinics at any time to see the tremendous need of Chilton County's crippled children and adults, which is met by money realized from the Easter Seal Sale launched each year by Mr. L. S. Levine, County Chairman of the Crippled Childrens Society.

A BILLION trees were planted in the U. S. last year. This exceeds by 200 million the previous record high for tree-planting in the nation.

POPULATION of the U S. has increased one-third in the past 30 years. A nation population of 200 million within 10 years, and 225 million persons within 20 years, are conservative estimates

FOLKS and THINGS About Town

by Ben

WILLIAM Vessels is doing great things with the music department at the First Baptist Church. At the recent Music Convention, Judges were selected by the State Music Secretary to judge the various choirs of the Churches over the State. Clanton Baptist was rated "Superior" in the Cherub Choir, the Youth Choir and the Adult Choir. The Carol Choir was rated "Excellent-Plus", which is just as close to being superior as you can get. This speaks well for the music director at the First Baptist Church as well as for the members of the choirs. Congratulations to all of them for their achievement.

MRS. B. L. Jones, who has been a faithful worker in the Methodist Church here for a lifetime will reach her 92nd birthday on March 7th. We wish for Mrs. Jones many happy returns of the day and hope that in her twilight years she enjoys all the fruits of a dedicated life and a beloved mother and friend.

B. L. Adams says its better late than never. He belatedly got his political announcement in this issue of Chilton County News. You will find it among the political announcements along with some 20-odd candidates you have to choose from on May 6th.

THE home of O. L. Mims north of Clanton burned to the ground Tuseday afternoon while the family was away from home. Everything was lost including their clothes, furniture, etc.

THERE aren't as many people actually working as you may have thought. At least not according to this survey included in the Iowa State Daily:

The population of the country is 160 million, but there are 62 million over 60 years of age, leaving 98 million to do the work. Then there are 21 million who are employed by the Government and that leaves 23 million to do the work. Ten million are in the armed forces, leaving 13 million to do the work. Deduct 12,800,000, the number in state and city offices, and that leaves 200 thousand to do the work. There are 126 thousand in hospitals, and that leaves 74 thousand for work. But 62 thousand of those are bums or others who will not work so that leaves 12 thousand to do the work. Now it may interest you to know that there are 11,998 people in jail, so that leaves just two people to do all the work. And that is you and me, brother, and I'm getting sick and tired of doing everything by myself.

RECENTLY the local merchants have been missing their morning paper and investigation showed they were being picked up by someone and taken home. The local police made an arrest last Sunday and charged the culprit with petit larceny. Maybe now when you get to your place of business mornings you will find your paper where it is supposed to be and not have to call the local paperman to find out why you have been missing getting yours.

Four Local Students At Jacksonville State

Jacksonville—Jacksonville State College has four students enrolled for the spring semester from Chilton County. They are:

Dean Edward White of Billingsley who is a junior majoring in business administration. A graduate of Billingsley High School, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Campbell C. White.

Mary Nell Veazey of Maplesville is a freshman majoring in music. She is a graduate of Isabella High School and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Veazey.

Dale Jackson Nabors of Maplesville is a senior majoring in business administration. He is the son of Douglas Nabors and is a graduate of Isabella High School.

Elon O. Kelley of Clanton is a senior majoring in business administration, is also a graduate of Isabella and his parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ira Kelley.

THE South accounts for only a fourth of the U. S. food expenditures, et, nearly a third of the American population is in the South.

THE American Indian used pine needles, rich in vitamin C, to cure scurvy.

Emergency Loans Still Available In Chilton County

EMERGENCY loans were made available in Chilton County last Fall to eligible farmers whose crops were damaged by excessive rainfall and related weather conditions.

Additional authority was given this week for making emergency loans to eligible farmers who have suffered a loss because of the extended cold weather during recent months.

Funds can be advanced for feed, seed, fertilizer, insecticides, family living expenses and other normal farm expenses. Applications can be made at the Farmers Home Administration Office in Clanton located in the Higgins Building.

To be eligible a farmer must be primarily engaged in farming and have reasonable prospects for success in the farming operations he plans to carry on. In addition, he must have suffered a substantial loss from the excessive rainfall and other related weather conditions last Fall or from the extended cold weather during recent months and must be unable to obtain the credit he needs from other sources.

The interest rate is 3 percent. Repayment schedules depend upon purpose for which funds are advanced and upon the estimated income of the applicant. For example, loans for crop production are usually scheduled for repayment when income from the crop is normally received.

EVERY man should have an aim in life—and it takes education to improve his aim.

IT'S next to impossible for people to be happy in life unless they try to divide it with others.

HONESTY is the best policy, but beware of the man who is always preaching it.

IT'S a proven fact that most of the so-called good fellows seem to have a lot of bad habits.

AS a rule the man who says life isn't worth living, would jump from the frying pan into the fire.

TRY to remember that it is about as easy to please everybody as it is for everybody to please you.

A GOOD man doesn't continue going around in circles, he shoots for a given point.

MOONLIGHT AND CHILTON----

"SILENTLY, one by one, in the infinite meadows of Heaven, blossom the lovely stars; the forget-me-nots of the Angels". Now Longfellow had to be thinking of Chilton County on these wonderful Spring nights when he wrote those lines.

We don't get a full moon until the 18th of this month, but if weather prospects continue as are, there will be many watching the moonlight on the Coosa River and forgeting the workaday world that keeps our nose to the grindstone and our life in a dither trying to make both ends meet.

Too, we take note that the local fishermen take on new life and go at their pet hobby with a new zest at this time of year.

Our beautiful river should be developed and enjoyed by more tourists as better roads are constructed in that vicinity and the campsites are more accessible.

We're still punching for a paved highway from Lay Dam to the new bridge below Mitchell Dam. That would open up miles of new locations for summer homes for the local populace as well as the citzens of Birmingham and Montgomery who want a hideaway where they can rest and relax.

Answer to Puzzle

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

An additional sum of $250 million for the 1958 soil bank program was included in an emergency appropriation bill passed by the House of Representatives last week. According to the Department of Agriculture, Alabama' share of this appropriation will total about $15 million.

Originally Alabama was allotted $17.2 million in soil bank funds, but cotton farmers of our state offered acreage, piror to a registration deadline, which would have necessitated the expenditure of $31 million. An additional $15 milion should at least assure sufficient funds for all who registered.

Benson Must Approve

Senate approval of the supplemental appropriation bill is expected in the near future, and President Eisenhower will probably sign the measure since it contains funds other than those for the soil bank program.

It is still uncertain, however, whether or not Secretary of Agriculture Benson will make availavle for the soil bank program the funds Congres is expected to approve Alabama Members of Congress, as well as others from cotton producing states, are urging him to do so without delay.

Postal Rate Increase

In a nine-hour session on Friday, the Senate approved a bill to raise postage rates by more than $700 million annually. Incorporated into the rate bill were provisions for raising the salaries of postal employees at a cost of approximately $320 million per year.

Under the provisions of the Senate bill, the cost of out-of-town letters goes up to 5c while the charge on local first class mail will be 4c. After three years, however, all first class mail would be reduced to four cents an ounce.

For air mail letters, the Senate increased the charge from six to eight cents an ounce, with no provision for a future rate reduction.

Last August the House of Representatives voted to increase all first class mail to four cents an ounce and to raise the air mail cost to seven cents an ounce. Since the provisions of the House bill are not in line with those adopted by the Senate, a conference committee will be designated to draft a compromise of the two versions.

Expresses Appreciation

I learned over the week-end that I would be unopposed for re-election to the U. S. House of Representatives in the forthcoming Democratic primary.

I am deeply grateful to the citizens of the Sixth District who are allowing me to return to Congress without opposition for a fourth term. I assure you that I shall continue to make every effort to do a creditable job for the fine people I have the privilege to represent.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

LEPROSY CAN BE HEALED BY PRAYER

God loves people. He wants to be near us. That is why he sent Jesus to speak with us face to face. He came to touch us with his hands and heal us, to bless us and give us his power.

While Jesus was on the earth, he got just as close to the people as he could with his hands, his voice, his robe.

And one thing he made clear while he was here was this: There is no distance in prayer.

Jesus' hands laid upon the sick were powerful. His voice, his spoken word was just as powerful as the touch of his hands. He could heal in person and he could heal at a distance.

There is one thing, however, that needs to be made crystal clear. The miracles and healing powers of Jesus are not confined to the time when he was here on earth in bodily form. His words and his promises are just as powerful now as they were then.

Not long ago, I received a letter from one of my partners telling me a most unusual story about a modern-day leper. Here is a portion of her letter:

"Less than a year ago, a young man in a leper colony in the Philippines saw my name in the ABUNDANT LIFE magazine and wrote to me. He told me he was a leper and had been banished to the Island of Palawan for the rest of his life. He asked only for letters and reading material. I sent him a subscription to the magazine and a New Testament.

"Justiniana, the leper, has a wife and two little girls who also have been recently admitted to the hospital in Palawan. But Justiniana began to read the magazine and the New Testament to his wife and two daughters. The two little girls were very ill. Their bodies were showing the crippling effects of leprosy. Their limbs were stiff and awkward, and death was only a matter of time. As he read daily to them, their faith in the healing power of Jesus was kindled.

"Time passed. Their prayers became more assured. They believed God. They believed that he would heal them. Later he wrote to me and asked that I, in turn, write you and ask for your prayers.

"And now for the glorious news: Justiniana and his wife, Adelaide, have not only received healing for their bodies, but they are sure that Christ lives in their souls.

"Justiniana and his family have been undergoing tests to prove that they are healed of the deadly leprosy. And every test has proved negative."

There are many other instances where faith has spanned the distance. People have believed in the power of Jesus Christ of Nazareth for salvation and healing.

There is no distance in prayer. Faith bridges the distance and brings near the things that are far away. God, who is everywhere, does the healing. The thing that counts is our believing.

The Right Combination

JUDGING from the field of candidates running for the various Chilton County offices this year the voters of the ounty certainly have the opportunity to elect one of the finest groups of men ever to serve them in public office. Will the voter take advantage of this golden opportunity? Well, that remains to be seen; but if the voter does not, then he'll deserve what he gets.

In each individual race, without exception, there are men of high quality and sterling character needed in official capacities today. Chilton County, voting for the right combination of men can become the leading county in Alabama, no matter what the field.

With such a combination available, we should exert every power toward preserving it for the people. We do not mean a political "machine" or "clique". More exactly, we mean the right group of men, who combining their efforts can do the most in the best interests of Chilton County and the people.

We firmly believe there is such a combination of good men in this particular campaign and we also have faith in them being elected—at least the majority of them. Considering human nature, it is understandable that we cannot pick the perfect combination, but we think it will be near enough perfect to aid Chilton County.

We are speaking of the men now running for office who are dedicated Christians, honest as the day is long, clean-cut and most of all, they believe in justice and the will of the people.

That's our "combination" and should this group of men be elected from the rather large field now in the running, our County government will be as spotless as we have never seen before and will accomplish more than any ever gone before it. We ask that you search your conscience between now and May 3rd and then act accordingly.

SOMETHING else voter—of importance to your decisions. Don't be misled by writers, who, in their own makeup and attempt to gain recognition, are compelled to slant everything they set their mind to. You call this reporting? You are fooling yoursel.! Reporting is presenting to the public an unbiased account of the happenings of a situation. Some writers, obviously unaware of this particular definition, take it on themselves to judge others and do it publicly, thus giving themselves the pretentious feeling that they are doing a great public service. A reporter should not be free to slant the news and give his opinion of a situation. He is to present as much of the story as he possibly can and let the people decide for themselves who is what and why. If there's any justice in a reporter who, under the protective cloak of public reporting, strives to defame another by false accusations and figments of his own imagination, then we bow to his superiority. Knowing different however, we hold nothing but contempt for a man who expresses in a news story things which, at best should be confined to the editorial columns and then should be edited by a competent writer. We dislike being associated in the same field of endeavor with a man, who in his own assumptions sews the seeds of confusion.

In a sense, we are being hypocritical about this subject, but some hypocrit needs to say it. You show us a human being who is not a hypocrit and we'll gladly relinquish the space.

We have expressed opinions before in news stories, and though it does not excuse us from same, we have never strived to defame any person, destroy any moral character or upset any public standing of an individual. If there's a difference, then we're proud of it.

It is entirely against our principal to jump up and down on one political figure's back, right or wrong. Mainly because nobody is always wrong. We don't believe in gravy trains either, on the other hand. That's why we have faith in the combination mentioned previously. We believe that the right men in the right office—and they are available—will completely annihilate all chances of political favors and monopolies. There are those who would not grant me a favor and would not grant you a favor, if they thought it were unethical. And these are the men we want to serve in Chilton County during the next administration. Every candidate for public office claims a deep and abiding honesty and set of principals, but you and I know from past experience and record what is what. Preserve your rights by exercising same when the time comes to vote.

A Quarterback Club is being organized in Clanton with Hugh (Lallie) Pates as temporary chairman and now the Civitan Club is sponsoring a Coffee Devotional for local businessmen each Tuesday morning at 9:00 o'clock. Everyone is invited to the dining rom at the City Grill for this short fellowship.

Chilton County Hospital

OUR HOSPITAL AT YOUR SERVICE 8,760 HOURS PER YEAR FOR YOU - YOURS

Who wants to lie in bed over the week-end with a ruptured appendix? Who wants to spend the night at home with a severe coronary? Who wants to "lie-in-line" all night at the hospital emeregncy entrance until the doors are opened for the day's patients?

Ridiculous question? Fortunately, for us they are, because your hospital is on guard and standing by every hour of every day ready to serve you, your family and your friends.

We would be in danger over 75% of our lives if a sign hung in your hospital which read, "HOURS 9:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M., MON. TO FRI. ONLY". It is impossible to imagine how seriously our every day living would be affected if your hospital kept open only a few hours during the day and closed week-ends. But we do know it would be chaotic. Yet, keeping the hospital open 24 hours every day of the year is one of the big reasons why it costs money for care.

Let's look at the expense side of constant hospital operation. Hospital folks are employed, like any people in business, for the usual work week. They have vacations, holidays and time off the same as you and I. This means that to cover the 24 hour work day it requires three shifts of employees because the hospital day is three times as long as the ordinary work day in most places of business. But it's more than three shifts because the service must continue seven days each week. There must be people on duty to cover the week-end periods and time off for the reason previously mentioned.

When we compare the hospital with the usual business we must remember that for every employee who works th usual work day the hospital must have four employees. This is just because the hospital is open to serve the community at any hour any day. It is easy to see why over two-thirds of the hospital's income for service to patients is spent on wages and salaries. Not that these people are overpaid, but it does take numbers of employees to insure the best hospital care available.

Payroll is the largest single item of expense in hospital operation, but there are many others because of constant operation. There is the continuous use of utilities, linen, medical supplies, drugs, food and the building with its furnishings.

People have said, "Why can't our hospital make money like any other business"? This is part of the story why an essential service necessitates expense. But who would lock the hospital door at 5:00 P. M., or close on Saturday and Sunday to save dollars rather than lives? Not you. Not any person. Your hospital has doors that are never closed.

TIME EXTENDED ON APPLYING FOR PRE-MEAS. SER.

THE closing date for accepting requests for premeasurement of allotment crops and permitted soil bank base crops under Soil Bank Programs has been extended to March 21, 1958, according to an announcement by Eddie L. Owen, chairman of the Chilton ASC County Committee.

This service is purely optional and is provided on a cost basis. The rate to be charged is $6.50 for each farm, plus 65 cents per acre for each acre or fraction thereof in excess of 5.0 acres. Payment based on this rate must be made in the County ASC Office at the time the request for premeasurement is filed.

Any farmer who has not already made his application for this service who wishes an official measurement to use as a guide should contact the ASC Office by March 21.

Dear Editor,

The Reverend Crowe says—"Thank God for a FEW people in this world, who still believe in God, the Bible and Christianity". Evidently, his opinion is about the same as mine, that they ARE VERY FEW. Statistics show that slightly over 50% of U. S. population have some kind of church affiliations. How many of this 50% really believe in a god, or that the Bible was inspired by any god is hard to guess. My guess is there are very few. Of course they all claim they do. Statistics also show that this 50% furnish more than 90% of the inmates of all our penal and other corrective institutions. It is almost impossible to find an atheist in prison.

That Christ was the son of God, Conceived of the Holy Ghost, born of a Virgin, is hard for an intelligent, rational thinking person to swallow. Let's look at it this way: Suppose an unmarried woman today, should become pregnant. How many people in this 20th century, could she make believe that she had conceived of a Holy Spirit? I doubt very much if she could even convince the Reverend Crowe. In this scientific age, with artificial insemination, it might be possble for a virgin to become pregnant, but no god or spirit could be held responsible. 2000 years ago, no god, no godly man or atheist, had yet invented this method. As ignorant and superstitious as the human race was 2000 years ago, even Christ could convince only a dozen to believe in his fantastic parentage.

As for the resurrection and bodily ascension of Christ: If there were such a place as Heaven, it would be a place of spirits only, and what would Christ do with a carnal body in a spiritual world? A body must have sustenance. Where would this come from in a spiritual world? More Fantasy?

While a "Super Natural and Eternal God", was putting the brilliant and intellectual brain in Edison, why did he not put it in the head of a believer? Or make a believer out of him? He is all powerful. He is responsible for everything that is in the earth and in the Heavens.

As for the worshippers of God receiving any more of the good things of the benefits of this life, I cannot see it. Edison received his fair share of the benefits. When God sends a tornado, or other disaster, He does not pick out the atheists. He gets innocent little children, and even preachers. They all look alike to him. Some time ago, I read an article in Colliers magazine about lightning striking a church, and killing twenty seven worshippers, a number of whom were actually clutching the alter rail in prayer. Would any loving god do this to his worshippers? No! No god has any more to do with these things than I do. Every person has a right to their own opinions and beliefs, superstitious or otherwise, but no person, or group of persons, have any right to try to force their beliefs or superstitions on others.

If the Reverend Crowe, will just look over the local papers, or any paper or magazine, and check the religious items, and then check the atheist items, he can plainly see which is spreading the most propaganda.

Yours for truth and honesty,
-s- WES GLETTY

OWEN

Takes First Stand On SEGREGATION

C. C. (Jack) OWEN

REPRINT FROM FRED TAYLOR'S COLUMN IN THE BIRMINGHAM NEWS

OWEN TAKES FIRM STAND ON SEGREGATION ISSUE

BY FRED TAYLOR, News staff writer

A pattern to make certain that segregation is maintained Alabama was outlined by Gubernatorial Candidate Jack Owen, who declared he would "deputize every white man in Alabama as a highway patrolman" to prevent integration of the races.

Owen said he would dismiss the National Guard to prevent President Eisenhower from federalizing it to take over control in the state.

Owen, president of the Public ServiceC ommission, also projected a plan "to bring a flood of new industry to Alabama," which he said "would be the salvation of our state."

He said that, as governor, he would appoint "a full-time industrial agent, who would work directly under supervision of the governor, in each of Alabama's 67 counties."

Owen, commenting further on his plan to deputize all white men of Alabama as highway patrol to preserve segregation, said, "I feel certain they would be willing to serve without pay to do this."

OWEN, making his second campaign for the governorship, aired his proposals on Sunday's WABT - WAPI "Alabama Press Conference," a public information program jointly sponsored by The Birmingham News.

And it became increasingly apparent that he has "a record on the segregation issue and am not just making promises, was emerging as very much a contender in the governor's race.

Owen also voiced the belief that Alabama's Supreme Court [would] uphold the Public Service Commission order in turn [ordering] telephone rate hikes, which have totaled more than $22 mi[llion] ... since 1955.

THIS would involve a refund averaging $35 for each telephone ... A Montgomery Circuit Court decision ... the PSC refusal to grant the phone rate increase, and ... appealed by teh commission to the high court.

P.D. POL. ADV. BY JOHN C. GILES, JR., CLANTON, ALA.

With All Due Respects, State Song Is Unfit For Our Times Says Birt

"Aye" To Alabama Needs Revising

by Geoffrey Birt
Director Ala. State Publicity Department

VERY few people can recognize their oficial State song when it is played, and still fewer can sing it.

Almost everyone knows the lilting music of Maryland's State anthem, the music of which was originally an Austrian folk song. American jigs to the bouncy music of California Here I Come, and there are few who do not know The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You.

At a recent National Governor's meeting, almost no one in the large assembly realized that "Alabama", our State anthem, was being played by the orchestra which was beginning its seranade to the 48 States—Alabama, being first on the roll of the States, was being seranaded first.

Not infrequently, letters arrive at the State Capitol, Montgomery, from band and orchestra leaders, and promoters of TV and radio programs asking if they can be supplied with a copy of Alabama's State song since they do not have one in their files. Sometimes they even ask if we have an official State song. As a matter of fact when the State Bureau of Publicity was preparing a special pamphlet two years ago, the agency had to hunt for a copy of the song for partial reproduction purposes.

There seems no doubt about it—Alabama's official State song is a "flop".

It is admittedly "dangerous" to make this conclusion since no less a person than Miss Julia Tutwiler wrote the words. The music was composed by Mrs. Edna Goeckel Gussen of Birmingham, and the song was adopted by the State Federation of Music Clubs and the State Legislature in 1931.

Miss Tutwiler will be forever praised as one of America's greats in the fields of education for women, and prison reform. But even the greatest have their limitations, and it is respectfully suggested that Miss Tutwiler cannot be considered historically as a great writer of lyrics.

Her first verse starts:

"Alabama, Alabama
We will aye be true to thee
From thy southern shores where groweth
By the Sea thy orange tree. . ."

As this great State's public relations officer I am always tremendously ready to be "aye" to Alabama, but it's a tough job to get full coperation in singing this our local schools and colleges.

As for the orange tree by ye southree grows at Fort Morgan, just by avail for this for some time, and then—by golly—I found it. This thern shores, I searched without the entrance to the tunnel leading from the moat under the outer bastion of the Fort.

The music of our present State song seems to reflect Alabama's old and abandoned motto, "Here We Rest" rather than its new and vibrant motto, "Audemus Jura Nostra Defendere"—"We Dare To Defend Our Rights."

Some states today are using adopted popular songs. Everyone knows the Volunteer State is being seranaded when the band strikes up The Tennessee Waltz. As a matter of fact, there are not lacking those who would like to see Oh, Susanna or Stars Fell On Alabama substituted for our present almost unknown official State Song.

Better still, perhaps, Alabama musicians might like to give some serious thought to writing lyrics more suitable for a mid-20th century Alabama which has risen again with its industrial development, its improved farming, and its greater appreciation of its great natural beauties of rivers, lakes, mountains, coastline and honorable history.

Taking a cue from Maryland's lead, these words could be matched with a famous and great piece of music, or an Alabama composer could compose a new score

Origin Of The Bible

Manuscripts of The Hebrew Scriptures

(This is one of a series presented as a public service with the cooperation of the local Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses).

In the fifth century before Christ scribe Ezra departed out of Babylon and came up to the city of Jerusalem, about 140 years after it had been desolated by the armies of Nebuchadnezzar. The time was one of great activity in the production of Hebrew-Scripture manuscripts. Not that much writing remained to be done to fill out the total number of books of the Hebrew Scriptures, for the bulk of these original writings was completed. Aside from Ezra and Nehemiah, only the prophet Malachi had yet to contribute to the Heberw canon.

So it was not new Scripture production that gave rise to the humming activity in manuscript work. It was due to changed circumstances of the Jewish people. In 607 B. C. their central place of worship had been destroped and themselves carried captive and otherwise scattered. When Jerusalem was later rebuilt and the temple reconstructed, not all the widely scattered Jews returned to Palestine. They could not come up to Jerusalem to hear the Scriptures read. Instead synagogues sprang up all over the vast territory of the Jewish Dispersion, and at these synagogues the scattered Jews assembled in their many little groups to hear the reading of God's Word. Manuscripts, handwritten copies, had to be multiplied many times over to supply the demands for copies of the original writings. None of those copies produced in Ezra's day survives now. But as time passed more copies were made to replace those that succumbed to use and the ravages of time, so that even today there are existent about 1,700 handwritten copies of the Hebrew Scriptures, dating from the sixth century after Christ forward.

The earliest extant or now existing Hebrew manuscript knowns is the Nash papyrus.

There are only four fragments, which, when pieced together, give twenty-four lines of a pre-Masoretic text of the Ten Commandments and some verses of Deuteronomy chapters and 6. The writing is without vowel points, and has recently been assigned to the second century before Christ, by W. F. Albright.

The men who copied the Hebrew Scriptures the era of and before Christ were called scribes, or sopherim. As they copied and passed along the text of the Hebrew Scriptures they took liberties in making textual changes. The Masoretes (discussed farther on) in the period after Christ made no changes, and on the margins of their manuscript copies filled in notes on the text, in which notes they drew attention to changes made by the sopherim. They note the fifteen extraordinary points of the sopherim, namely fifteen words or phrases in the Hebrew text marked by dots above and below. Some of these extraordinary points do not affect the English translation or the interpretation; but others do and are of importance. The sopherim allowed their superstitious fear of pronouncing the name Jehovah to ensnare them into altering it to read Adonay (Lord) at 134 places and to read Elohim (God) at 17 places. The Masorah (marginal comments on the text by the Masoretes) lists these changes. Also, the sopherim or early scribes are charged with making at least 18 emendations (corrections), according to a note in the Masorah. As an instance of this, read in The New World, page 274, paragraph 1, concerning Job 32:3. The Masorah also lists thirty-two passages which have different readings according to an important codex, and which are called Severin. Here again, some of these readings affect only such minor matters as spelling, but others check the scribes on points where the sense of the Scripture verses is involved.

Advancing in time from the period of the sopherim and their many alterations in the Hebrew-Scripture text, we find that as early as the second century after Christ the consonantal Hebrew manuscripts were probably fixed in form. The Hebrew text now presented in existing manuscripts and printed editions of the Hebrew Bible is that of "the Masoretic text", so called. Its development is usually placed between the sixth and the eighth century after Christ. This text does not alter the consonantal Hebrew it does make certain invaluable protext that was earlier established, but vsions serving to make clear the consonantal form of the text.

The Masoretic text was the work of a group of trained Jewish scholars called "Masoretes", or Baalei-Ha-masorah, that is, "lords of tradition." Prior to the Masoretic text the Hebrew Bible had no vowel points or signs to indicate the vowel sounds. The original Hebrew text was, of course, all consonants, the vowel sounds being easily supplied by readers versed in the language. The Masoretes devised a system of markings called vowel points, and by these vowel points they indicated the vowel sounds as handed down by oral tradition. A system of accent marks further assured correct pronunciation. The actual date when the vowel pointing was introduced is unknown. It was probably in the seventh century, for the Tiberian or Western system, and the sixth century for the Babylonian or Eastern system. The Western system has its vowel pointings under the Hebrew line and is now found in all printed editions of the Hebrew Bible. The Babylonian system is above the line.

The Masoretes also collected a number of notes on the text, now called "Masorah". Originally the Masorah was separate, but was later transferred to the margins of the Bible manuscripts. These notes are not interpretative of the text but are a sort of index to textual peculiarities. They recorded how many verses were in each book, how many verses began with certain letters, and other such details. They noted whether words were to be written full or defective, their vowel pointing and accentuation, and how many times they so occurred. They even computed how often each letter of the Hebrew alphabet was found in the Bible text. They noted the fifteen instances of words or phrases marked by the extraordinary points of the sopherim or scribes, along with other notes of value. If the Masorah differed from the consonantal text, it indicated such in the margin with the word Qeri, which means "to be read". Hence, by such suggested readings being in the margin, they did not change one bit the written text as it had come down to the Masoretes from the time of the sopherim. The Masoretic spirit, as Professor Rotherham said, was to "change nothing, reproduce everything, fence and guard everything". They made sure of passing on the traditional text as they had received it.

The Jewish scholar Pinner had a number of manuscripts named after him. No. 1, Pinner, is a roll of the Pentateuch on leather, and contains the five books of Moses complete. It has now vowel points, accents or Masorah, which facts mark it as quite old. According to the subscription of this manuscript or roll it was corrected in the year 580 (A. D.) and hence was written sometime earlier, likely 1,400 years ago. If its subscription be genuine it is the oldest Hebrew-Scripture manuscript known, except another manuscript, the Codex Petropolitanus, suspiciously dated A. D. 489. (Older is the Nash papyrus; but it is only fragmentary.)

There were eight standard manuscripts which were celebrated among the Jews for the correctness and value of their text. They are now lost, but extracts of them are still preserved. These eight manuscripts are (1) The Codex of Hillel; (2) the Babylonian Codex of Ben-Naphthali; (3) the Codex of Israel; (4) the Egyptian Codex of Ben-Asher; (5) the Codex Sinai, on the Pentateuch; (6) the Pentateuch of Jericho; (7) the Codex Sanbuki; and (8) the Book Taggin. The Hebrew Codex (in Spain) was probably named after the Jew who wrote it, and was produced about A. D. 600. It had the Tiberian or sublinear vowels and accents, and also the Masorah. Up to A. D. 1500 it served as a model from which copies were made, but it is now lost. Nevertheless, Jehovah God saw to it that the flow of manuscript copies of the Hebrew Scriptures kept pace with passing time to preserve to this day, His Word.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

FOR PROBATE JUDGE

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of Probate Judge of Chilton County; subject to the action of the Democratic Primary of May 6 and June 3, 1958. I will appreciate your vote and support. B. L. Adams, Clanton, Alabama.

ALEX HAYES WRITES TO VOTERS

IN announcing myself as a candidate for the 15th Senatorial District (Autauga, Chilton and Shelby Counties), I would like to present the following information to the people of this County.

I was born and raised in Clanton, Alabama. Youngest son of the late Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Hayes, brother to Dick (Chevrolet Dealer) and Jack (Former big league baseball player and Tax Collector for Chilton County). I am 42 years old, married and have four children. I own and operate the Chilton Office Supply Company in Clanton.

I graduated from Gulf Coast Military Academy and studied pre-Dentistry at the University of Alabama and attended Washington University Dental School until 1940 at which time I joined the Air Force and served as a pilot until 1945. I was employed by the Civil Aeronautics Administration as a test pilot and Senior Aeronautical Inspector until 1954 when I opened my present business.

My main objective in the Senate is to serve the counties that I would represent to the very best of my ability keeping always in mind the interest and welfare of the people. I will do my utmost to expedite the best educational program possible both in facilities and in decent pay for our teachers. I will help in any way possible to speed the Coosa River Development which can mean so much to all in this vicinity. To raise our old folks pay to a minimum of the national scale which at present we are much below. I am very much opposed to our present alcohol control which is without a doubt our biggest political fotball. I believe in Unions and plan to support the working man in any way that may lighten his load. Being from a farm district I promise to support our farmers and cattlemen in any legislature that would benefit them.

Time will not permit me to see everyone even though every effort will be made to see as many as possible during the next two months. Your vote and influence will certainly be appreciated.

LETTER FROM BING LECROY

I WOULD like to express my appreciation to the citizens of Chilton County for the privilege of being an unopposed candidate for the Office of Superintendent of Education in the May primary.

I can and will spend the time, that would have been consumed in a political race, working to improve our schools in every way possible.

Since I am relatively new in this office, I will welcome constructive criticism and suggestions. I realize that the public schools belong to the people, therefore I will make every effort to administer a good school program for every child in Chilton County.

I also realize that in order for our children to receive the maximum from their educational training they, their parents, and all school personnel must be happy in all school experiences and situations. This can only be possible by the cooperation of all concerned.

Let me again say thanks to everyone for their act of confidence.

Sincerely,
W. A. (Bing) LeCroy

MR. Burton Mullins, director of the Chilton County Civil Defense joins men in this letter of thanks. We would also inform you who go to the river, to be sure always to have on a life preserver when you get in a boat, so that the tragedy of drowning will not take place again with any of our people or visitors who come to enjoy the fishing and recreation on our Coosa River. — CHILTON COUNTY CIVIL DEFENSE RESCUE SQUAD, Alvin Ellison, President.

"Ford Motor Company has used its superior research and manufacturing know-how to do something which the farm equipment industry has been trying to do for years. With a 16 to 1 compression ratio, combined with the efficient direct diesel fuel injection system and lower fuel cost, the Diesel will realize fuel savings over gasoline of approximately 40 to 50 per cent, he added.

LET'S GO FLY FISHIN' CUZ'N

The early bird not only catches the worm—she goes fishing with it

Pretty Pat Lee may be too early for the fishing season, but there's nothing like being prepared and making sure her tackle is in good condition.

As a further precaution, Miss Lee brings herself up to date on the latest fishing information by studying her advance copy of the first annual edition of the Fishermen's Digest.

The new book, to be published April 1, is the most complete book on fishing ever published. It contains more than 50 articles covering the whole field of angling, plus more than 300 photographs.

We're not sure what kind of fish Miss Lee will be after, but it makes no difference because there's an article in the Fishermen's Digest on any type of fishing she wants.

If she's after bass, the book's editor, Tom McNally, has contributed an article on "spoonplugging" the amazing new system that almost guarantees a prize catch of big bass, regardless of time of day or weather conditions.

Other articles, all written by experts, tell how to catch trout, bluegills, marlin, muskies, shad, salmon, bluefish, sailfish, striped bass, yellowtails, steelhead, porpoises, bonefish, and the giant ger.

The Fishermen's Digest will be sold in sporting goods, book and department stores, or can be ordered by mail from The Gun Digest Company, 227 W. Washington St., Chicago 6, Ill. Price is $2.95 postpaid.

THE man who bets on a sure things, often finds there is no such thing as a "sure thing".

EVEN if the world owed every man a living, some folks wouldn't have sense enough to show up on pay day.

A POSITION never brought people happiness -- it's the disposition that really counts.

RIGHT only, and right always should be our creed.

A GREAT many people have no use for the bonds of friendship unless they pay dividends.

DIFFICULTIES are easily cleared up by doing immediate duties today -- not tomorrow.

PEOPLE who live in glass houses -- can't expect their neighbors not to look.

PEOPLE who go through life sowing happiness are bound to reap a harvest of pleasures.

MORE OF THE SAME

LAST week we had a peek at our first gubernatorial candidate when A. W. Todd appeared at the National Guard Armory. This week another candidate for the office of Governor appears in Clanton when Jimmy Faulkner will have a big rally at the Clanton Airport.

WE don't know the dates when the other candidates will come to town but anyway it's two down and thirteen to go.

CITY FATHERS AT MOBILE --

MONDAY, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week the League of Municipalities is holding their conventionat Mobile. Mayor Hollis Jackson, L. E. Diefenderfer and Leon (Bulldog) Kemp attended from Clanton.

YOU know! The citizens of this municipality should be proud of their City Fathers. We have less friction and are getting more done than ever before of our little city.

THE record made by the present Council and Mayor will long stand as a mark to shoot at by coming administrations and we think the time to tell them they are doing a good job -- not buy hem flowers afer they're dead.

PROSPECTS GOOD --

FROM talk around the county the peach growers are looking for a bumper peach crop this year. If this be true gladness will reign throughout Chilton County.

THE three or four million dollars that are realized through the growing of peaches is divided among thousands of workers and merchants as well as the peach growers themselves and the result of such a vast sum coming into our community adds a much brighter outlook for everyone.

PAINT-UP TIME

IT'S about time to paint-up and fix-up again and the merchants of Clanton, Thorsby, Jemison and Maplesville are getting their Spring stocks ready to take care of your needs.

WITH this season comes the urge to get out and do a little work around the home, the barn, and the outhouses. It is as natural as life or death, so take stock of your needs and start getting ready to begin that Spring cleaning before you get the Spring fever.

THREE WEEKS FROM SUNDAY--

EASTER comes early this year. To be exact it will be April the 6 which is three weeks from Sunday.

THAT also means that one-quarter of 1958 has passed and that you have just about earned enough this year to pay your income taxes and little unpleasant things like that.

SO Easter will be a fresh start in more ways than one. Disgraceful how modern living and thinking fouls up our oldest traditions.

Now I Lay Me Down To Sleep!

THIS PRIMITIVE BED is the "sleeping" accommodation for the Chilean tot who so wistfully gazes out at all about her not knowing the dire poverty of millions in her country. This is mute evidence of the destitution that exists in many parts of the world and is testimony to the great need which confronts the Bishops' Relief Fund in its world-wide effort to provide assistance-clothes, medicines, U.S. government surplus foods and other relief supplies. A major assistance program of relief aid is now underway in Chile and your contribution to the Bishops' Relief Fund, Empire State Building, New York 1, N. Y. or your neighborhood Catholic Church will help alleviate the desperate need.

DEATH ON THE COOSA --

THE death of Charles Barrett, of Fairfield, on the Coosa River last Sunday brings a grim warning to those who would enjoy the boating, fishing, and water skiing this season.

ALL who play on the river should take every precaution for the safety of themselves and their companions when such a tragic end can follow a minute of carelessness.

A Sidewalk Campaign

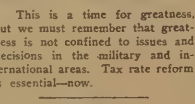
A Time for Greatness

We Americans know that the free way is the best way. The free way can operate at top efficiency only when the incentives, rewards, and penalities of the market place are allowed to function.

Our economy today is shackled by oppressive taxation which dulls incentive and takes away the rewards for hard work. The steeply climbing rates of individual income tax, and excessive rates of corporate tax, also seriously diminish the volume of savings which would become new venture capital—the capital so badly needed to help create new jobs and make the country grow.

Legislation pending in Congress —the Sadlak-Herlong Bill — would reform the rates and open up new vistas of economic growth which we must have if we are to win the industrial race with Russia.

This is a time for greatness, but we must remember that greatness is not confined to issues and decisions in the military and international areas. Tax rate reform is essential—now.



The Lord is nigh unto them that are of a broken heart, and saveth such as be of a contrite spirit.—(Psalm 34, 18.)

All the will power in the world will not mend a broken heart, or bring comfort to a soul in deep sorrow. The love of God alone, so freely given to those who seek His forgiveness and His help, can heal and restore us to health and happiness, raise us up from the depths of despair.

DURING THESE days of campaigning for this and that it seems to us that there is a crying need in and around the city of Clanton for plain, old-fashioned sidewalks. This is by no means a reflection on any party or parties, we just feel that a committee should be designated to recommend certain projects concerning pedestrian rights-of-way to the City Council.

There are numbers of streets in our fair City that are long overdue for sidewalks. In fact, some of the streets have already deteriorated and been repaired and still no sidewalks x

Of course we don't know what constitutes the installation of sidewalks if we did, we'd recommend it ourselves. We're saying that effects should be made toward that end. There have been few effort in the past for a concentrated movement to establish "cement" in Clanton and what with our growing business districts and neighborhoods, we think it would be a shame if the sidewalks did not expand with the demand.

We are a progressive community and think goodness our City Fathers are progressive honest citizens as is our mayor; therefore we would like very much to see this much neglected (in the past) project boomeranged into action.

All the new housing sections around Clanton are completely without sidewalks. We know they are comparatively young compared to some of the other streets that need sidewalks, but we feel that the only way to make them impressive on new industries or other strangers is to have them complete in every detail.

There is also a safety angle involved with sidewalks. or the lack of them. but they, being so evident, will not be discussed here.

And by the way, criticisms are constructive, depending entirely no the way you look at them. We cannot all agree on the same thing.

Anyway, we need sidewalks. . . it's plain as that.

Gov't Debt $1600 For Each Person

The Federal Government could pay off the national debt if it could collect about $1,600 from every man, woman and child in the country.

For the average man with a wife and two children, this would mean $6,400!

Competition for Gov't Spenders

Bigger and bigger Federal spending programs (quite apart from defense) and taxes continued at high wartime levels show that some kind of automatic brake on spending ang taxing is necessary. Otherwise, Americans may have nothing to look forward to but a perpetual squeeze between high taxes and inflation.

In the business world, competition provides an automatic brake on prices, and forces companies to operate efficiently in order to survive. In government, advocates of heavy spending have had some opposition but no real and effective competition.

Now, however, there is in Congress a bill pending which for the first time would bring the tonic of competition into government. This is a tax reduction bill with bipartisan support (the Sadlak-Herlong bill) which would schedule specific income tax cuts over a period of five years. It would cut the base rate from 20 to 15 per cent, and make the top rate 42 per cent.

With specific "forward scheduling" of tax cuts, the bik spenders would have to compete against the definite expectations of the people for tax relief—instead of the vague hopes they have today.

We see and hear

by "TUCK"

MISREPRESENTATION seems to have become a by-word in the advertising world and we cannot understand why. It seems that in our modern day life sellers of products not only exaggerate their wares but make themselves look ridiculous in doing so. We don't care what their statistics show, we don't believe that anywhere near a majority of the American people are gullable enough to actually believe some of the advertising propaganda thrown at them daily, especially from their TV set. It is not the American people who are making this trend seemingly necessary; it's some of the stupid "brains" who cooked up these impossible gimmicks thinking that that's what sells their wares. Necessity sells the stuff and the product itself, if it's halfway effective. It's our opinion that these boys who work overtime for nothing on these "proof" schemes and "better than all other leading brands" bings. They're obviously fooling no one but themselves. And some of 'em turn our stummick!

DON'T get us wrong. . .originality is not what we condemn; it's the obvious outright fabricating that we can't stand.

OUR cousin and long-time working companion Vernon Payne is now dabbling in the field he has always had his heart on, in one way or another -- politics. Payne has always been extremely fond of the "soap box" realm and is getting his first real taste of it in this campaign for the Governorship of Alabama. No, believe is or not, he isn't running for office (a unqueness in itself it seems) but he's campaigning for George Wallace, who is indeed in the running and we think he's doing a mighty fine job of it too. Payne's got a good sharp head on his shoulders, and w e think he will win many, many friends for the "Fightin' Little Judge" before all is said and done.

WE were discussing the other day our opinions of the present day daily newspapers and it behooves us to note that as we grow older, and we hope more experienced, the once high regard which we held for the big daily is dwindling into an opinion of disgusting reality. We always held that the big newspapers -- the dailies -- were as near perfect as the American Press could be. We are changing our opinion daily. No doubt any cub reporter or half-baked editorialist could rake us over the coals when it comes to an argument of the pen, but we do take pride in the fact that our principals are clear cut to us and we know where we stand. We stand for right, as interpreted by any straight thinging individual and we feel that partiality on the part of a newspaper -- which the people trust in -- is highly irregular and unpatriotic. We note that certain of the dailies in Alabama are particular who they give front page space to and it's hard for us to believe that any journalist cannot smell obvious news, no matter who it concerns. The dailies have not been doing their duty in reporting the happening of ALL the political activities over the state and they should be set straight. It is their duty -- for they have a trust to uphold -- to inform the public, not to elect any one man to office. If they are over a barrel it's their own fault in the first place and being a member of the American Press, they should be big enough to stand up to their own responsibilities and take the consequences of their own shortcomings. We hope to see bigger and better things from our dailies in the future; certainly not because of our opinion, but because they have a duty to the American people. If they cannot report facts as such and all the facts then they do not deserve the privilege of serving the people.

AND the green grass grew all around. . .as Mother Nature comes forth these March days with multitudes of flowers and grass popping up over night. It's one of Nature's miracles, the way Spring just seems to wait for it's first opportunity to "spring" forth and even though the lawn mower brigade will wail their woes, they too will be glad to usher in this best of all season's . . .and certainly the prettiest. . .Spring!

WHY must we Americans, as descendants of the builders of our liberties and freedoms, continue to be intimidated and bullied by the Comunists such as the recent incident in Korea of shooting down an American plane and then claiming that we broke some kind of Armistice They take us for fools, and we apparently are doing nothing very evident to prove otherwise. We don't care much what they think of us personally, but we are concerned about how our government reacts to the promiscuous "live action!" which the Communists seem to indulge in. If nothing else, find the guilty parties and beat you know what out of 'em. May be a stupid idea, but it makes our blood boil to see other Americans pushed around and our good name "spit on" by human beings not worthy of the distinction.

THE newly-organized news sheet published by the local Methodist Youth Fellowship is self-evident that our younger generation has within its ranks some mighty fine American citizens. The most recent issue (for which we paid a nickle) had a though on Page one that struck us as very effective. It was in the form of a cartoon and said simply: "Sunday: take it easy, but go to Church."

U. S. Department of Agriculture economists estimate that frozen food production has increased five times in the past 10 years.

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

A major budget reform bill was passed by the House of Representatives last Thursday after two days of heated debate. The vote was 311 to 87.

This legislation, which follows the recommendations of the Hoover Commission, is designed to give Congress tighter controls over federal spending. Proponents of the measure argue that it will save the government billions of dollars. Those who oppose it insist that, in the long run, the proposal will prove costly as it will create confusion in accounting and budgeting procedures.

As passed by the House, the bill gives Congress authority to place government appropriations on an annual basis Although the full amount to be spent on project extending over a period of several years would still be appropriated at one time, all unspent balances would be reviewed each year by Congress.

SOIL BANK FUNDS

In last week's column I discussed the $250 million additional appropriation approved by the House of Representatives for the 1958 acreage reserve program. I pointed out, however, that it was still uncertain as to whether or not Secretary Benson would make these funds available for the soil bank program.

A letter I received only a few days ago from Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Marvin L. McLain indicates that additional funds will be used for acreage reserve payments without unnecessary delay. Mr. McLain's letter states in part:

"Should the additional authorization be made available by Congress, please be assured that farmers who registered their desire to participate in the 1958 acreage reserve program before the deadline for signing and filing applications will be immediately accomodated to the extent possible. On the basis of preliminary reports on signof cotton acreage, we believe it will be possible to accept all offers of cotton acreage."

Senate approval of the additional funds already voted by the House of Representatives is expected this week.

HOUSE SPACE GROUP

Members of the House of Representatives passed a resolution last week creating their own Select Committee on Astronautics and Space Exploration. Following passage of the resolution, Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn appointed seven Democrats and six Republicans to serve as members of the new commmittee. Rep. John McCormack, majority leader of the House will serve as chairman of the group.

The select committee authorized to conduct an investigation of all problems relating to the space age. It will also consider all legislation dealing with space exploration and control.

Lest We Forget!

The biggest, most powerful monopoly in our nation's history—and one not subject to the antitrust laws which apply to every other segment of our economy—is that of the labor unions.

It is responsible in large part for the rise and existence of the scandalous conditions exposed by the Senate Rackets Committee in its continuing investigation of union leadership and practices.

Enough improper practices in labor unions and by union bosses already have been brought to light, according to Senator McClellan, to justify remedial legislation at this session of Congress.

Surely an aroused public, shocked by the McClellan committee's exposures, will demand that such action be taken in the nation's interest— and the time for action is now, to end labor monopoly, once and for all.

GO PLACES FASTER IN THE U.S. AIR FORCE

BY C. WILSON HARDER

Sooner or later, Congress is going to have to face the issues created by the widespread use of trading stamps.

It's a ticklish problem, too. When trading stamps first sprang into prominence in the postwar period, many an independent merchant found they helped stimulate his business, especially in competition with the chains.

But as more and more trading stamp promoters set up shop, more and more merchants have felt forced to take on stamps for self-protection, either absorbing costs out of profits, or adding to prices.

C. W. Harder

Thus, there has developed a system whereby the advantage anyone had from the use of trading stamps is largely negated by everybody offering stamps.

Due to lack of clarification of many legal aspects of matter, Federal Trade Commission more or less backed out of hassle.

The latest body to take a seemingly confused position on this issue was the Supreme Court of the State of Oklahoma. This state has what is called an Unfair Sales Act which requires a minimum markup of 6% above the cost to the retailer including not only the invoice cost, but also subsidiary items such as freight, taxes, and other items.

Safeway decided to meet stamp giving competition by cutting prices below legal minimum on grounds giving away stamps is form of price cutting.

The big chain lost the case in a lower court, and recently lost an appeal to the Supreme Court of the State. At the same time, the court passed on another stamp matter, and upheld a lower court decision prohibiting any merchant from giving away double stamps on certain days.

But the decision of the court seemingly was a most peculiar one stating, "We conclude the weight of the law distinctly shows that the practice of giving away stamps in the usual customary manner does not sustain a charge of price cutting." The opinion further stated that stamps amount to a cash discount rather than a price reduction.

Bearing in mind that the same court also prohibited anybody from giving away a double amount of stamps on certain days, the decision appears most ambiguous. To the average layman, the difference between a "cash discount" and a "price reduction" is like Tweedledeedee is to Tweedledeedum.

Thus, it would appear that there is needed from Congress a law defining just what the use of trading stamps amounts to in actual practice.

For example, the question is still up in the air as to whether or not tradhg stamps are a form of currency, which would thus make them illegal.

Probably one of the biggest interests in this issue is held by the American farmer. Obviously, cost of stamps given on many food products either eventually is made up for in form of lower prices to farmers, or in higher prices to consumers, thus cutting down farm product consumption.

There is even some thought, therefore, being given, to make it illegal to give away stamps on any product containing farm products that are being price supported by federal funds collected from taxpayers. This could have a far reaching affect.

ORIGIN of The BIBLE

Versions of the Hebrew Scriptures

"Version" of the Hebrew Scriptures are translations of them into other tongues or languages. All of the early versions were handwritten, and hence were in manuscript form. Some of the versions were themselves versions of earlier translations from the Hebrew; as, for instance, the old Latin versions translated from the Greek version of the Hebrew Scriptures.

IN point of age the Samaritan Pentateuch is the earliest witness to the Hebrew text of the Scriptures. Samaria, you remember, was the capital of the ten-tribe kingdom of Israel, and the name of the capital came to be applied to the whole of the territory occupied by the northern faction of the nation of Israel. When the Israelites of Samaria were carried off captive by the Assyrians in 740 B. C. heathen populations were moved into Samaria from other parts of the Assyrian empire. They came to be called Samaritans, and it was this Samaritan community that produced the Samaritan Pentateuch some 300 years later. It is not actually a version or translation of the original Hebrew, but is a transliterated Hebrew text in Samaritan characters and interspersel with some Samaritan idioms. Though it reaches back to the fifth century before Christ for its origin, the manuscripts upon which today's printed text is based are not of a date anywhere near so early.

IT was at about this time that the Aramaic paraphrases came into use. Hebrew was gradually being superseded by Aramaic as the language of the common people of the Jews, and from Nehemiah's time onward it was necessary that the reading of the Hebrew Scriptures be accompanied by paraphrases or interpretations in the Aramaic tongue, that the common people of the Jews could understand the reading. (Neh. 8:8) The Aramaic word for "interpretation" or "pharaphrase" is targum, and these rather loose and free translations of the Hebrew Scripture were called Targums. The Jewish scribes and priests were very reluctant to put these paraphrases into writing, thinking the Scriptures too holy to translate. But the mistaken veneration and superstition of religious Jews was not permitted to block Jehovah God's purpose of having his Word made available to the common people. Translations in permanent form were destined to come.

AS far as the Aramaic paraphrases are concerned, they were beginning to be committed to writing around the time of Christ. The Targum of Onklos is thought to be the oldest Aramaic version existing, setting forth the Pentateuch. The original of this Targum was written in the first century after Christ. In the same century the Targum of Jonathan on the books of Joshua, Judges, Samuel, Kings, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekial, and the twelve minor prophets was recorded. The Targums in their present written form, however, cannot be earlier than the fourth or fifth century after Christ.

THOUGH originally written in the first century after Christ, the Targums are not the earliest written translation of the Hebrew Scriptures. The earliest among the versions as wel las the most important is the Greek Septuagint (symbolized by LXX). It was produced to meet the needs of Greek-speaking Jews at Alexandria, Egypt. The name first applied strictly to the Pentateuch version, but afterwards was extended to include all the Hebrew books as they were translated. This work of translation began about 280 B. C., year the first five books of the it being likely that during that Hebrew Scriptures were completed.

ALL of the Septuagint books combined into a single book by at least the first century after Christ, at which time the Septuagint was accepted by the Greek-speaking Jews of the Dispersion as genuine Scripture. From them this Greek version passed over to the Christians and is quoted from in the writings of Jesus' apostles and disciples. The direct quotations from the Hebrew Scriptures have been computed to be 365, besides nearly 375 references or allusions to the Hebrew Scriptures more or less definite. The great majority of these quotations from the Greek versions of the Hebrew Scriptures are taken by the apostles and disciples almost literally from the Septuagint, while some few appear to be new renderings made by them of the original Hebrew. The Septuagint was therefore based on the Hebrew text earlier than the Masoretic text. It was doubtless based on an old, well-written copy of the Hebrew Scriptures as preserved in the court of the temple at Jerusalem many years before the destruction of that temple.

OF the Syriac versions of the Hebrew Scriptures, the Peshitto (P'shitta) or "simple" revision is translated from the Hebrew direct, although some books seem to have been influenced by the Septuagint. The date of the Peshitto version of the Hebrew Scriptures is assigned to the second century after Christ. Its underlying Hebrew text or translation was the same s for the Masoretic text.

AQUILA was a Jefish proselyte of Pontus in Asia, an apostate from Christianity, and his Greek version of the Hebrew text is very literal. Fragments of the Greek versions by Theodotion and Symmachus, both of the second century after Christ, were preserved through Origen's multiple version called the "Hexapla" (meaning "sixfold"), as was the translation of Aquila. The Hexapla contained in six parallel columns the Hebrew text, the Hebrew transliterated into Greek letters, the Septuagint revised somewhat by Origen to correspond to the Hebrew text, and the three Greek translations above mentioned, namely, those of Theodotion, Acquila and Symmachus.

ABOUT A. D. 382 Jerome started work on the Latin Vulgate Bible. Old Latin versions existed before this, but they were based on Greek translations of the Hebrew Scriptures. Jerome's Vulgate was based on a Hebrew text practically identical with that of the Masoretes, but he did also mage references to Greek versions in his work of translations. By A. D. 404 Jerome had rendered the entire Bible from the Hebrew and Greek texts into Latin, and his work came to be known as the Vulgate, meaning the "vulgar" or common" edition of the Scriptures. It became the basi of Western Biblical scholarship for a thousand years.

OTHER versions yet remaining are the Egyptian, Ethiopic, Arabic, Gothic, and Armenian. With the exception of the Arabic, all of these versions of the Hebrew Scriptures appear to have been made, not direct, but through the medium of the Greek Septuagint. The Septuagint, incidentally, is reliably preserved for us in three famous manuscripts Vaticanus 1209, Sinaiticus and Alexandrinus, along with the text of the Christian Greek Scriptures.

THE first English version of the entire Hebrew Scriptures translated direct from the Hebrew text appears to be that of the popular King James Version or Authorized Version Bible, published in 1611. "Jehovah" does not occur in the Septuagint version, that name being there represented by the Greek words for "the Lord" (ho kyrios), and for this reason the name Jehovah has been obscured for many centuries. The original Hebrew text does contain the name Jehovah in its more than 6,800 occurrences. It is therefore fitting that the existent Hebrew text, even in the fact of the possible corruptions therein, be used as the basis of translation into any other language today. Almighty God has even permitted it to work out so since the Protestant Reformation of the sixteenth century, and that for reasons which can be appreciated in this "day of Jehovah".

PAPYRUS MANUSCRIPTS OF THE GREEK SCRIPTURES next in series.

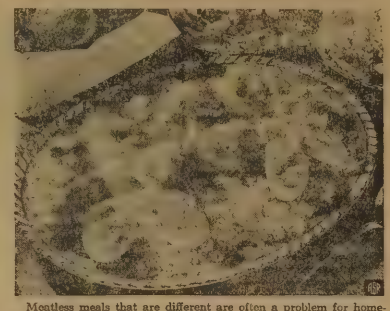
A Flavorful Dish For Lenten Meals



Meatless meals that are different are often a problem for homemakers during Lent. For a welcome change try Deviled Eggs with Shrimp and Rice which makes use of the quicker-than-ever 6-minute rice as a base. Shrimp is added to the deliciously seasoned egg mixture and the eggs are served on rice, then topped with curry sauce. This mouth-watering dish is indeed a boon to homemakers in need of something quick, something different.

Deviled Eggs with Shrimp and Rice

6 hard-cooked eggs
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
4 teaspoons vinegar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
Dash of pepper
1 cup cooked fresh or canned shrimp, drained and cut in pieces*
1½ cups (4½-ounce box) packaged pre-cooked rice
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups boiling water
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1½ teaspoons grated onion
1 teaspoon curry powder

Cut eggs in halves. Remove yolks and force through a sieve; add mayonnaise, vinegar, ¼ teaspoon salt, mustard, and pepper; mix well. Add shrimp and fill egg whites with mixture. Set aside.

Add packaged pre-cooked rice and salt to boiling water in saucepan. Mix just to moisten all rice. Cover and remove from heat. Let stand 5 minutes. Fluff with fork.

Meanwhile, melt butter in saucepan. Add flour and stir until blended. Then add liquid gradually, stirring constantly. Add onion and curry powder. Cook and stir until sauce is smooth and thickened. Place deviled eggs on bed of rice and top with curry sauce Makes 4 servings.

*Use ¼ to ½ pound fresh shrimp or one 8-ounce can.

Judge Melton Extends Thanks

Judge Oakley W Melton, Sr., who is without opposition for renomination for the office of Circuit Judge of the 19th Judicial Circuit, today issued the following statement here in Clanton where he is holding a session of Circuit Court:

To the people of Autauga, Chilton and Elmore Counties;

To fact that I am unopposed for renomination for your Circuit Judge overwhelms me with a strong three-fold feeling -- one of grateful gratitude, one of humility, and one of deep desire to fulfill the trust reposed in me and to render the efficient and honorable service to which you are entitled. It is a great honor to serve as Circuit Judge over a circuit composed of three counties, with a population of some 77,000 people, an area of 1,926 square miles, with property tax assessed valuation of $52,282,893.00, and with some 40 licensed attorneys.

The honor, however, carries with it numerous and important duties, grave and heavy responsibilities. I renew my pledge to give to these duties and responsibilities diligent application and the best efforts and thoughts of which I am capable. In doing so, I adopt the prayer of Solomon when he came on the throne following the reign of his father, David: "Give, therefore, thy servant an understanding heart to judge thy people that I may discern between good and bad; for who is able to judge this thy so great a people?

Your continued loyalty and cooperation is respectfully requested. I shall strive to pattern my service and official conduct on the Biblical verse: "And what doth the Lord require of thee (me) but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy (my) God."

The members of my family join me in saying to each and every one -- THANKS A MILLION!

Oakley W Melton, Sr.

WHAT DO BELLS SAY? For hundreds of years the ding dong of bells has been the signal for news. Right here at home the mellow tones of our church bells call folks to services or invite them to a wedding. Bells pealing ring in "The Happy New Year." Our door bells announce visitors and friends. But that bell we hear most—the telephone bell—can be the most thrilling of all. Its ring is exciting . . . maybe an old friend calling, someone planning a party, a new baby in the family. Whenever you have good news to share, chances are you announce it with the friendly ring of the phone because your phone's the quickest, most cheerful way there is to put folks "in the know!"

MARCH

There's a meeting of the seasons,
here in March Hall,
Representatives from Summer, Winter, Spring and Fall;
Each has his own speech to render,
one with words that blow;
One syllables of Sunshine, one with rain, one snow.
Delegations from every weather will be speaking here,
March is but a huge convention of the great round year. — Virginia M. Evans.

MARCH 10-15 is National Smile week, sponsored by Gibson Art Co., to stimulate the remembering of friends and loved one with cherry greeting cards. It is always a good time for friendship and smiles

THE WMU collects old Christmas cards and mails them to Foreign Missionaries. One member uses old cards to make serving baskets, joining plieces with wood thread.

YOUR reporter adds clever jokes from magazines to greeting cards to the sick. They can be passed on to others.

GREETING cards form a lovely centerpiece on a table, placing them around a bowl of flowers or greenery.

To laugh a bit and joke a bit and grasp a friendly hand,
To love a bit and scold a bit and know they'll understand
To tell one's secret hopes and fears and share a friendly smile,
To have a friend and be a friend is what makes life worth while

Patriotism Program By Better Speech Club

FRIDAY, February 28th. The Better Speech Club of the Clanton Elementary School presented a program based on patriotism. The parents were invited and each guest was presented a program appropriately decorated for the occasion. A small flag of the United States was pinned on each parent by each pupil represented.

THE program was an inspiration to all present as testified by several of the parents. This presentation was given in a most able manner. The performance of each pupil was almost professional. Their good training was very evident.

THE Better Speech Club made us all realize how far we have drifted from the patriotic ideals of our fathers and our forefathers. We certainly need more programs of the type presented by the Better Speech Club last Friday Morning.

AFTER the program was over, several pictures were taken and the parents visited informally for a short while.

THE Better Speech Club is under the direction of Mrs. Mary T. Thomas, 6th grade teacher in the Clanton Elementary School.

A Salute to
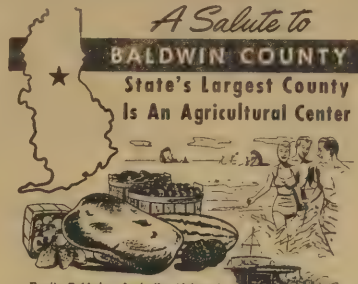
State's Largest County Is An Agricultural Center



Fertile Baldwin, physically Alabama's largest county, is one of the State's leading agricultural centers, receiving a major portion of its income from abundant Irish potato crops and productive truck farms. A profitable industry in naval stores products has developed, while livestock and timber also contribute substantially to the county's prosperity.

Located on the Gulf, Baldwin enjoys a sub-tropic climate and a wealth of water-front that makes it a holiday paradise for vacationers. Gulf Shores, Fairhope, Point Clear and other resort points bring a thriving tourist payroll to Baldwin each year.

Another big payroll of our State is that of the Brewing Industry. Last year, citizens of Alabama earned more than $[illegible],000, directly through the distribution and sale of the beverages of moderation—beer and ale. This is only one of many contributions the Brewing Industry is making to the welfare of our people and the forward march of Alabama.

In this friendly, freedom-loving land of ours

An Indication of Not Enough
HOUSEPOWER

You can't expect enjoyment of your modern electrical appliances when you use "octopus" sockets! They are unsightly — the tangle of wires is inconvenient. They make it easy to plug in more appliances or lamps than a circuit is designed for, so fuses may "blow" or your radio, television and other appliances may not function properly. Lights go dim when appliances start. In fact, some appliances and motors can be damaged by too little housepower.

Enough Housepower In Your Home Means That—

1. Lights and appliances get the correct amount of electricity. Lamps give full illumination; television and radio sets function properly; toasters, roasters, irons and other appliances operate at the temperatures you expect; motors operate efficiently.
2. You can use electrical equipment where and when you want it, arrange furnishings as you wish and always find an outlet handy. You can use several appliances at the same time and can add others as needed.
3. You have no dangerous tangles of extension cords to trip over.
4. Your home will be up-to-date electrically and easier to live in, or easier to sell or rent.

Hints For Easier Housecleaning

Housecleaning is more fun, and easier, when you let family members help, and when they do, they take more pride in keeping the house clean.

Allocate jobs to be done. Father can do the ladder jobs. Sub-teens and teens can sort out toys, comic books, records and outgrown clothing to be given away. They can plan play for the little folks, too, and supervise them.

To make your part easier, look at new products, and choose some to try. They are designed to make housecleaning easier, and lend newness to old chores. Childproof floors in heavy family traffic areas —especially kitchen and bath. Childproof with self-polishing vinyl floor wax for long lasting brightness, water repellency and scuff resistance. Use vinyl floor wax on all floors. And lastly, plan a housecleaning week treat—dinner out, a picnic, or a show—something the family and you will enjoy.

TUCKER HEADS EASTER SEAL DRIVE FOR '58

More than 14,000 crippled children and handicapped adults throughout Alabama last year received direct aid from the Alabama Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Easter Seal contributions were the basis for starting them on the road to rehabilitation.

The 1958 Easter Seal campaign opened last week and will continue through Easter Sunday, April 6. The drive is headed statewide by Earl Tucker, newspaper publisher of Thomasville.

Mr. Tucker said thousands more need a helping hand and are not receiving badly needed services because of limited funds and facilities.

Since its organization in 1926 Society volunteers in every county have sought out the resources to bring treatment, education and employment opportunities to the handicapped.

Keynoting the Society's long-range program are plans for modern rehabilitation centers to be located in strategic population centers in the state.

Everybody can have a part in making facilities available to the less fortunate during the once-a year Easter Seal Campaign. Ninety percent of every dollar contributed remains in Alabama to help its handicapped.

Jail Inspection Gives Chilton Another Clean Slate

THE recent inspection of the Chilton County Jail by State Inspector O. K. Dees indicates that the local jail has turned into what you might term as a model detention house.

THE State Inspector gave the general appearance, the halls, the cells, storing space, bedding, lavatories, etc., a "good" and only one observation was listed as "fair" and this one easily remedied.

Included in his report was the number of prisoners in the jail at the time of the inspection which was on March 3. They were: White males - 18 and colored males - 8.

The Inspector had no complaints to make; listed the sanitation and general cleanliness as "good" and also stated that the jail had not been condemned.

NO mention was made as to the actions taken on the "bug" activity as of the last inspection.

The Chilton County Board of Revenue and Control has supervisory power over the jail.

OVER $800 IN CASH TAKEN!

Sometime Saturday night thugs broke the lock and hasp off the front door of the Yellow Front Store and made off with the safe and $878.68 in cash.

Bill Jones State Investigator who investigated, took fingerprints and stated it followed the pattern of several other burglaries in the western part of the state since the first of January. It was stated that five of the Yellow Front Stores had been entered in this manner since Christmas and each time the safe had been taken.

Local police said that the thieves left with the safe by the back door and apparently loaded it into a car This deduction was made from the tire tracks left by the robbers at the rear of the store.

Ponds May Be Built Under Conservation Reserve

AS much as 80% of the cost of constructing farm ponds may be paid under the Conservation Reserve phase of the Soil Bank Program, according to Eddie L. Owen Chairman of the Chilton ASC County Committee. A number of farmers in Chilton County is registered with the local ASC Office to build a farm pond under this program. Fish pons, ponds for irrigation, and ponds for the purpose of aiding in the better distribution of livestock for grazing may be constructed under the provisions of this program.

Other practices eligible under the Conservation Reserve Program are the establishment of tree cover and the establishment and maintenance of permanent vegetative cover. Mr. Owen states that a large number of farmers has signed up for assistance in setting pine seedlings in this area.

Assistance is given in the establishment of these practices up to about 80% of the cost; in addition, an annual rental payment is made for the duration of a 3, 5 or 10 year contract, depending on practice.

In order to be eligible for Conservation Reserve, the land devoted to these practices must be cropland or must be land normally devoted to tame hay crops.

If you think you have land which qualifies for any of the practices offered under the Conservation Reserve Program, Mr. Owen urges you to contact the local ASC office immediately for further information. The final date for applying for this program for 1958 is April 15, 1958

As stated before this is to become an annual affair. Emceeing this program was James Jones. Visitors of the Club were Coach F. H. Spicer and C. W. Wade.

On March 27th the Club is in for a rare treat. Local man and former Big League baseball player M. C. "Jack" Hayes will entertain the club as guest speaker for the evening. Time is 7:00 P. M. All Civitans are urgently requested to be present. -- C. T.

LOOK out for the man who is always looking out for himself.

UNLESS a man is doing all he can he is doing less than he should.

DOING your duty is easier than trying to explain why you didn't.

THE man who always sings his own praises somehow is always in an off key.

LIFE calls for many kinds of services and there is a service each of us can do.

HEALTH is wealth but try to find a bank that will accept it as collateral.

SOME folks who stand up for their rights are most times standing on another fellow's toes.

TAXES -- ROOT OF THE EVIL --

ALMOST overnight a rather mystifying change in attitude toward the "recession" has occurred in Congress and in the White House. As nearly as it can be pin-pointed, it dates from the return of Vice President Nixon from a mysterious trip to New York - said to have been made on his own initiative, and in the course of which he is reported to have sat at the feet of another great general.

Following President Eisenhower's letter to Republican Congressional leaders outlining new spending and earlier spending on projects to which the Government is already committed but specifically condemning such "pump-priming schemes" as the Roosveltian PWA and WPA - Vece President Nixon declared for tax-cutting. The Democratic led Congress had been for pump-priming.

He would rather, he said, "go down the tax-cutting road than the spending road". He would cut personal taxes, business taxes and excises in order to put "money in the hands not only of customers but in the hands of investigators and job-givers". At once a rash of new tax-reduction bill broke out on Capitol Hll, and the White House declared for a tax cut - not right now, but later if needed.

Thus, a tax cut appears more likely than not and it becomes important to consider what kind would do the most good. There are bills that could only be hatched in an election year, "hand-out" measures that would boost the deficit more than the economy.

And there is the Sadlak-Herlong bill, a carefully thought out measure that would reduce all income taxes, personal and corporate by a minimum of 25 per cent in five years. It provides the safe and sane reform of the tax structure to give business a green light, to give individuals relief and to provide the Treasury with more money by stimulating business activity.

Spending by people and business, made possible by a sane tax cut, will restore the economy faster and more constructively than spending by Government.

IT'S OUR OPINION OF

THINGS We see and hear

by "TUCK"

SOME folks show an incredible amount of genius when it comes to making big problems out of no problem at all.

FURTHER proof that times do not change--only people do was evidenced by yours truly last week on the front page of one of our daily newspapers An article getting top space related the events that sent a boy to prison for life for kidnapping At the bottom of the same page, a man was released from prison after 33 years for practically the same crime The pessimist would say "a vicious cycle" The optimist however, would rather wisely confirm the fact that we're at least holding our own

WE'VE noted lately, somewhat to our disapproval, that when election time roles around, many, many people subscribe to the weekly paper for the shortest time possible so as to reap the benefits of the political reporting We do not believe that politics, in any sense of the word, is the most important public function and certainly it is not the most important service of the weekly press Persons seeking election use the pages of the local press because it is a most effective way of getting to the rural voters. Revenue derived from this function most assuredly does help the weekly newspaper in its attempt to make ends meet. However, politics, being temporary, are not the sole and primary function of your weekly paper. There are many other realms in which your weekly press is quite helpful and quite influential. These realms are important to you--the public and we dislike the obvious fact that people tend to put politics above everything else. It is truly your duty to exercise your rights (and duties) as a voter, but things in our everyday life merit your attention, full time, and have a much greater impact on you personally than does any political campaign. Don't let politics become your only interests. It's a very unhealthy balance in your quest for knowledge. Know your government, but also know your neighbor who in the end, along with you, is the government.

Governor Urges Greater Use Of Libraries

Gov. James E. Folsom has urged all citizens to use more frequently, and help promote, public and private libraries throughout the State.

This was done through a proclamation he issued this week, naming March 16-22 as National Library Week in Alabama. In some off-the-cuff remarks made when he signed the document, the Chief Executive also had a special word of praise for "the splendid service being given to thousands of Alabamians in our farm areas through the Bookmobiles."

The Governor, who is partial to history for his reading, and has just completed reading Volume 2 of Sir Winston Churchill's latest book, noted in his proclamation 'the development of lifetime reading habits is vital to the continuation of our society," and that "the freedom to read is one of democracy's most cherished liberties." He added: "Books are the conservers, transmitters and disseminators of the world's wisdom and knowledge" the Governor noted and concluded:

"Therefore. . .I call on the citizens of this State to participate in this significant endeavor by helping to inform their neighbors & friends of the pleasures and rewards of reading, with the purpose of developing a better-read, better informed America."

Political History in the Making in Chilton

WE, as a citizen of Chilton County and an American citizen feel it our privilege, possibly our duty, to express our opinions freely and we strive at all times to do so.

WE have before stated that there is a possible combination of political figures in this campaign for public office, who, working together can put Chilton County further ahead in four years than it has ever been advanced in any ten.

WE speak, not as a politician, not as an authority, not even as a seasoned "opinionist" on the matter, but since when did it take experience to voice an opinion?

FOR PROBATE JUDGE:

M. D. TINGLE -- Here is a man who, having been Probate Judge for the past four years, has repeatedly done more for Chilton County than any previous man in the same office in our time. His record is one of achievement for the County and its people. He has the ability to get things done His one fault that we can see is his dogged determination, which sometimes leads to friction with his constituents.

BURTON MULLINS --A lifetime resident of Chilton County and a conservative businessman. Possibly too conservative. He has the experience of knowing the county's needs and its possibilities coupled with his own personal contact with the people. A fine man for any office, but cautious.

JOHN M. HIGGINS -- With a former campaign to his credit he is aware of the fickleness of politics. His canvassing is much more subtle than before and his greeting is more sincere. His biggest fault is that he talks easily; listens, not too well. Observes feel that he is definitely in the running.

LEWIS W. HEADLEY -- The newcomer to the field of politics, but certainly not to Chilton County. He is known by as many persons in the County as any man we know and his personality is hard to compete with. He is ambitious, a trait hard to bridle, but one necessary for success, and his history is certainly one of success and achievement. Very civic-minded. He's not a seasoned politician, but he's sharp and quick to learn.

J. C. WHITE -- Another newcomer with a background of education and the experience of years. He is not a politician, but has an honest interest of the people at heart. His only shortcoming that we can see is his lack of public renown. Canvassing is the only remedy for this malady. Here too is a fine citizen.

BERNARD ADAMS -- A staunch believer in his own opinion. His mind made up, he sticks to his guns. An admirable trait, but one which causes him no end of personal argument. His one noticeable characteristic other than his will to fight for what he believes in, is his inability to judge opinions for what they are worth. He has many friends and is energetic and public-spirited.

FOR SHERIFF:

J. LUTHER KENDRICK -- As a personal friend, this man takes the cake. We honestly believe that he would do anything in his power to help a friend. He has been Sheriff before and holds an admirable record of achievement and good law enforcement. He must overcome his inability to mix with politics. In a sense this is a good trait, but to be known by the people, you must mix with the crowd. Lake is a fine citizen and has served Chilton County well in the past.

MELVIN S. POWELL -- A comparative newcomer to this field he is making new friends daily. He is not well-known over the County politically, but is puttinv in overtime footwork to overcome this distinction. A good man to know and a hard-worker.

HUGH CHAMPION -- Present Sheriff and former highway patrolman, "Champ" is admired and respected by every man, woman and child who know him. A law-abiding, God fearing individual, he has only the best interests of the people at heart. He too is a cautious man, not willing to step one fraction of an inch outside what he believes to be right. A good man for any job.

ALBERT PORTER -- Former deputy Sheriff, he is experienced in law enforcement and he knows his way around. A plain, old country boy, he will win many friends in his bid for office.

BOARD OF REVENUE: DISTRICT ONE

DALTON CHAMPION -- Here is a refreshing change in the style of the politician. He is as humble as the dirt farmer, yet to our way of thinking, understands much more than you would think from talking with him. A family man and a good citizen, right down the line. When his knowledge of the field is broadened we look for ideas from this fellow.

LONNIE L. COST -- A seasoned pro in the realm of politics, but not so much in the needs of the people. He is seeking re-election and is capable of helping the people of Chilton County. Cooperation not being one of his chief assets, he needs to correct it. We know not of his liabilities.

JIM ELLISON -- A real honest injun. Eager to help and make good friends. His only hampering trait is that he does not know politics, but he is willing to learn. This in itself, is an "attention getting" characteristic and one which will assist him in his bid to break into politics.

W. H. NELSON -- Certainly seasoned as far as years are concerned, he no doubt has the best interests of the County at heart. His one liability in his bid for election is his age. No handicap to his ability perhaps, but one which the voters usually scrutinze.

BOARD OF REVENUE PLACE NO 2

BILL PORTER -- A rugged individualist to our knowledge. He will make new friends, but making too quiet a bid. More publicity is needed.

QUINTON R. CUMMINGS -- Victim of an unfortunate happening in a previous election he is coming back strong. He now has the campaigning experience necessary to meet people with an intelligent viewpoint. A recognized contender.

A. D. HEADLEY -- A man with a sound head for business and the success and means to prove it. He is running strictly on his merits, which are numerous and will be right up there running all the way. Well-known and well thought of.

CIRCUIT CLERK:

HORSLEY WHITE -- Present holder of the office seeking re-election, he is a conscientious and respected member of our county government. An admirable trait is that he minds his own business and does his job well as a result. He has a good record for the past four years. Win or lose, a good man.

W. R. COBB -- Newcomer again. Not entirely without experience in the field however, he will make a good race. Honest and progressive, he is taking on a big task because his opposition has the advantage of being well-known in the field. He will gain influence.

COUNTY SOLICITOR:

LAWRENCE F. GERALD -- Present holder of the office and unopposed he is extremely well-educated in this field of endeavor. His experience is one reason he has no opposition.

SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION:

WINFRED LECROY -- Successor to the very fine and capable Howard Boockholdt, he is doing a commendable job. His efforts are unselfish and unbiased. A good man for the job with the background necessary to back him up.

REPRESENTATIVE:

FRANCIS SPEAKS -- Present title-holder and out to renew his hold on the crown he has represented Chilton County fairly well. He is too conservative, but this can be marked up to lack of experience. He is now seasoned—a veteran—and should make a much better record if elected than in the past.

CHARLIE COX -- Mr. Charlie is the veteran of veterans and his is the exception to the rule. His age tends to gain him new friends and he has the respect and admiration of everyone he knows. A fine man; with his eye ever on the feelings of those around him If experience means anything—watch out!

GLEN T. BASHORE -- A newcomer to Chilton County, he has made scores of friends for himself and is a man to be reckoned with. Immaculate and very strict with himself and others when it comes to details. He is very intelligent --very sharp. A good man to have around in case of trouble. His one fault is in his own haste to get things done, he tends to loose patience with those less particular. A trait, whether good or bad in politics, remains to be seen.

BOARD OF EDUCATION:

J. P. PAYNE and JAMES W. VEAZEY are unopposed for places on the County Board of Education. This fact, we think, speaks for itself. They are obviously good men for the job.

STATE SENATOR

ALEX HAYES -- A Chilton County product, he is making a healthy bid for the office he seeks. He is canvassing very systematically, very thoroughly and his best trait is keeping his ears open. He doesn't necessarily keep his mouth shut, but this is not a prerequisite for office-seeking.

JOE GRAHAM -- A respected citizen from West Chilton, he is well-knewn and well-liked throughout the County. He is very civic-minded and is intelligent and a shrewd businessman. A good man for any job. He listens to others easily, and we hope he has the ability to weigh facts before making his decision. A thorough man of thought, he is a worthy opponent.

AND we repeat; from this list of qualified men, there is a combination that will make this political election one of history-making significance to Chilton County. Think about each man carefully before you put your "X" on the ballot.

A Good Sheriff; Fine Rescue Squad

BEING a part time resident of Chilton County, naturally deprives us of the pleasure of knowing a great number of the good people of this County. On Sunday, March 9, 1958, a very tragic thing happened in our family. Our niece's husband, Charles Barrett, lost his life in the Coosa River. We want you to know that nothing was left undone by Mr. Hugh Champion, Mr. Alvin Ellison and his Rescue Squad, The State Highway Patrol, Dr. C. O. Lawrence, Mr. Millard Inman of Inman's Fishing Camp Mr. Gaines Burnett, Mr. Barney Parsons, Mr. Whit Moncrief and Mr. Bill Durden, Prattville, and many others, whose names we do not know. Everyone has been so wonderful. We can't thank you enough. — Chas. D. Worley, 100 Devon Drive, Birmingham 9, Ala.

In God is my salvation and my glory; the rock of my strength, and my refuge, is in God.—(Psalm 62, 7.)

Let us then daily affirm—not once but continually—that the only true and lasting happiness on earth is to be found in God and in serving Him: that in Him alone can we find the strength to bear life's inevitable sorrow and adversity: that in Him alone is the joyous peace we all seek and may have.

Plans for curbing floods on the Tombigbee River and its tributaries moved one step nearer last week with House passage of a public works authorization bill. Funds in the amount of $19,199,000 were included in the bill for the Tombigbee flood control project.

The authorization measure adopted by the House differs from a similar bill passed earlier by the Senate, and a conference committee has been assigned the task of working out a compromise.

The first attempt to gain congressional approval of a flood control project for the Tombigbee River Valley arear was made in 1939, but it was not until 1956 that Congress passed authorizing legislation. However, the 1956 bill was vetoed by President Eisenhower Some predict the President again will veto the authorization bill when it reaches his desk, but as yet he has not definitely stated that he will do so.

CHANNEL CLEARING

Plans for improving the Tombigbee River and its tributaries call for clearing the channels of snags debris, and draft jams, and excavating channel cutoffs and enlargements, as well as clearing scrub growth from along the banks. These improvements are expected to curb the floods which frequent the valley area and often cause damages to farm lands, businesses, and homes

Two of the tributaries of the Tombigbee River are partially located in the Sixth Congressional District. The Sipsey River flows through Tuscaloosa and Greene Counties, and the Noxubee River flows through Sumter County to join the Tombigbee just above Gainsville.

FHA LOANS AVAILABLE

The Department of Agriculture announced last week that Bibb Greene, Hale and Sumter Counties have been declared disaster areas and are being designated as eligible for emergency loans through the Farmers Home Administration This designation was based on the heavy damage to crops which was caused by excessive rainfall last September and the recent cold weather. The other four counties of the Sixth District were placed on the disaster loan list last November.

These emergency loans can be applied for at the local offices of the Farmers Home Administratiin.

FIRE DESTROYS MAIL

A fire which occurred near Gainsville, Ga., in a railway postal car on February 18th either destroyed or damaged a large amount of United States Mail, including a number of letters originating in Alabama. According to a report received from the Post Office Department, many pieces of mail were damaged beyond recognition.

Since I have received several badly burned letters from this shipment, there is no reason to believe that other mail addressed to my office was completely destroyed Therefore, if any of you wrote me around February 17th and to date have failed to receive areply, please let me know.

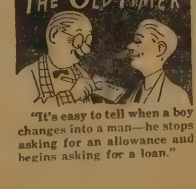
High Praise for Chilton Countian

WE learned first hand this week that Chilton County has two advocates that we think merit mention. To say "Chilton County" is a little misleading in that the praise in mention was directed, not at the County, but at it's leading law enforcement officer, Sheriff Hugh Champion. We feel justified in claiming the Sheriff as "part of Chilton County.

HEAPING this unprecendented praise on our Sheriff were two Birmingham residents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Worley of 100 Devon Drive, B'ham, Ala. They are relatives of the late Charles Barrett who drowned in the Coosa River near Inman's Camp. Their praise was for the manner in which the Sheriff directed operations and his thoughtfulness in carrying out his duty as well as his understanding "beyond the call."

WE were impressel by the strong feeling of gratitude and the humble way in which the Worley's expressed their feelings. We were extremely proud that one of our officials should conduct himself in such a way as to merit this honor and esteem.

ONE thing we know...if Mr. Hugh Champion ever needs a friend ...or we should say two friends, he need look no further than Mr and Mrs. Charles Worley, for they were certainly won over by his warm friendliness and complete devotion to duty and to his fellow man.



"It's easy to tell when a boy changes into a man—he stops asking for an allowance and begins asking for a loan."

Marbury FFA News Shop Improvement

THE Marbury FFA has been very busy this past week. We have been working in the shop, planning means in which we might improve the appearance of our shop, such as painting the shop.

Our knowledge of electricity was increased last week when we had Mr. J. L. Kendrick from the Alabama Power Company with us. His lecture was very interesting and we hope to have him again in the near future.

Mr. John Harper of Prattville was with us Friday for the Chapter Tractor and judging contest. We will also have the County Tractor and Land judging contest here at Marbury.

WE have six boys who have signed up for the Pfister corn seed and will be entering the corn growing contest. We wish them much success.

Humor, Adv., Pace Rare, Frontier Drama of "OLD YELLER"

HUMOR and adventure are lively ingredients of Walt Disney's action-packed adventure drama "Old Yeller," his appealing story of early American frontier life co-starring Dorothy McGuire and Fess Parker.

Rollicking moments are provided by seven-year-old Kevin Corcoran, a mischievous mite who persists in using the family water supply for a bathtub. His sidekick is Spike 115-pound roughneck dog who varies heroics with clownish canine capers.

Versatile, veteran actor Jeff York adds comedy touches as a paunchy ne'er - do - well farmer with a reluctance to work whenever there is a child around to do it for him.

The adventures that dominate Disney's "Old Yeller" are shared by fifteen-year-old Tommy Kirk who portrays Travis Coates and Disney's canine discovery, Spike Young Travis' transition to adulthood begins the day that he adopts the big stray range dog, Old Yeller. After sharing fun and danger together, Travis finally must decide the fate of the dog who saved his life. On this dramatic situation the climax of "Old Yeller" develops

"Old Yeller" has a warmly human quality embodied in the theme about a Texas frontier family of the 1860's protected from danger by a loyal dog.

FFA'ERS LOOK TO CORN FOR SUMM'R MONEY CROP

MANY members of the Jemison Chapter of the FFA are planning on corn for their projects this summer. Last year Alabama's average corn yield was 26 bushels per acre. The members are planning on a higher yield on their farms by planting hybrid seed corn and getting a uniform, full stand The F. F. A. boys believe that using certified seed corn is somewhat like taking medicine from an unlabeled bottle: it might be alright or it could be all wrong. Certified hybrids insure the buyer of getting genuine hybrid seed with full hybrid vigor. Corn is still the most dependable grain crop for farms in this area. — Raymond Milyer, FFA Reporter, Jemison Alabama.

ORIGIN of The BIBLE

Papyrus Manuscripts of The Greek Scriptures

THERE are at least 12,000 know manuscript copies of the Greek Scriptures extant or existent today. About 4,000 of these are in the original Greek language of the so-called "New Testament." There are some 8,000 Latin-version manuscripts and about 1,000 manuscripts of versions in languages other than Latin and Greek. These manuscripts are catalogued and recognized by an international code of symbols. Our interest at this time centers on the Greek-language manuscripts, and particularly does it narrow down to those manuscripts recorded on papyrus.

THE first manuscripts of the Greek Scriptures were written upon papyrus, a material made into sheets and rolls from an Egyptian water plant of that name. Such papyrus material dates from about 300 years before Christ. It continued to be used for the writing of manuscripts of the Holy Bible until about the year 300 after Christ. The Bible writers, then sending their letters to the Christian congregations, used papyrus. Early in the fourth century after Christ a more durable substance began to be used for manuscripts, called vellum, a fine grade of calf-skin.

GREAT quantities of papyrus writings were found in the province of Fayum, in Egypt. The first papyri were found in the year 1778. The oldest is the papyrus Prisse, of centuries before Christ. In 1891 there was a great acquisition of papyri by a Britisher, at Egypt's Fayum, and in the same year Dr. F. G. Kenyon, of the British Museum, published an enlightening book, Classical Texts from the Papyri Sount of the Fayum are other sites of discovery, such as Oxrhynchus. The Greek names of such sites show there was a great settlement of Greek in Egypt; and there were Greek Christians there having copies of the Greek Scriptures.

THE most important manuscript found since Tischendorf's discovery of the vellum Sinaitic MS., in 1859, was made public in 1931. It consisted of papyrus portions of eleven codices, containing in Greek some parts of nine "Old Testament" and fifteen "New Testament" books. These papyri range in date of production from the second to the fourth century afer Chris.

THE oldest in time of these manuscripts is the Beatty-Mich. Numbers portion, dating from the second century. The apostle John died about the year 100; and the Revelation and John's Gospel and his three epistles were written in the decade before 100. We have, therefore, Bible papyri of the Greek Scriptures going back practically to he aposles themselves. The designation for Scriptures papyri is the capital letter "P" followed by a small superior number. Following is a table of outstanding ancient Bible papyri.

P46	Chester Beatty 2	3rd	London; Ann Arbor	10 of Paul's Epistles
P47	Chester Beatty 3	3rd	London	Rev. 9-17

THE most famous of the papyrus Scripture manuscripts is P46, called "Chester Beatty Papyrus No. 2." It is of the early third century. It consists of 86 leaves out of a codex of 104 leaves, and contains ten of the Pauline epistles. Mark you, this is a codex, which means, not a mere MS. roll, but a book having leaves like books today, and lids and page numbers. This codex, one of the earliest known to be extant, shows the Christians were well to the front in introducing this style of manuscript. Its ten Pauline epistles are in this order: Romans, Hebrews, 1 Corinthians, 2 Corinthians, Ephesians, Galations, Philippians, Colossians, 1 Thessalonians and 2 Thessalonians. Two points of interest stand out; First, the book of Hebrews is included in this early codex of the epistles of Paul. The book of Hebrews is a nameless book, and its authorship is therefore disputed and generally denied to Paul. Nevertheless, the fact that it appears in this codex shows that in the third century it was generally accepted by Christians as an inspired epistle of the apostle Paul. Second, the epistle to the Ephesians appears in this codex of Paul's letters. This refutes the claim of modernist religionists that the epistle we not written by Paul but by a Christian after Paul's day.

P47, or "Chester Beatty Papyrus No. 3", is probably of the second half of the third century. It includes ten leaves out of a possible total of thirty-two leaves of the book of Revelation. It contains parts of Revelation from 9:10 to 17:12. This papyrus on the book of Revelation is very useful due to the small number of very early manuscripts that contain the Apocalypse, among which manuscripts are Sinaiticus and Alexandrine, but not Vatican No. 1209.

BESIDES the papyri listed in the table there is in the Rylands library of Manchester, England, a very small fragment of a codex of John's Gospel, known as the "Fourth Gospel". This was written in the first half of the second century, or somewhere within fifty years of the death of the apostle John. This is important, because is supports the truth that this "Fourth Gospel" was produced, not, as modern critics have contended, in 132 or 150, after John's death, but in the first century, and then by John himself. Only on that basis could many copies of the original have been made in the first half of the second century and been so widely circulated from Asia Minor as to reach all the way down into Egypt, wheer this fragment was found.

AFTER all these details, to what conclusion do we come? "So what?" as some modernists would say. Why is it of so importance today? These new discoveries supply proof of the compilation of the Bible at a very early time. A codex among the hester Beatty papyri binding together the four Gospels and Acts, and another one bringing within the lids of one codex the Pauline epistles, show that the compiling of the Christian Scriptures took place shortly after the death of the apostles, that the second century saw the compiling of all the Christian Scriptures and the closing o fthe canon of the whole Bible. Since these codices had circulated widely and found their way down into Egypt by the early part of the third century at the latest, then the compilation of the Greek Scriptures must have been accomplished during the second century. Also, the "Fourth Gospel" having been written by John during the first century, the completing of he Bible canon did not even have to wait until the modernistic date of A. D. 150.

THESE ancient papyrus manuscripts put us almost next to the original writings themselves. They vouch for the authenticity of our present-day Bible versions by assuring us of the purity of the text. Note the conclusion such an outstanding scholar as Sir Frederic G. Kenyon, of England, makes for himself in this regard. He says:

"THE interval then between he dates of original composition and the earliest extant evidence becomes so small as to be in fact negligible, and the last foundation for any doubt that the Scriptures have come down to us substantially as they were written has now been removed. Both the authenticity and the general integrity of the Books of the New Testament may be regarded as finally established. General integrity, however, is one thing, and certainty as to details is another; . . ."- -The Bible and Archaeology (published 1940), pp. 288, 289.

AS to this last observation about certainty of details the problems due to the many minor differences of text are something for the textual critic to work out, rather than for us to take time to solve How these minor differences crept into the thousands of manuscript copies, though, will be of interest to us and will disclose the development of "recensions" or "families" among Bible manuscripts. This matter, along with the outstanding vellum manuscripts, will occupy our attention in the next article.

Letter to S. S. Beneficiaries

MOST social security beneficiaries who earned over $1200 in 1957 mustfile an earnings report with the Social Security Administration by April 15, 1958, according to J. W. Overstreet, Jr., district Manager of the Birmingham Social Security Office. "To be exact," said Overstreet, "all beneficiaries who were under age 72 for one or more months in 1957 and had earnings of over $1200 must file this report."

EARNINGS to be reported, according to Overstreet, include all amounts received as an employee and any net earnings received from self-employment. It does not matter whether the income was covered under the Social Security Act. All earnings, regardless of the source, must be reported. Income from investments, savings, insurance, savings, insurance, or pensions does not affect old-age or survivors payments and should not be counted in with earnings. These amounts are not earned from employment or self-employment.

"THIS REPORT", said Overstreet, "is necessary in order that the Social Security Administration may determine not only whether a beneficiary has been overpaid, but also whether a beneficiaryhas been underpaid for the year."

FOR more detailed information, Overstreet suggests you contact the Social Security District Office at 1710 First Avenue, North, Birmingham, Alabama.

OCEAN TO OCEAN ACROSS SOUTH AMERICA—AND BACK—IN 41 HOURS!

CHEVY'S NEW V8 LEVELS THE HIGHEST, HARDEST HIGHWAY OVER THE ANDES!

To prove the durability of Chevrolet's radical new Turbo-Thrust V8,* the tremendous flexibility of the new Turboglide transmission,* the incredible smoothness of Full Coil suspension, we tackled the most challenging transcontinental road in the world — the 1,000-mile General San Martin Highway. To make it harder, the Automobile Club of Argentina sealed the hood shut at Buenos Aires — no chance to add oil or water or adjust carburetors for high altitude.

So the run began — across blazing Argentine pampas, into the ramparts of the forbidding Andes. Up and up the road climbed, almost 2½ miles in the sky! Drivers gasped for oxygen at 12,572 feet — but the Turbo-Thrust V8 never slackened its torrent of power, the Full Coil springs smothered every bump, the Turboglide transmission made play of grades up to 30 percent. Then a plunge to the Pacific at Valparaiso, Chile, a quick turn-around and back again. Time for the round trip: 41 hours 14 minutes — and the engine was never turned off!

The sure-footed Chevrolet purrs past a road sign that says "danger"—and ahead lies the toughest part of the perilous Andean climb!

MOVIES TAKE OVER TV FOR "OSCAR NIGHT"

NEXT Wednesday night at 9:30 o'clock, some 75,000,000 movie fans—including the many in this city — will join with the motion picture industry in celebrating "Oscar Night." The Academy Awards telecast, over the NBC network (Station WABT Channel 13) is an annual event, but this year the presentation of the "Oscars" will have several unique features.

For the first time, the ninety solely by the motion picture industminute telecast will be sponsored ry. Without a commercial pons, removing the necessity for "commercials" and restrictions on star appearances, the telecast of next Wednesday night promises to over shadow any previous "Oscar" show George Seaton, president of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences, will have the cooperation of all Hollywood in the effort to make the movie industry's own show eclipse anything similar that TV has accomplished

Another unique feature of the 1958 Oscar Awards will probably make history in business annals It's a sort of "man-bites-dog" story For this one night, he feud between the parlor screen and the bigger theatre screen will be forgotten. For weeks, thousands of movie theatres throughout the country have joined in a promotion campaign to coax moviegoers to tune in on the Academy Awards telecast. The theatres, apparently, feel that "Oscar" can be become the best press agent in the business.

Dog Tired from Spring Cleaning?

You don't have to feel dog tired and achy and stiff as a bronc buster at the end of a Spring cleaning session . . . not if you have the proper equipment. The right tools not only cut down on the time required per job but the scrubbing involved and those energy-burning reaches. For example, saw off the handle of a mop mid-way and use it for kitchen cabinet cleaning. You can get at the innermost depths of the high and low variety without resorting to back-breaking stretches.

Right To Work Law, and Patterson

Jemison, Ala., March 23, 1958
To the Editor, Chilton County News

WANTED, One Texas saddle and a pair of long roweled Mexican ype spurs, suitable for riding the ence between the "RIGHT TO WORK LAW - Versus-ORGANIZED LABOR. Must be in tip-top hape and able of terrific riding train and worthy of presentment to Mr. John Patterson, Attorney General of Alabama. . .

MR. Pattersons statement that such a vital question of the so-called Right to Work is a "policy question" and should be left up to the legislature seems to be an open acknowledgement that he is in favor of that law or that he s afraid to state that he is against it. Now, why should he be afraid to assert himself? Does he feel that he must go along with the sponsors of the right to work Law? Does he know the ultra motives of the slave driving sponsors of this law? Does he realize that the very existance of the working people of the State of Alabama, the farmers and small business men are imperiled by this law and what it will eventually lead to? Does he dispute that the labor unions of this State and Country are the exact and only cause of a nominal wage for the workers, a nominal price for farm products, a reasonable profit for small business as well as job security, disability and old age pensions? If Mr. Patterson says and means what he says that he will leave it up to the legislature, just what can the people of Alabama expect from him on other vital problems or important issues? If the Legislature is going to have a free hand, assured of the approval of The Governor, then, Why do we need a Governor? Any old rubber tamper would be as effective as Governor.

MR. Pattersons statement that a cessation of corruption, graft and favoritism would net 70 million dollars annually to pay a maximum pension of 75 dollars a month to the aged is so far fetched and visionary as to be unworthy of consideration as a possibility.

NOW, if this practice has existed as depicted by him and with his knowledge of the same, just why has he failed to bring about a Grand Jury investigation and failed to progress legally and with the power of his office, a prosecution of the perpetrators of this hideous offense! Isn't that the duty of the Attorney General?

THEN, Is the Gospel Daniel, 6th Chapter verses 25 thru 28 applicable to him.

WHAT Alabama needs as Governor is a bold, honest, honorable and fearless leader Willing and ready to face up to any question or condition and give wholeheartedly to his convictions. Not a "YES MAN" or a rubber stamper or a "let George do it" politician. .

ATTENTION: SELF-EMPLOYED PERSONS

Most self-employed persons now have social security coverage and pay the self-employment tax along with their Federal income tax when they file their return, which must be filed by April 15, 1958, according to J W. Overstreet, Jr., manager of the Birmingham Social Security district office.

Medical doctors are about the only self-employed group that is not covered by social security It is very necessary that the returns be accurate and complete so that benefits based on the self-employment income may be paid without loss of time or money.

The self - employment tax must be paid if an individual has net earnings from self-employment of $400 or more in a year The rate of the self-employment tax is 7 3/8 per cent of net earnings up to $4200 a year In figuring the net earnings it is necessary that all business operating expenses be deducted from the gross income According to Mr Overstreet one of the most common errors made is the omitting of the depreciation on equipment as an operating expense

Also important in figuring the correct amount on which to pay the self-employment tax is to be sure to include income received only from the operation of a trade, business or profession While income from other sources must be reported for income tax purposes, it should not be included in the income for figuring net earnings for social security credit.

The amount of old-age, survivors, or disability insurance benefits which may become payable to a self-employed person or his family are based on the net earnings reported and credited to the worker's social security account. In order to insure proper credit, the self-employed person's social security number must be correctly shown on the Schedule SE portion of his tax return. If the social security number has been lost, or if an individual has never before had a social security number, an application for one should be made immediately to the nearest district office of the Social Security Administration. .

Further information on self employment tax filing may be obtained by contacting the social security district office, or the nearest office of the Internal Revenue Service. Free informational booklets are available upon request.

Spring Training Taking Spotlight

BY LARRY MINOR

Coach F. U. "Bull" Spicer's Chilton County Tigers of Clanton sported their best season in many years in 1957 when they won nine games and lost only one. However, graduation took eight of the starters, including the entire line that held its opponents scoreless in seven contests.

Despite these losses, spring practice has brought some smiles to the face o. Coach Spicer. Among the more pleasant surprises have been the development of the tackles. Spicer expects great things from Tommy Elwards, a six foot, 200 pounder and Toby Mayfield. Backing these two will be 235 pound Don Partridge, 240 pound Edwin Ward and Wayne Gwatheney.

Back at center will be Don Norten, a demon on defense last year. He will be supported by Elliot Monroe, a sophomore. A hot battle is being waged for the guard spots between Don Jones Jimmy Dennis, John Argo, and Husky Jackson.. The ends seem to be the weakest positions, but Coach Spicer hopes Buddy Vines, David Cobb, Ralph Davis, and Billy Miller can handle the position.

Brighest spot for the '58 hopefuls is the star-studded backfield. This is practically tre same group that galloped so many points during the '57 campaign. Heading the list are the touchdown twins, Neil Bice and James Knight. Between them they rushed over 3,000 yards scored 28 touchdowns, and 185 points. Bice, a leading all-state candidate, is a ten second speedster who specializes in bursting into secondary and outrunning his opponents. Knight is a "Lorino" type runner who runs all over the field; he is also the passer for Coach.

Spicer's single-wing outfit Kenneth Ray returns for another fine year as a blocking back. Larry Culpepper will probably handle the fullback chores. Behind these first stringers will be strong support in the forms of Osborn Mims, a sawed-off scatback, Junior Baker, Ross Smitherman, and Larry Robinson.

Though they shouldn't be as strong as last year's eleven, the Tigers expect to cause their opponents a lot of misery again in 1958.

800 CARLOTS EXPECTED TO GO COMMERCIALLY

This week in interviewing Chilton County's top authorities on crops it was disclosed that the 1958 peach crop will greatly surpass any year in the history of peach growing in this Peach and Berry Center of Alabama and the World.

Estimated production from all varieties was noted to be 857,000 bushels. This is on a projected estimate of Chilton And Blount Counties combined. It is necessary to point out however that Chilton County has 782,700 producing trees while Blount has 120,000 trees.

[illegible] has been no [illegible] the freeze damage was the first time [illegible] approximately 100 less [illegible] the County than a ten [illegible] but the number of trees has greatly increased. This important factor is supported by statistics, which show that where the average orchard consisted of 700 trees (or 7 acres) in 1951 it now consists of 2000 trees (or 20 acres). In other words, due to [illegible] channeling through Peach Sheds and commercial sales [illegible] production is becoming [illegible] more mechanized, thus larger orchards and fewer of them.

The Elberta is still king in this area with an expected output this year of 175,000 bushels (Blount included) as compared to the next highest producer Dixie Red with 100,00 bushels.

First into production this season will be the Hilands which should go onto the market in mid-June or around the 16th. This expected date bares out the fact that all varieties are coming in slow this season which indicates a prolonged [illegible] (Elberta should have been [illegible] bloom March 2-11.)

Hiland production is expected to SUCCESS usually comes to people who count every cent, and make every cent count.

FAITH and the ability to do the little things of life makes bigger deeds possible.

THE things we learn from experience comes under the head of compulsory education.

IT seems only human for people to be interested in business that is none of their business.

WORLD progress is achieved by people who do things that others have declaired impossible.

DON'T argue with the man who talks loud -- you couldn't convince him in a million years.

GROWING WARMER --

IT'S not just the weather that is growing warmer these early spring days. Politics are gradually warming up also.

WITH but six weeks to go before the "fine people" go to the polls to cast their vote for their favorite, the races for various offices, both State and county, begin to generate a little heat.

WITHIN the weeks tocome it will probably get pretty "hot" but we hope the candidates will refrain from starting rumors or using malicious material to discredit their oponent. After all, it only hurts the one who starts the name calling and more often than not boomerangs.

HERE'S to keeping our political races clean and all candidates making their race on their merits and not their oponents demerits.

NEW MISSILE AGE-

SATURDAY night a thundering explosion was heard in the Glendale section of Clanton. It is reported that some boys were sending up a rocket.

THUS, we have with us the missle age, and again the parents of small boys are confronted with a serious question of whether to encourage or discourage.

THE United States Government, to maintain it's standing among world powers needs trained scientist. If the younger generation is discouraged and prohibited from experimenting where will the much needed scientist come from. If encouraged some little boys could get badly hurt or killed.

A problem? Yes, But one that must be faced and as parents you should give much study to the problem before criticizing or commending.

A BILLION AT LEAST --

IN riding over Chilton County Sunday afternoon we saw at least a billion peach blooms. Many of the orchards were solid beds of soft pink. The heavy freeze in years past may have taken it's toll but you can't tell is from the looks of the country side at this time of year.

THE Chilton County peach grower is a stubborn fellow and doesn't say die easily. Proof of that statement can be seen from most every hill in any community in the county.

WHAT IS A FARMER?

(Reprinted from February 1953 "BETTER CROPS WITH PLANT FOOD")

Well, that depends entirely on where you stand:

To his wife, he's a big eater, a heavy sleeper and a worry.

To his minister, he's a believer in God in nature, and nature in God.

To a politician, he's a someone you talk about during elections.

To his neighbors, he's a friend.

To his children, he's a man who always has a chore for them.

To his dog, he's a man with a quiet voice.

To the grocer, he's a God-send.

To the dairy operator, he's a name on a milk check.

To the insurance agent, he's a big risk.

To the mechanic, he's a mechanical wizard who fixes things himself.

To the doctor, he's a physical wonder.

And to himself, well, only he can tell you that — but chances are, he won't.

IT'S OUR OPINION OF

THINGS We see and hear

by "TUCK"

ONE of the best things to make a man better, it seems, is a better man.

IT would be interesting to know if there was an invasion of privacy involved in last week's "Rocket to The Moon" escapade out Glendale way. Reason we were wondering is that since our property is adjacent to the "launching site" we have an opportunity to survey the premises whenever we wish. Well, there has been a stray cat (or bachelor or something) living in that field for several weeks. His one pastime is chasing birds (for nourishment) and being chased by neighborhood dogs (for the heck of it) and (get this now) we happen to know that his dwelling place is UNDER the cement foundation from which the local "Vanguard" was launched. Boy, if he was home that night, he probably felt like the dog that the Russians sent up in Sputnik No. 1. And judging from the size of the explosion he's still nursing one heck of a headache. 'Bout the only birds he'll be hearing for the next several days will be the ones twirping around in his head.

WE think there is a necessity for more public appraisal of your local police force. We are of the opinion that we have a comparatively fine police force considering the size of our City. We also know for a fact that the police force takes a very dim view of public feeling of their efforts. In other words, they feel the public does not appreciate them and the job they do. It is necessary, we feel, to admit for the public, that this is true. The first thing to everybody's mind in case of an emergency is "where are the police". And if they don't show promptly to take things in hand they are, to say the least, chastized verbally. Now, the police force is yours. It is to serve you and to protect your interests. Too many of us are ignorant to these few facts and tend to accept the police as a "necessary evil". We feel that a man who works 12 hours a day six days a week serving the public's every whim deserves some recognition other than a severe tongue lashing occasionally. It's high time we came to realize the important role which the police force plays, in the community and accepting them as part of our lives. Also, there is a decided need for some form of incentive for the members of the force to better themselves. The force itself owes to the community a great deal and not in the least, to uphold the position which they are responsible for. Dignity in a police officer is a prime necessity and most of our force has the makings -- mostly all they need is the moral suport of the community This my friend, is your department. Pat 'em on the back occasionally and tell them what a good job they are doing for you and your neighbors, at least trying to do.

Hi there!

My name is Ben. I'm one of thousands of boys and girls you have helped by contributing to Easter Seals.

In saying "thanks" for all of us, may I ask you to give generously again this year? Many of us still need the help that Easter Seals make possible. And only through your gifts can we look to a future that will let us walk, run and play like other kids.

We're counting on you. Thanks again.

YOUR Health

Treatment of Varicose Veins

After 2,500 years, there is a surgical procedure in the treatment of varicose veins, said to be without serious complications and to offer excellent immediate results Known as the stripping operation, the large veins near the surface are completely removed, with eradication of all the enlarged and tortuous veins characteristic of varicosity in the legs.

Excellent cosmetic results are reported and there is no prolonged after - operation treatment, the circulation is improved, and the chance of recurrence is lessened. Hippocrates, more than 2,000 years ago, treated varicose veins surgically by direct puncture of the enlarged veins. Celsus, Roman physician, first century A. D., practiced burning or cutting out the varicose veins. Galen, famous Greek physician of the second century, advised tearing out the varicose veins with a hook.

Ambrose Pare, French surgeon of the sixteenth century, advocated use of a ligature at the knee in order to form an artifical valve at this level.

The invention of the syringe in 1845 introduced a new concept of treatment, which was the injection of hardening solutions into the varicose vein. The first stripping operation was performed in this country 50 years ago, however, there were complications and stripping was not popular at first. With the advance made in surgery, anesthesia, and control of infections, stripping has become a successful and satisfactory operation. Patients given the stripping operation for varicose veins are permitted to walk as soon as they recover from the anesthetic and usually are dismissed from the hospital the day following the operation.

In a Pennsylvania hospital, 20% patients have undergone the stripping operation for varicose veins without a serious complication and with excellent immediate results. The stripping operation for varicose veins is rapidly becoming the operation of choice.

ACROSS THE ED'S DESK

THE MAN FOR THE JOB

Please sir, allow me space in your paper for a truly worthy cause. We would like a few words with all the voters and civic minded people of Chilton County. We have a clean-cut, self-made gentleman in the race for Probate Judge, who is, we are proud to say, a true neighbor of ours, Mr. Lewis W. (Pig) Headley. We are indeed proud to have had so worthy one for a neighbor these several years and have watched with appraising interest his busy sure and steady progress from a pedaling newspaper boy to a prosperous, most likeable worthy citizen. A more honest, attentive, hard working, business man has never been in our midst and we would like for those interested in our County affairs, who doesn't know "Pig" to come out and feel free to ask us anything they wish about him. Surely we couldn't fine a better man to serve us as Probate Judge. He has been successful for himself knows through experience, the true value of money in all denominations from a penny up, is keen and efficient business man, and would successfully care for the office he seeks equally as well as he has succeeded with his own business. No one but a God-fearing, hard working honest man like "Pig" Headley could build a lasting friendship with so many in so short a time. Lets kill the old adage that politics will ruin a good man. We can do this by putting in a man who is a gentleman to begin with. We have that man in Lewis "Pig" Headley.

Let's go forward with the man who knows nothing but actions that mean success. — Thanks, the W. T Word Family, West End, Clanton. (Pd. Pol. Adv. by Vincent Ward, Clanton, Alabama.)

The Challenge For All Americans

BY DR. HOWARD BEVIS
Chairman, The President's Committee on Scientists and Engineers

The Nation's interest is focused on the first U. S. space satellite — the Explorer — or more properly, 1958 Alpha.

The Nation draws renewed confidence and satisfaction from the continuing good news on our first satellite, soaring around mother earth in an orbit that may keep it aloft for years. Source of priceless information on temperatures, cosmic rays, meteorites and other data from ouster space, it is the forerunner of other and greater achievements.

But the scientific challenge to America did not begin with Sputnik I — and it will not end with 1958 Alpha. Vastly more important are America's human resources for meeting the future in science, and the beneficent use made of those resources.

America's human resources have always been the foundation of this country's strength. They are resources of mind and of spirit. Human resources gave a new political system to the world, shaped a new land from the wilderness, and throughout our history have been devoted to the cause of peace.

The premium which the future will place on brainpower — on intellectual capacity and training — will bring subtle social changes in its wake. We can predict that the scientific revolution will require more drastic and more rapid adjustments than we have ever before been called on to make.

In 1955, William Benton, former Connecticut Senator and former Assistant Secretary of State, made an extended trip across Russia. He visited Russia's schools and technical centers. He interviewed Soviet educators, most of whom had never talked with an American before. He inspected the universities and toured the libraries of Russia.

William Benton saw the training being given Russian youth in science and mathematics — the tough courses so often avoided by American teen-agers. He observed the zeal of the Russian teacher and the enthusiasm of the Russian student. He noted the respect for the scientist and the preferred status of the technologist.

Mr. Benton foresaw the effect of this intensive Russian education in science. He returned to America to warn that Russian education, deliberately geared to produce great numbers of scientists and engineers, soon would challenge if not surpass the traditional leadership of the United States.

We will consider the challenge — and the promise — of the scientific revolution itself. We have a legitimate and necessary concern with the impact of Russia's scientific advances on the balance of world political power. But we will grossly misinterpret the demands of the age if we raise our sights no higher than to match or surpass Soviet Russia.

We must examine the new demands upon our educational system, and the economic implications of an adequate science program. And we must study the need for public understanding of the scientist — and in turn, the scientists need to understand and to communicate with the public.

A final note of warning: We must not be simply listeners and observers. We must all be participants. We have a responsibility — each of us — to contribute ideas, suggestions and proposals which can lead to action.

I know that we will move forward energetically to meet that responsibility.

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Earlier this year your congressman joined with other members of the Alabama Congressional Delegation in introucing legislation designed to prevent proposed cotton acreage reductions for the 1959 crop year. Last week the House of Representatives followed the example set a week earlier by the Senate and passed a measure that embodies most of our proposals. If signed by the President, this legislation will retain for the cotton farmers of our state during 1959 at least 171,000 acres that otherwise would be lost.

In addition to preventing further acreage reductions, the measure approved by both the House and Senate freezes price supports on all basic farm commodities (except tobacco) for a period of one year. It is estimated that the bill's provisions will prevent the Secretary of Agriculture from cutting farmer's incomes this year by an additional $500 million.

Final pasage of the measure came on a roll call vote of 219 to 172. Voting for the bill were 166 Democrats and 44 Republicans, and against it were 141 Republicans and 31 Democrats. Administration spokesmen have stated that President Eisenhower plans to veto any legislation that freezes price supports. Should the President do so, an attempt may be made to override his veto.

HOUSING BILL

In an effort to bolster the nation's sagging economy, the House passed and sent to the President last week a $1.8 billion housing bill. Overwhelmingly approved several days earlier by the Senate, the measure will make possible the construction of an additional 200,000 houses this year and create an estimated half million new jobs.

Under the terms of the new housing measure, minimum down payment under the FHA home-buyers program will be lowered from the current 3% on the first $10,000 to 3% on the first $13,000 of the mortgage. The bill extends for two years the veterans housing program scheduled to expire on July 25 and, in an effort to attract more private money into GI mortgages, increases interest rates on veterans' loans to 4 and three-fourths percent. The measure also continues and expands the direct loan program for veterans who live in rural areas.

SPEED-UP URGED

In addition to the housing bill, Congress last week passed two "sense-of-Congress" resolutions urging the President to accelerate construction of civil and military public works projects for which Congres already has provided funds. The civilian public works resolution, approved by a vote of 378 to 16, invited a speed-up on approximately $4 billion in projects. The other resolution, also passed by an overwhelming vote, asked that more than $2.2 billion in military projects be accelerated.

IT'S MY OPINION

Ingenuity -- It's Ingredients

THE Vanguard Rocket is obsolete as of Saturday night, March 22 at between 8:00 and 8:30. Like as not the date will go down in history as just March 22, but to the lives of three young adventurers the date will be justifiably remembered.

ON this particular date these Glendale residents chose as their launching site for their "own" type of Sputnik the vacant lot formerly occupied by the CCC Camp.

THE ingenuity shown by these minds of the future is, to say the least commendable, but it is with something less than hesitation that we recommend that they understand their ingenuity before subjecting others to possible injury of one nature or another.

THE very first ingredient of ingenuity is common sense -- some folks call it "horse sense", some call it planning. Either way, ingenuity is not the same without direction. The boys in explaining what they did showed a remarkable amount of caution at launching their "satellite" but they failed to reason out the possibilities of something going wrong, not to mention the fact that they roused considerable more of the population than they had intended.

IF you're thinking it was a sky rocket or something in the "harmless" class you're wrong. The city police, touring south of town saw the bright light and though it was lightning. Practically every one in the neighborhood came out to see what had happened.

THE boys had a very ingenius outfit rigged up and we must confess, what they did was entirely Greek to us.

Which brings us to the point; we are not out to quell the ambitious nature of the youngsters who would put their minds to creative and scientific discovery. However, we think they, and certainly their parents will agree that in the future they should consult with an authority on such things or at least confine their "testing" to more isolated areas. True, their "success" proved harmless in the end, but another such exhibition could prove fatal to someone.

WE congratulate them on their obvious brilliance and ingenuity, but we recommend that in the future they confine their scientific progress and failure to learning the fundamentals of the real thing and preparing themselves for future service to their community and mankind.

ONE good thing did come from it all -- the assurance that with ideas and results coming from teenage boys such as this, we certainly should have renewed confidence in the future of the United States of America. If we're gonna get blown up. . .we'll do it ourselves!

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

HOW TO HEAL TENSION IN YOUR HOME

A young fellow was having a lot of trouble with his mother-in-law. Each afternoon when he came home from work, she was always in a peevish mood. She was constantly nagging, angry, complaining and accusing him unfairly.

At first he took it meekly. But then he couldn't bear it in silence any longer. He began to reflect her mood like a mirror. If she complained that she and her daughter had too much work to do, he griped right back about how hard he worked in the office. When she accused him of not making enough money, he would quickly inform her that he made more than the average person, but that she and her daughter would have broken the Henry Ford family.

In fact, every time she yelled, he yelled. His wife who was caught in the middle yelled first at one and then at the other. The children joined in and just yelled.

The home became so tense and edgy that divorce seemed to be the only solution.

Finally, he decided he must have help. He went to his pastor and discussed the situation with him.

Between them they discussed who was setting the tempo and emotional mood in the household. They both agreed that it was the mother-in-law.

And then the pastor told him this: "You are simply reflecting whatever mood your mother-in-law establishes. There is only one way to insure peace and harmony at your home. You must be the one who will take control of the situation. And there is only one real way to make the environment of your home what you want it to be. You must do this: When you answer your mother-in-law, you must insist by the way you answer her, that this is how you wish your home to be. For instance, you want it to be courteous. Well, you be courteous. So half of your environment changes instantly."

The young man asked, "How do I start?"

The pastor said, "The next time she complains, tell her you are sorry or make a courteous answer."

And so the young man went home determined to try this. The first time he said, "I am sorry," he robbed his mother-in-law of speech. How could she argue with someone who would not argue with her? For if a person is determined to be courteous, he will be and others cannot help being affected.

Eventually in this home, the pattern was established as the young man wanted it to be. And this became his resolution: "Whatever happens, I am determined by my own conduct to affect that situation so that the outcome shall be exactly what I wish it to be."

This will work for anyone. The Bible declares that "a soft answer turneth away wrath" (Proverbs 15:1).

And many of the heartaches and tensions that exist in homes across America could be healed if more people would adopt this philosophy.

THORSBY TEL. CO. GETS $232,000

According to Robinson, the expansion program will begin just as soon as the formalities of the transaction are taken care of.

The Founder-President is a longtime resident of the Chilton County area, having finished high school at Jemison High in 1936. He and a group of associates purchased the exchange from a private owner in 1945 when telephone service consisted of some 44 hand-cranked instruments that were far from being the dependable method of communication that they are today. You'll never know' Robinson says, "how happy that telegram made me today. We applied for the loan about a year and a half ago when our engineering studies revealed that expanded service was certainly needed by the people in this area and that offering this service should be a pretty sound business proposition. My associates and I, are extremely happy that at long last we are able to give these wonderful people a superior service that they've deserved so long."

Robinson singled-out three employees for special praise saying. . Naturally so many people are responsible for our rapid growth that it would be impossible to name them all. but Frank Porter, Leo Cofer and Mary Cofer certainly deserve a pat on the back. Frank is a local boy and has really come-up- the ladder, learning the telephone business by doing. He is fully capable of handling all operations. Leo and Mary Cofer, our man and wife team, are certainly to be congratulated for a job well done. Leo is qualified in all phases of the business and will soon assume the duties and responsibilities of Business Manager while his wife Mary will handle customer relations. I'm really proud of these three people.

Notices had been mailed to subscribers last week informing them that the loand had been applied for and that a grant was expected. Although the loan was granted by the REA, state legislation to ratify the State-Federal agreement had been authored and passed by "Snag" Andrews and George Wallace several years ago.

Officials of Thorsby, Jemison, and Calera, expressed pleasure over the coming improvements in telephone service and hailed the move as another indication of the economic stability of the peach-belt.

In concluding his announcement, Robinson said. . "It's really a joy to know that the new customers we will be serving in the near future will soon be able to pick-up the phone and be in instant contact with their family Doctor, law enforcement officials or relatives anywhere in the nation. The new telephones bring new joy and peace of mind to many."

PEACH CROP TO TOP ALL PAST YIELDS

be around 24,000 bushels this year.

Clanton, which is centrally located in the peach producing soil of Chilton County lies in Beat 4. Beat 4 produces nearly twice as many peaches as the next largest beat in the county. There are 220,722 producing trees in Beat 4. Next largest producer by Beats is Beat 15 in the southwest corner of the County around Billingsley and the Enterprise Community. Combined, these two beats have a total of 358,716 prdoucing trees of the 782,760 in the County.

It costs approximately $237.62 to produce 560 bushels of peaches. This estimate is on mature or 7-year old trees.

As for the peach picture in general for Chilton County ". . it looks mighty good" says grower J. E. Williams of the Cedar Grove Community. Mr. Williams says his 1300 trees are in excellent shape and he is most enthusiastic and optimistic about this year's crop.

He says his Elberta's will be in full bloom in a week or ten days and some of the earlier varieties are already fully blooming. Mr. Williams could very well be speaking for all the peach growers in the County. They are, without exception optimistic.

The overall story is that, barring unforseen adverse weather conditions, Chilton County is lining up for a bumper peach crop to the likes of which we've never seen. This is indicated not only by the very desirable condition of the trees, but by the fact that the 35 per cent that are commercially handled the most that has ever been shipped was 341 carlots (400 bushels per acre) in 1954. This year's estimated shipping total will be 800 carlots.

Chilton County, with the help of the Divine Hand is on it's way to millions of added income dollars and they in turn will set most of the population back on their proverbial feet again. Thus, another verification of the old local addage that "as the farmer goes, so goes Chilton County."

Baptists Plan Easter Hymn Service

Several choirs and musical groups from various Baptist churches in the Chilton-Unity Association will combine with their efforts next Sunday afternoon, March 30th, in the presentation of a special Easter Hymn Service. The service will be held at First Baptist Church in Clanton and will begin at 2:30 p. m.

THE program is being planned by the Music Committee of the association around the theme "The Cross of Christ." In addition to the singing of the choirs ensembles the program will also feature congregational singing of favorit hymns.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend this service.

Thorsby Baptist Church Happenings

We are happy to share with you the thought that rain does not put out fire if that fire is kindled in hearts of Christians. Monday night during the downpour the prayer meeting went forward, the Brotherhood and Jr. and Intermediate RA's met at the church with a very fine response from all those who attended. The RA's under the direction of Mr. Charles Cleckler, Mr. Glenn Hayes Marcus, and Mr. Harold Mims had a very fine meeting. The Brotherhood discussed many matters of importance pertaining to their interest locally and otherwise. One of the items of business was to forward a check for $100.00 to Rev. Francisco Rodriguez of Matanzas, Cuba ,to assist him in carrying on the work of his church and also promoting a number of mission Sunday Schools in other communities. The Brotherhood in our church has accomplished many worthy objectives which due to the modesty of the membership, we will not mention here.

The First Baptist Church of Thorsby which is sponsoring the comunity - wide revival extends a cordial invitation to all the churches of our asociation and churches of the county to share with us in this great campaign for Christ.

WORLD production of food in 1957 is believed to be the largest in history, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Yet it barely keeps pace with the world's increase in population.

ROCKETS TO THE "MOON"?

"scientists" (class of '65 or '70) met in the secluded spot of their anticipated success. They were donning helmets (of questionable effectiveness) and a fire'-extinguisher (a precaution -- everybody makes mistakes) and with their prized missile in hand were ready for the big test.

At Zero hour (8:15 CST) their visions of success were apparently realized in the form of deafening roar and blinding flash which announced the apparent success of their mission. As fate would have it, however, the materials they were equipped with did not meet with the specifications of their theories. In other words the missile is now a "messile".

When questioned by local police, who saw the "launching" from across town, the three stalwarts disclosed that they had made previous tests. The unsuccessful attempt on this particular date was unaccounted for the materfinds went their merry way in search of new conquests, possibly to conquer the "bugs" obviously present in their latest masterpiece.

Above is a photo of what they anticipated. but never happened. Better luck next time fellows and in remote testing grounds.

Problems of Higher Education Will Be Greatly Magnified 15 Years Hence

Council Of Educators In Alabama Study Possible Improvements

OFFICIALS of Alabama's 30 colleges are now making plans to meet the needs of the state's youngsters who will want a college education in the next few years.

AS attention being focused on a crisis in higher education throughout the United States, Alabama educators are telling the local story to the state's citizens in an effort to turn the crisis into a challenge for Alabamians.

EDUCATORS throughout America have been talking a great deal about the problem, now educators in Alabama are doing something about it.

REALIZING that unprecedented demands for a college education will confront each institution of higher learning in the state, officials of all of Alabama's colleges establishe the Alabama Council for Aid to Higher Education. The Council was organized in the fall of 1957.

ONE of the primary purposes of the council is to inform the people of Alabama of what lies ahead in their state in the area of higher education.

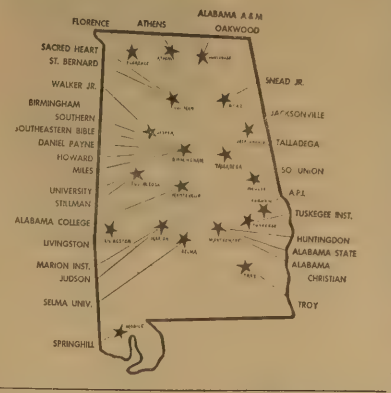
THE council is composed of representatives of every institution of higher learning in Alabama, and is headed by L. O. Bracheen, Auburn. Other chairmen are Dr. C. B. Smith, president of Troy State College; Ed Brown, University of Alabama; J. A. Sincher, Howard College; and Ralph W. Sears, Director of Public Relations at Alabama College.

THE Council is focusing attention on the fact that college enrollment applications will skyrocket in the 1960's with more than 50,000 full-time students in 1965 and by 1970 the youngster hunting for higher education may find college classrooms overflowing and entrance doors all but closed.

HIGH School students are finding it more and more difficult, now, to get accepted by the college of their choice. Presently, they have a chance, but their younger brothers and sisters, unless they are especially talented, might be deprived of a college education, ' measures and plans are not taken now.

WITHIN the boundaries of Alabama, there are 30 colleges with a total enrollment of approximately 34,000 students. These institutions include 21 white and 9 Negro colleges.

THE colleges of Alabama are well distributed among public, private, and church supported institutions. There are nine state-supported colleges, 17 church supported and four privately controlled.



OF the 17 church supported, five are under the control of the Methodist Church, Three are Baptist, three Catholic, two Congregational, and one Adventist, Church of Christ, Episcopal and Presbyterian.

Geographically, Alabama's colleges are located in all areas of the state.

Eleven colleges are more than 100 years old ,14 are between 50 and 100 years and five are less than 50 years old.

ALABAMA'S educators know that all these colleges, public, church and private, large and small, must unite and do their share to expand their facilities to meet the mass of students certain to desire and perhaps demand a college education.

Sweet Potatoes Can Fill Financial Void of Some Chilton Farmers

Sweet potatoes may fill the need of Chilton County farmers looking for new sources of income.

C. C. Carlton, Superintendent of the Chilton Area Horticulture Sub-Station, reports that on a five year acreage, 1950 through 1955, on the three commercial varieties for our section, he produced an average of 192 bu. per acre.

The varieties and their five year averages are as follows:

Allgold - 266 bu. per acre.
Porto Rico - 120 bu. per acre.

In 1956 the yield of Goldrush was 226 bu. per acre and the Allgold was 281 bu. per acre. There was no Porto Rico in this test. Mr. Carlton stated, "However some years I have made as much as 400 bu. per acre on some varieties." The five year average of all cost per acre from 1949 through 1953, including production and storage, was $176.00. The biggest item in this cost was for labor - $67.00 per acre.

The average mid-month prices received by farmers for 100 lbs of sweetpotatoes from 1952 through 1956 as reported by the "Alabama Crop Reporting Service", are as follows:

January, $5.27; February $5.80; March, $5.60; April $5.57; May $5.69; June, $5.89; July, $5.49; August, $5.42; September, $5.28; October, $4.98; November, $4.67; December, $4.95.

As this average price points out, on most farms it would be more profitable to sell early potatoes until the price dropped and then elave the other in the ground until late fall before frost for harvesting and curing for sale in late winter and early spring months. Of course, this last method would require a curing and storage house. In most cases, however, this would not be too big o a problem. Some growers have converted chicken houses, cotton and seed houses, and many other kinds of buildings or part of buildings that can be insulated with sawdust or other materials into a satisfactory potato house.

There are a few steps to follow in having a good sweetpotato project, reports the County Agent's office. First, select sandy loam to silt loam type soil that is well drained and not containing decaying organic matter.

Second, select varieties recommended for our area, and these are Copperskin, Porto Rico, Goldrush, and Allgold. Bed certified seed March 1st - 15th, set vine cutings June 1st - 20th on 8-12" in 3½ ft rows (12,000 plants per acre.)

The third step is to follow soil tests recommendations. If soil tests is not used, then use 1000 lbs of 4-12-12 with 2 lbs of actual Heptachlor mixed in per acre in a split application - one-half of it applied at bedding time and the other half used as a side-dressing one month after plants are set. Also use about 200 lbs. of Nitrate of Soda with this side-dressing of course, the potatoes should be cultivated so as to keep them on a bed and free of grass.

Harvesting the crop is the fourth step in a good sweetpotato project. The early crop should be harvested for sale in late July and early August. Harvest the late crop in the latter part of October before frost when the ground is dry. It is a god idea to use cotton gloves in handling the potatoes and don't leave potatoes in the sun for a long [illegible] of time.

The last st[illegible] a sweetpotato project is curing and storage which is a very i[illegible] to be kept in go[illegible] ketting.

plied by some of the farmers in Chilton county by a wood or coal burning stove or an electrically heated unit. Where insulation has been used, this is not a hard job. Ventilation should be provided and this might be done with small fans or from an opening in the house.

"Sweetpotato projects can be profitable to some Chilton County farmers", says Albert Pitts, Assistant County Agent. "More farm units should have some acreage t this crop in 1958."

If more information is desired on this crop, such as production, marketing, curing (blueprint for potato house), etc., contact the County Agent's office.

P-TA Behind Drive To Increase Library Facilities

The Chilton County P. T.-A. is sponsoring a "Book Drive" for the school Library and would like very much to have every child in the school have a book dedicated to him in honor of his Birthday. If you will check this list and choose a book and send your money to the PTA president, Mrs. R. M. Tucker, or to the school Librarian, Mrs. L. F. Gerald, Jr., the price of each book will be less since the school gets a discount, and they can help you choose.

If you would like to make a "Memorial Contribution" to the school Library, we would be very grateful for that also. At any rate we hope that everyone who is interested in having a better Library, will contact one of the above mentioned, and help us with this "Book Drive". Th eboys and girls are so interested that they are having a contest in each room. Maybe you would just like to help them, If so, just send or give what ever you can when they tell you about their contest.

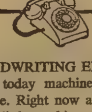
Telephone Talk
By
IRVIN COMMANDER
Your Telephone Manager



HANDWRITING EXPERT: Seems like everywhere you look today machines are getting almost smarter than people. Right now at Bell Laboratories they're developing a little machine—'bout as big as a portable typewriter —that can read and identify handwritten numbers. One day we'll be using it right here in our telephone office to record Long Distance numbers automatically. That'll mean saving a lot of extra work and cutting down costs. It's nice to know little machines like this are constantly being developed by telephone folks to help keep costs down and speed up service. It's one way we help keep your telephone the big bargain it is today.

ONE of our customers asked a question that I thought I would try to answer for all of you. She said, "You people talk a lot about connecting telephones in several locations in the home, but I don't see any real advantage for placing them there."

WELL let's take the kitchen first. After all that's where you ladies spend most of your time and that is really your office or shop. With a kitchen telephone you can talk and still keep an eye on the dinner that you have cooking. It saves rushing to another part of the house to answer the telephone; and then you don't have to worry about burning your dinner. And that kitchen telephone is so handy to answer those calls that always come in around meal time. With warm weather coming, we will be spending lots of time in the yard, and that kitchen telephone can be heard in the yard to avoid losing any calls. This customer is now enjoying a kitchen telephone. I think you too, would be pleased with the convenience and pleasure of a kitchen telephone.

I would like to tell you about another good location for telephone service in my next talk.

P. S. The April issues of some of your favorite magazines will have ads about these kitchen telephones. Watch for them.

Vellum Manuscripts And Manuscript Families

The most important Bible manuscripts known to exist today are recorded on a fine grade of calfskin, known as vellum. Copyists of the Bible text began to use the material in the first half of the fourth century after Christ. It is more durable than the papyrus writing material previously used, and on vellum we have preserved such important Bible manuscripts as Vatican No. 1209 and Sinaiticus, both of the fourth century. However, the papyrus manuscripts brought to the light of day during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries fill in what was once a blind spot in the chain of preserved Scripture copies. They bridge over the gap of the second and third centuries, which separated the original writings of the Greek Scriptures from the Vellum manuscripts of the fourth century. The papyrus manuscripts now provide the links that made the chain unbroken. Nevertheless, the famous vellum manuscripts of the fourth and fifth centuries still rank ahead of the papyrus manuscripts in value. Through them Jehovah has caused the entire Bible to be reliably preserved.

TABLE OF LEADING VELLUM MANUSCRIPTS

Symbol	Name of Codex (MS)	Century	Now Preserved	Recension
Aleph	Sinaitic	4th	London	Alexandrian
A	Alexandrine	5th	London	Byzantine
B	Vatican No. 1209	4th	Rome	Alexandrian
C	Ephraemi Rescriptus	5th	Paris	Alexandrian
D	Bezae Cantabrigiensis	6th	Cambridge, Eng.	Western
D or D2	Bezae Claromontanus	6th	Paris	Western

This table shows the outstanding vellum manuscripts, their international symbol, name, date, place of present keeping, and the recension or family to which they belong. All of them are written in the majuscule or unical style of letters, that is, in all capital letters. The first-ranking Bible manuscript is the Vatican No. 1209. It has three columns to a page and was written in the first half of the fourth century after Christ. Originally it contained in Greek all the Scriptures, from Genesis to Revelation. Now many parts of the manuscripts have become damaged and there are several gaps, parts of Genesis, Psalms and Hebrews and all of Timothy, Titus, Philemon and Revelation being missing. It is kept in the Vatican library. Finally, after much delay and show of reluctance, the Vatican authorities had produced a photographic facsimile of the entire manuscript, in 1889-1890.

The Vatican MS. 1209 has a rival in the Sinaitic MS. comprises parts of the entirs Bible in Greek, containing 376 leaves, four columns to the page, except in the poetic books of the Hebrew Scriptures, where it runs in two columns. It contains Revelation, and thus ably fills in a lack in the Vatican MS. 1209. It agrees, and also disagrees, with the famous Vatican manuscript at several points. Its international symbol is the first leter of the Hebrew alphabet, (aleph). Count Constantine Tischendorf, the German scholar, discovered this manuscript in 1859 in the Greek Catholic monastery of St. Catherine at Mount Sinai. In sharp contrast with the Vatican authorities who jealously concealed the full light of Vatican MS. 1209 under a "bushel basket" for centuries, the czar of Russia ordered Tischendorf to publish the entire Codex Sinaiticus 1862. Its light was quickly allowed to shine forth, and it was this move that pricked the Vaticanites into making a full and accurate publication of their famous manuscript that is might not wade into the background.

The Alexandrine manuscript rates about third as an ancient vellum manuscript. It too contains most of the Bible, including the book of Revelation. This manuscript dates from the fifth century and runs two columns to the page. In the Gospels part of the early stage in the process of re-Alexandrine MS. is represented as vising the text of the Greek Scriptures. This process of revision produced at last the Byzantine text, which text is the basis of the English King James Version. Initially the Alexandrine MS. was brought by Cyril Lucas from Alexandria, Egypt, to Constantinople. He was prevailed upon to present the manuscript to King James I, who authorized the production of the popular English Bible called by his name. The manuscript was sent to England, but did not reach there until 1627, after King James' death, and hence was not available for the translation of the King James Version of 1611. At any rate, the appearance in England of MS. "A" (symbol for the Alexandrine MS.) started a great search by textual critics for ancient manuscripts.

Another ancient vellum manuscript of the fifth century and of about equal age with the Alexandrine MS. is the Codex Ephraemi Rescriptus (symbolized by "C"). It is what is called a "palimpsest". This term is composed of palin, meaning "again", and psao, meaning "to rub"; it means manuscript from which the original writing thereon was scraped off, then written over with a new and different text. It thus becomes a "rescript". Manuscript "C" originally contained the Greek Scriptures, but later this was scrapped off and written over, in the twelfth century, with the Greek works of the Syrian named Ephraem (Ephrem Syrus.) That is why it is called the Codex Ephraemi Rescriptus. By chemical treatment it has been possible to read the original script, thus making the manuscript of value. It contains 64 leaves of portions of the Greek Septuagint, and 145 leaves of fragments of all the parts of the Christian Scriptures. It has only one column to the page.

A fifth important manuscript is the Bezae Cantabrigiensis or Cambride Text. Theodore Beza had recovered the manuscript in 1562 from the monastery of St. Irenaeus, Lyons, France, as a result of the Huguenot's sacking of that city. It contains almost all of the Gospels and Acts. It is bilingual, being written in both Greek and Latin, and is the leading manuscript of the Western recension. For the epistles of Paul another Beza manuscript is referred to, the Codex Claromontanus or Clermont MS. It contains the fourteen Pauline epistles, and is also in Greek and Latin.

Only the outstanding papyrus and vellum manuscripts have been discussed in this and the preceding article. From the original autographed copies of the Greek Scriptures thousands of copies were made and circulated. There are more than 12,000 copies extant today. But there are no two copies precisely the same. Minor variations abound, and larger groupings of these manuscripts have sets of variations peculiar to their groups. Those with common peculiarities are associated together as of a certain "recension", but better termed "family". In a modern sense recension means revision, but as it pertains to manuscripts it means a family of manuscripts having a common ancestor manuscript this side of the original autographed writings.

One can appreciate how the families of manuscripts would arise when he considers, for instance, Paul's letter from Rome to the Colossians, wherein he instructs (Col. 4:16), 'Have this letter read likewise to the church of Laodicea and other congregations. The trustworthy Christian brethern, who made the copies might not be very well educated, but they could copy. Several might each make a copy, so as to multiply copies quickly. Due to human frailties, such copies would hardly be exact duplicates, correct in every detail. A missspelling, an omission of a word or phrase, a transposition of a word, these errors might creep in. And if there were, say, three copies made of this letter to the Colossians, each copy by a different writer could have different mistakes. The copies would be sent out probably one to Antioch in Syria, another down to Alexandria in Egypt, and another to Caesarea in Palestine. A copy might even be sent back to Rome. Being all by different copyists, different first-copy mistakes might be in each respective manuscript.

Now, when the copy would come to Rome, it would undergo a re-copying by other scribes, and these would copy down the mistakes in the manuscript. Being likewise human, they could make errors of their own; so that, as time went on and copies multiplied, the variations from the apostle's original letter would increase. However, their common ancestor would be that first copy sent to Rome, and each copy in the Western Mediterranean area, though having minor peculiarities all of its own, would have a common basic likeness with all the other copies of that section because springing from the same ancestor manuscript. Hence the manuscripts of that section would grow up into a family or "recension" called the "Western recension". Western recension readings do not have such early support, and were subject to free handling by the editors.

Easterly therefrom, in Asia Minor, alongside of Constantinople, and including Syrian Antioch, another group of manuscripts would likewise grow up with their outstand peculiarities as to style, errors, transpositions, omissions and additions. Nevertheless, fundamentally they would have something in common, because all would spring from the one first sent there from Colosse. Hence they would be related as a family, which family is most commonly called the "Byzantine recension." The editors of the text in this area were more concerned with presenting a smooth reading of the Scriptures rather than one of literal accuracy. Hence if an alternation would smooth out the reading, the editors would make it.

Another family of texts is the "neutral" recension. This family is classified as "neutral" because its manuscripts fall in neither the Western nor the Byzantine family and it is distinguished by an absence of their errors or alternations. The "neutral" texts are outstanding in that they have no substantial changes nor do they betray any great editorial rehandling. They are close to the original apostolic autograph writings. The designation "neutral" is now changing to "Alexandrine recension".

During the past fifty years textual critics have formed a new family, the "Caesarean recension". Not in Caesarea, Palestine, but in Egypt the family had its origin and existed contemporaneously with the neutral text; but it was transferred to Caesarea and established there due to one named Origen. Hence its designation.

But with these various families, and the many variations of texts within each family, the Scriptures have come down to us essentially the same as were the original writings. The many variations are mainly minor and immaterial. They are to be expected in the light of so much recopying. By careful study and comparison of manuscripts the errors of any consequence have been ironed out and we enjoy today an authentic Bible text.

To The Voters of Chilton County

W. H. NELSON

I entered this race a clean man and honest.

I expect to continue throughout the race. If I am elected I expect to serve the people of Chilton County as honest as I know how in the Board of Revenue as being a candidate of District One.

I have not tolerated with any political ring and do not expect to do it.

I do not have anything else in mind but to serve the people honest. If elected or not I will not have anything to regret.

The people should be careful in voting for your Board of Revenue, for they can waste your tax dollar or save them.

Your vote and influence will be appreciated. — W. H. Nelson.

COTTON FARMERS—

$520 Million Okeyed For Cotton Reserve

THE Chairman of the Chilton County ASC Committee, Eddie L. Owen, reports that most farmers who wanted to take part in the 1958 Acreage Reserve of the Soil Bank, but could not file signed agreements because of fund limitations, will apparently be able to sign up af the County Office in the near future.

BOTH the Senate and the House of Representatives have approved a supplemental appropriation of $250 million dollars to provide for additional acreage reserve participation. This will bring the total to 750 milion dollars for the 1958 program. Because agreement on some detailed program provisions must still be reached in House-Senate conference, Congressional action on the supplemental appropriation is not yet complete. As soon as final action is taken, the County Committee will get the 'Go Ahead" for completing the sign-up. Preliminary steps have been taken by the State ASC Committee to prepare the way for immedatie action when the supplemental funds are authorized.

IN addition to farmers who have already filed signed agreements, which were in general covered by the initial appropriation for the Acreage Reserve, other eligible farmers will be in position to take part in the enlarged program. These will include those whose names are on "Waiting List" registers at the County Office, and possibly others where there is evidence that they made an attempt to participate during the signup period.

WHILE it is expected that, in general, funds will be available to take care of all farmers who indicated that they wiuld take part in the program if it was enlarged, there is a legislative annual limitation of 300 million dollars for the corn acreage reserve. Because the total of signed agreements and other applications on waiting lists would call for more than 300 million dollars, if all the corn applications were completed, some adjustment wil lbe necessary for this crop.

PUBLIC notice will be given promptly when the County ASC Office is ready to sign additional Acreage Reserve Agreements. The Chairman, Mr. Owen, says that in the meantime the County Office will be prepared to furnish general information but that farmers should not attempt to sign agreements until official announcements are made.

A recent dairy survey shows that there were 57,336 bulk milk tanks on farms in the United States last year. This represents an increase of 92 per cent over a year earlier.

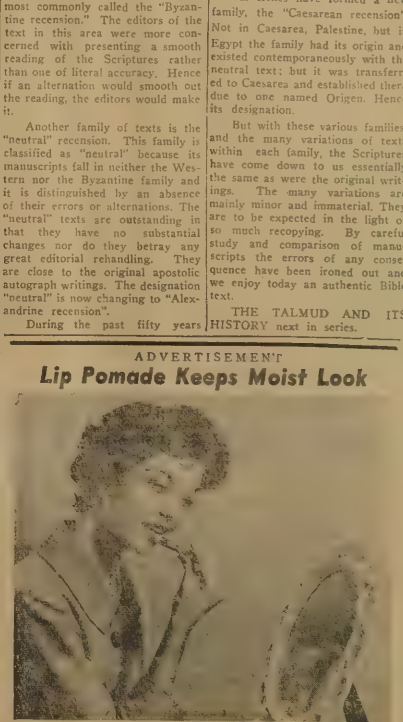
Lip Pomade Keeps Moist Look



The pale lipsticks, now going out of fashion, left one seemingly permanent contribution to make-up. Since every little line and crack in the lips necessarily showed through the pastel color, many women got in the habit of using a protective pomade as a lipstick base.

One such pomade is Vaseline Lip-Ice which contains soothing camphor ice in a petrolatum base with silicones to help hold in natural lip moisture.

Women are continuing the pomade habit now that they're using bright red lipsticks again. They discovered that any shade of lipstick stays smooth and moist hours longer because of the protective pomade underneath.

One trick to remember when using this pomade: don't just spread it on . . . it must be worked into the lip crevices carefully to be most effective. Remember that natural crevices are vertical, not horizontal, so use an up-and-down motion with the pomade and then rub your lips together.

FOLKS and THINGS About Town

by Ben

Mr. T. E. Wyatt, our good friend and Editor of the Union Banner, (the other newspaper) takes us to task in his "Man On The Corner" column for picking a "slate". Gene can find more "boogers" in an innocent paragraph than anybody we know. Among other things Gene said: "A chosen few, generally referred to as a political combination, or slate, received the proverbial nod or blessing, the rest was consigned to the trash pile or given the kiss of death." Now here's the pay-off. The article he referred to was written by our son, Bob Tucker. He has never studied politics, doesn't claim to know anything whatsoever about politics and was merely trying to give each of the candidates in the coming election a nice "plug."

Bess Hayes is sure due a vote of thanks for the wonderful change she is making in the grounds surrounding the Nursing Home. Don't get us wrong. We know Bess isn't doing all the work herself, but she is leading the cheering section and is doing a mighty good job of it. There's a lot of public spirited ladies in Clanton helping her along and she will be the first to try to give another credit we are sure. Nevertheless we can all take out hat off to Mrs. Bess Hayes and show our appreciation for her leadership.

J. W. Bailey, a representative of the Chevrolet Company was in the other day with "Skeeter" Stokes. He says that Chilton County is one of the best pick-up markets in the state. That means we're one of the best farming markets in the state too which we could have told him. Anyway we're glad he verified our opinion of Chilton County.

Bet you don't know why wild geese fly south in the winter. It's because its too far to walk.

A Judge recently delivered an acid comment to two drivers whose cars had collided. "Said the Judge: I wish to commend you two drinking drivers for running into each other instead of some innocent person. If this sort of thing can be encouraged, I think we may have hit upon the solution of one of our most serious traffic problems."

George Tippett and Mrs. Tippett spent two weeks here recently visiting old friends and relatives. They are from Gladewater, Texas, and yes, he was in the oil business, but is now retired. They are old residents of Chilton County and saw many old friends while here.

Jimmy Bell says a little recession is better than a big war.

It was the schools annual parents night and the program included several vocal numbers by the Class, one was a rather high-pitched version of "When Irish Eyes are Smiling". As the young voices wavered through the song, a woman in the audience began to cry softly. The spectator next to her leaned over and whispered: "You must be Irish?" "Oh, no," sobbed the woman, "I'm the music teacher."

MR. JOHN F. POOLE SUCCUMBS

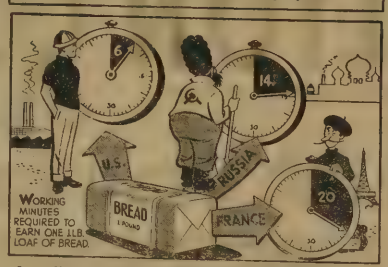
AS TIME GOES B(U)Y!



Ivan Skavinsky Skavar, the average Russian industrial worker, labors five times as long to fill his family's market basket as does Joe Smith, the typical American laborer.

In a talk before the National Food Conference, held recently in Washington, D. C., Vice President Nixon pointed out that Joe Smith can buy a pound loaf of enriched bread with six minutes of labor, according to figures compiled by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics. Ivan works 14 minutes for the same amount of bread which does not equal the U. S. loaf nutritionally.

Ivan works 132 minutes for a pound of beef, Joe Smith buys it with 31 minutes of labor. Joe works 25 minutes to add a pound of sliced bacon to the family larder; Ivan has to stay on the job 331 minutes to buy the same amount from a Moscow State store.

A grouping of 11 foreign countries, according to the work time required to buy food, indicates that the American worker spent less than one-fifth as much time to pay for a given quantity of food as the Soviet worker. He (the American) spent from 20 to 36 per cent as much as the Italian, Austrian, or French workers; from 39 to 48 per cent as much time as the Dutch, West Germans, Irish or Swiss; and from 62 to 71 per cent as much time as the Danish, British, or Norwegian workers.

Joe Smith works 4 minutes for a pound of flour. Irishmen and Norwegians are runners-up. They work six minutes for their pound of flour. Again, tops in the flour field is Russia, where 27 minutes of work are necessary.

French bread is in demand in many countries, but not-so-lucky-Pierre works 20 minutes for a pound of it.

The work here in my office is such that it is necessary that I be here to conduct it properly. This I have done for the past term of office & have done the very best that I could to make you a good Circuit Clerk and perform the duties of the office to the best of my ability.

It is with deep regret that I cannot get to see you personally, but it is not because I do not want to, or that I will not be appreciative of anything you can do in my campaign for reelection, however I will see just as many as the time will permit.

Please take this into consideration before you pledge your vote in this campaign and be assured that I will always put the business of my office first as long as I am a servant of the people. I humbly solicit your vote on May 6th. — Sincerely, Horsley White.

PINCHED NERVES

DR. M. E. WESTFALL
Chiropractor

Chiropractic is modern approach to health. It is the art of adjusting the segments of spine (getting it in proper alignment) so spinal nerves can be free to carry mental impulse from brain to all cells of body. Each and every cell in body has it's nerve supply. If bone in spine has slipped or become displaced it causes pressure on nerve. If this nerve is carrying impulses to stomach these impulses are slowed down, (same as water from a garden hose is slowed down when there is a kink in hose) This pressure on nerve supplying stomach slows down function of stomach therefore causing indigestion, constipation, poor digestion, ulcers and other disorders. If this lowered nerve supply is allowed to continue it becomes chronic condition and it takes much longer to correct. The longer the condition remains the longer the health care must be to restore normal nerve supply. This condition may begin by just lifting something in wrong way which will cause a sore back for day or so. The sore back may go away but the displaced bone may remain, causing pressure on nerve and disease in body. We should have 100 per cent nerve supply to all organs in body. If we have 75 percent function because of pinched nerves, the organ will do it's best to carry the extra load and may take weeks, months, or years before it begins to show symptoms of fatigue and disease. If we are to keep 100 per cent nerve supply to these organs we must go to a competent chiropractor when the condition is acute and not wait until it becomes chronic. Pain is the danger signal so let's relieve the cause of pain and restore body to normal function. You can't say we've tried everything unless chiropractic was included.

WITHOUT running water in would carry about 25 tons of water in and out of the house each year, causing a lot of back strain and fatigue.

Community Revival Attracts Strong Crowds to Thorsby

The time, 1:30 p. m. The rain was falling gently and only one car parked at the high school auditorium in Thorsby, that of Mrs. Donald Merchant who came early to arrange her classroom to be used as a nursery room for the revival. Near the two o'clock hour, the time set for the services to start, a downpour of rain was falling. Cars were jamming each other at the entrance to the auditorium. Thoughtful men of our church were meeting the ladies at their cars with raincoats and umbrellas ushering them into the biulding. The choir was forming inside the building. People were pouring in in great numbers. Presently the first service in the community-wide revival was underway. Rev. Hymon Atchison was directing the singing, Mrs. B. V. Ray at the piano, and such good singing as you have never heard before. Rev. Burks welcomed the visitors present from other towns and communities throughout the county and introduced the ministers present: Rev. Griffin, Rev. Goode, Rev. Williams, Rev. Dennis, Rev. Liscas and Rev. Amos Hughes. We were gratified at the presence of these men, of the Lord in the service. The Northside Trio from the Northside Baptist hurch in Clanton rendered a special song after which Rev. Brookshire read from the Word of the Lord and conducted a testimonial service insisting that those who were willing to assume the responsibilites and privileges for a great revival in Thorsby and Chilton County to let it be known. Men and women stood anxiously awaiting the opportunity to bear their testimony and pledge their service. At times two and three were standing, many with tears streaming across their faces as they were voicing their sincere concern for the coming of a great revival. Strong men testified that they had been praying for weeks for the meeting. Rev. James Jones brought a powerful message on the subject, "How to Have a Revival," pinpointing the cost and making a strong appeal to those present to accept the challenge. His proposition was for those who were willing to meet the conditions to come forward. It is being conservative to say that 75 Christians responded to the invitation. As they came, their faces were lighted by the presence of God, tears of joy moving across the faces of joyful hearts. Burdened hearts for lost loved ones and friends were breaking into tears as the line moved forward. A minister who stood near the writer of this article said, "I have spent may years in the ministry and never have I seen nor felt the moving of the Spirit of God in the first service of a revival more than we are experiencing today.

Join us in this great crusade for Christ. Services at 7:30 each night this week, Rev. James Jones, the evangelist. Join us each Sunday afternoon for the 2 o'clock service when Rev L. D. Brookshire will begin preaching and will continue through the second week. Mrs. Sam Mims who is Supt. of the Nursery Dept. at the Thorsby Baptist Church is extending an invitation to [illegible] the [illegible] to [illegible] on [illegible] able workers in her department, Mrs. Fred Merchant. The nursery will be open for every service.

A cordial invitation is extended to one and all to attend the community revival being conducted each night at the high school auditorium at Thorsby under the direction of the Chilton County Baptist Evangelistic Team.

The Detection Of Cancer

Contrary to the opinion of many people, some [illegible] are curable if detected and treated early enough. According to the American Cancer Society one in every three cancer deaths can be prevented if proper treatment is begun early enough.

What is cancer? Cancer is really a family of diseases, all having certain common characteristics. All cancers are made up of cells which, for one or more reasons, have become altered and cease functioning in a normal manner. The diseased cells then divide themselves, and force their way among normal cells, stealing their nourishment. This is the way cancer spreads.

This beginning process of degeneration and multiplication of the cells — the early stages of cancer — may take place without the patient feeling any discomfort or pain whatsoever. It is in this stage that the greatest chance of curing the condition exists. Later it will be extremely difficult, or even impossible, to eliminate or contain the malignant growth.

If, however, detection is made early enough, it can usually be destroyed by radium or x-ray treatments, or removed by surgery. It is estimated that about 80,000 Americans are being cured of cancer every day mainly because they undergo periodic medical examinations.

Cancer strikes all ages, in all walks of life. But as the advances of medical science add years to our life expectancy, and we gain more older people the incidence of cancer will increase. According to an insurance company, in 1956 there were 126,000 cancer deaths in this country among persons 65 and over. This fact only dramatizes the need for periodic visits to your doctor, whether you are sick or not.

Great amounts of money and research talent are being expended by the pharmaceutical industry and others in the search for drugs that will arrest or cure cancer. But until the final answer is discovered, each of us must accept a responsibility to watch for the following cancer danger signals: 1. Any sore that does not heal; 2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere; 3. Unusual bleeding or discharge; 4. Any change in a wart or mole; 5. Persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing; 6. Persistent hoarseness or cough; 7. Any change in normal bowel habits.

There are various ways your doctor can detect cancer, and guessing is not one of them. You should not guess, either. Examination may reveal that you do not have cancer as you suspected, a fact which will be good for your peace of mind.

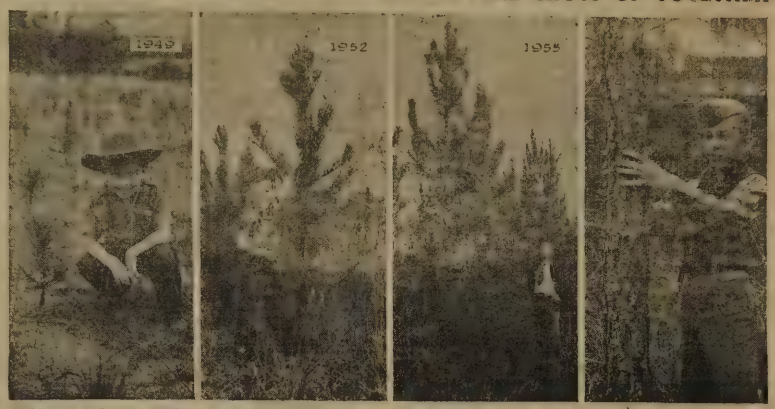
TREE FARMING BOOM—A BOY AND A TREE GROW UP TOGETHER



Eight years make a big difference in a boy and a pine tree, especially in the South, where industry's Tree Farm movement is helping to meet a growing demand for raw material needed by lumber, pulp and paper mills, and other wood-using industries. As a 4-year-old cowboy in 1949, Wallace Whatley was photographed beside a year-old pine seedling planted by the Opelika, Ala., Rotary Club as part of the club's campaign to put 35,000 acres of Lee County land into productive forest crops. By 1952 Wallace could not reach the top of the tree and some three million trees had been planted. In 1955 he had to back off to see the tree's top. Now, Wallace has graduated to a Boy Scout uniform, and the pine is well on its way to becoming a tree of commercial size. (AFPI photo)

Tips to Improve Your Handwriting

The race to keep ahead of the Russians has resulted in a greater emphasis on college education for Americans than ever before.

Several million Americans will be graduating from colleges this June and hundreds of thousands will be starting their college educations in the fall. Thousands of scholarships will help many young men to fill the need for scientists and professionals.

Yet, paradoxically, an overwhelming number of these students, and other adults, cannot write their own name legibly!

Mrs. Claire Slote, author of a new McGraw-Hill book titled, "Improve Your Handwriting," says, "The handwritten word is a precious, practical craft passed down through the ages. More than any other skill, it distinguishes civilized man from the barbarian."

What has happened to the second "R" today? "Poor handwriting annually is costing us tens of millions of dollars in lost business, and undeliverable mail is heavy enough to sink a battleship," says the Handwriting Foundation of Washington, D. C. "We are a nation of illegible scribblers. Education has not taught many of us how to write legibly."

Americans who can recite everything from "Casey at the Bat" to Shakespeare, and who demonstrate on quiz shows what knowledge they have acquired, never could write down all the facts legibly.

The Foundation, a non-profit group of educators and businessmen, is helping schools evaluate their methods, so that the present trend toward specialization does not neglect the cultivation of legible handwriting. But even adults long out of school can improve their own writing. Here are four steps that will bring immediate improvement:

1. Watch out for tricky letters. Close the loop in letters like "a", "g", "d". Don't close up looped letters like "e", "l", "f". Don't loop non-looped strokes like "t", "i", "d".

2. Be careful of "twin" numbers. Don't make a "7" look like a "1", or your "3" look like a "5".

3. Sit properly when writing. Keep erect with shoulders slightly forward, hips back in seat, facing desk squarely. Keep both forearms on the desk, feet flat on the floor, and place paper directly in front of you at a slant.

4. Score yourself. Check your letter formation, slant, spaces between words, alignment, margins and arrangements, and overall neatness.

The Big Wind of Self-Preservation---

We noted with something less than pride the "explanations" which Walter Reuther came back with the other day when he was being confronted with obvious questions. The answer to one was that "the" union was formed to stop such things as "killings and beatings" within the big industrial plants back when hoodlums were organized against labor.. We agree with Mr. Reuther's firm assertion of what unions were intended for, but we are not in agreement with what they have grown into. He is in a position of supporting something which he himself knows had grown "too big for its britches".

It is our confirmed opinion that "organized labor" is an excuse for disorganized pocket-lining by big wigs in the unions. The common workers, who stands behind the union (and supposedly vice-versa) is unaware apparently that he is building a monster which is sapping Americas strength.

Labor Unions: a very definitely yes. Limitations of power by the Federal Government: a very loud and clear "definitely". We cannot go on being sweet-talked into strikes and violence by men who have only themselves in mind. Are you an American first or do you let your pocketbook rule your better pudgement.

Last week the House of Representatives passed a military pay bill which follows in principle a number of the Cordiner recommendations. Approved on a 366 to 22 roll call vote, the measure provides proficiency pay raises averaging 12.5 per cent for officers and 8.4 per cent for enlisted men.

The House approved bills intended to provide adequate remuneration for the skills, the experience, the maturity, and the responsibilities assumed by service personnel who must be familiar with the modern weapons system. It is hoped that the increase the enlistment rate and, the adoption of the measure will at the same time, retain in the military services a much higher number of skilled personnel than heretofore has been the case.

The bill has been referred to the Senate where hearings are now underway on similar legislation.

OBSERVE EASTER BY HELPING LESS FORTUNATE

With Easter Sunday just a few days away, every able-bodied citizen is urged to give thought to the disabled and handicapped by remembering to make a contribution to the Easter Seal Campaign.

Meeting the needs of crippled children and adults boils down to just plain good business.

The challenge to provide facilities for the handicapped presents one of the biggest problems facing the American public today, particularly since authorities estimate 90 per cent of all handicapped persons can be rehabilitated sufficiently to take their rightful place in normal community life.

The need to help the handicapped grows greater each year. Studies reveal there are more than 20,000 children and 73,000 adults in Alabama who are orthopedically handicapped, in addition to approximately 95,000 children with speech problems.

"Helping provide even the basic needs of some of these is a tremendous task," said Earl L. Tucker, Thomasville, chairman of Alabama's Easter Seal Campaign.

"Your Easter will be happier if you do your bit toward helping the crippled," he said.

THE MEANING OF EASTER

What's The Answer

Have you in your busy world of today, ever stopped to think once of the importance of dehydrated food to the North African Pygmies

Now, this is a subject of which we know absolutely nothing, as are so many editorials we have read lately, so we can write with authority and without compunction. Whether or not the pygmies use or need dehydrated foods is beside the point.. Our question was: "Have you, in your busy world of today, ever stopped to think"? Now that is the key to the whole rouble--have you ever stopped to think?

Obviously you haven't

If you had stopped to think the world wouldn't be in the condition it is in today.

If you had stopped to think we would have better public servants.

If you had stopped to think the pace at which we are living would slow down, mankind would take it a bit easier, and we would be enjoying more the better things of life.

If you had stopped to think, you would be much happier, because you would know that there are oh so many more things in this life than the all mighty dollar.

If you stop to think you will give thanks daily to a generous God and enjoy more His blessings along life's way -- thinking more of the other fellow's feelings and not so much of yourself.

See what we mean?

By C. W. Harder

As of this writing, it appears almost certain, with sufficient support from the people, that there will be some type of tax reduction.

The month of February, 1958, may well go down as a climactic month in the nation's history.

C. W. Harder

For this was the month when it came out in clear focus the damage that had been wreaked on the domestic economy by the long concentration of foreign give away programs, and other grandiose schemes.

Since long before the last election, the nation's small businessmen, voting through the National Federation of Independent Business, have called attention to the serious economic disturbances in the making due to unrealistic tax policies which prevent the expansion and healthy maintenance of independent business.

In early January George Burger, Vice President of the organization, appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee with a review of small business sentiment for several previous months. He even quoted one member who wrote as follows:

"It is my opinion that the point of diminishing returns has already been reached as far as taxes are concerned. High taxes have eliminated the possibility of any appreciable reward, with the result that many are liquidating their businesses, while others are trimming down their operations to get in shape so that they can liquidate with a minimum of loss."

But other segments of government kept talking about the upturn in conditions. However, the official report of 5 million unemployed released in March, had a major affect in Washington.

The proposal to combat unemployment by a huge post office building program, if postal rates were increased, fell quite flat.

But many in Washington wonder how stepping up of public work projects can solve unemployment problem brought about by lack of business expansion.

It has also not escaped attention that Detroit, other big employers, were the first to hand out pink slips. On the other hand, small business, which Rep. Wright Patman characterizes as 95% of the firms which employ 20 or fewer people, has been trying to keep their staffs together.

* * *

Thus, it is dawning on many in Washington that a few big corporations can provide a great deal of employment when business is booming, but they are the first to throw the economic machinery into a tailspin when conditions soften.

And so, there is growing more and more the feeling that instead of vast federal projects to take up the slack of unemployment it will be much sounder to give independent business the go ahead signal and trust it is not too late for independent business to take up slack.

Actually, there is nothing particularly surprising about the present situation and conditions.

As evidenced by the constant reports for several years by the National Federation of Independent Business, such a situation was inevitable unless concrete action were taken on an adequate small business program.

THINGS We see and hear

by "TUCK"

Congratulations are once again in order for our good friend Marion C. Deaton (now Lieutenant Deaton in the U. S. Air Force). Pete got his wings last Thursday in Texas upon his graduation from training and is now a pilot, to be stationed in Kansas when he returns to duty. Pete is well deserving of this honor; worked hard for it and we might add could not have been so successful had it not been for the faith and prayers of his mother. We never knew anyone quite so proud of another as is Mrs. Deaton of her sons accomplishments. We realize this is natural, but she can't contain her pride. This speaks well for both we think. Only one thing bothers us about the whole thing. Mrs. D. did not get to see him receive his wings and we'd have given a number of fingers and toes to have seen her there. We're proud to count Pete a friend of ours.

We were exposed the other night to a discussion of a nature which we were not in entire agreement. In fact, as far as the fundamentals of the conversation went we agreed not at all. A group of persons, respected by us (some very much so) were engrossed in belittling, condemning and generally chastizing law enforcement officers of Clanton. We would not dwell on the subject of "law enforcement" if we didn't think it were important. That, and the fact that these people mentioned and others like them are completely disillusioned as to the real trials and tribulations of law men, especially their own. These folks, to the last man, would bend over backward to give a fellow creature the benefits of the doubt, yet at the slightest provocation they were letting fly with some of the most disgusting rumors and harangue that it has ever been our displeasure to hear. A small thing like a parking ticket and the circumstances surrounding it seemed to be quite enough for the group to condemn the entire police force and even led to accusations of "being so corrupt that a person had to be crooked to get into it." Not to mention the fact that they, being farmers, were the backbone of Clanton and that it would be a "ghost town" without their influence and suport. Implying that without them Clanton would be nill, and that their desires should be foremost. As we said, we respect these men, and it is with that much more regret that we hear them passing such damaging remarks about fellow human beings. In the first place, should a complaint arise concerning the police force the subject should immediately be taken up with the City Council whose duty it is to check said complaint. They are the governing body of the police force and therefore should hear any grievance against said organization. If you do not feel the need for reporting the incident then is certainly does not deserve such damaging remarks about the parties involved. We can and will personally vouch for the honesty of the Clanton City Council. We know each man and we say that we have never had a better group serving us in such capacity. Why then, can you not complain to these honest citizens about these "thugh" called policemen. We certainly do not agree with everything the Clanton Police Force does, but we strongly suggest that you are not doing your duty as a citizen. If this is the case, how can you condemn another for trying to do what you yourself are not. Hypocrisy in the raw! As for a parking ticket, we readily admit that a possible mistake is made on the part of a police officer simply because they are human. This being true, is it not possible that you yourself could make a mistake also; or do you admit that you are something less than a police officer?

For Thou, O Lord, art good, and ready to forgive; and plenteous in mercy unto all that call upon Thee.—(Psalm 86, 5.)

From the depths of our distress and despair, God hears and heeds to every one of us who prays for His forgiveness and His help. His mercy knows no bounds, no ceasing, no distinction; over and over again He will pardon the truly repentant, and welcome him back into His all-encompassing love.

COAST SEARCHES FOR MISSING PERSON

Newark, California

Dear Sir:

Will you please help me locate a missing person? For years I have tried to find Charles William Coggins. If you could permit this in your newspaper, I am sure he would read it or someone that knows him.

(Our hometown paper has been successful in finding people.)

My husband and I have serious heart trouble and can't make the trip to Alabama and search for him.

Confidentially, we would like to make a will leaving him everything we have. This is the reason we are trying to find him. If you would like to have more information, please let us know. Want to know whereabouts of Charles William Coggins, age 31 years, believed to be living in Chilton or Autauga County ... be paid if you think it will help).

Any charges for this great service will be paid, gladly. I believe more people will see the story than if we had it in the personal column in the Advertisement. This has been very hard to put into words. Thanking you very much for this great favor. — Gratefully yours, Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Rodrignez, 2892 Musick St., Newark, California
